Protest, Bitter CLC Zero on Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — A defiant Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) has told the federal government it will never accept the anti-inflation program of selective wage and price controls.

The CLC is scheduled to present a fiery denunciation of the program to cabinet Monday, at the same time as thousands of workers from across the country are expected to converge on snow-covered Parliament Hill to demonstrate their support for the congress, which represents two million persons through its affiliated unions.

"This government . . . has placed itself on a collision course with the labor movement of this country," the CLC said in its brief, which was released in advance of delivery.

"We do not welcome this, but we do not intend to back down either."

While taking a pugilistic stance in the brief, CLC president Joe Morris said last week that the congress has taken extensive precautions to ensure that the mass labor rally does not explode into a violent demonstration.

The CLC has opposed the selective controls program since its introduction Oct. 13 because, labor leaders say, ceilings have effectively been clamped on wage increases while prices, for the most part, have been allowed to rise unchecked.

"Canadians were told that the same degree of sacrifice would be required from all sectors of the economy, but the legislation and regulations have made a mockery of this principle for we fail to find adequate controls on dividends, interest rates, professional fees and land speculators."

The congress, in its annual presentation to cabinet, said the government "has embarked upon an anti-inflation program which, in the history of Canada, is unparallelled in its callous and brutal treatment of all who must toil for a living."

Labor Minister John Munro said in an interview that the CLC submission "is a very strident brief and I frankly think its rhetoric is excessive."

"It seems to be completely destructive and I would hope that after elaborating a lot of criticisms, they might have gone on to make some constructive suggestions."

The congress normally deals with a range of issues in its annual submission to cabinet, but this year's 8000-word brief is devoted almost entirely to a bitter attack on the anti-inflation program and a reiteration of CLC demands for an alternative program.

The CLC has said since last May, when the federal government attempted to get business and labor to accept a program of voluntary restraint, that the congress cannot support a restraint program that does not meet a number of conditions.

The CLC brief mentions the need for curtailing land speculators and to establish land banking. It also questions climbing oil and gas prices and "the stated policy of the government that they shall continue on their merry climb."

The CLC also wants a guarantee that tax concessions to corporations will be used to create jobs rather than be paid out in higher dividends. The congress also rebuked the government for rejecting its proposal for a negative income tax or tax credit scheme.

It attacked the government program "for its decision to fight inflation at the expense of higher unemployment."

Grounded Packer Rescued

Her five-man crew escaped without injury.

The 82-foot packer was badly holed in the mishap and barely kept afloat during morning tow to dock at foot of James Island Road by pumps from coast guard cutter Racer.

Rescue was a successful race against time and chance because main pump is mounted on stern of Racer and cutter would have had to leave packer to her fate had she been called to another emergency.

Killer Flu Feared

WASHINGTON (WP) — Dr. Albert Sabin, who 20 years ago developed the oral vaccine for polio, said late last year that it was possible to have a cheap, mass-produced influenza vaccine in time for the next major flu epidemic if the U.S. Congress would only come through with the funds for research.

Sabin was talking then about a known flu variety that makes its appearance about every 10 years, the estimated arrival time of the next being 1978.

But now, Sabin believes, there is a chance for an even more deadly outbreak, as early as this fall, of a rare flu strain for which there is no readily available vaccine. This is the virus which recently killed one soldier at Ft. Dix ,N.J., and infected several others. It is judged to be like the virus which killed 20 million people around the world in 1918.

Sabin, 70, now associated with the Medical College of South Carolina at Charleston, says the government must decide now whether to go all out to develop a new vaccine rather than wait and risk a "forest fire" epidemic.

The reason for the success of Sabin's polio vaccine was its ability to be produced cheaply on a massive scale. That's what he says must be done with the flu.

"A decision must be made: Just how much are we prepared to spend if this forest fire type of epidemic starts next fall," he says. "We must intensify research on alternative methods of immunizing which have the potential for more effective mass vaccination.

"It may be necessary to go back to the drawing board altogether."

Argentina Reported Close To Coup by Armed Forces

By JOANNE OMANG

BUENOS AIRES (WP) — The Argentine armed forces are ready to take power. Detailed plans for a takeover have been drawn up, including the membership of a new government, a list of persons to be arrested and the text of the first announcement to the population.

"The people of Argentina want to know," the text begins, "and they shall know." The phrase, a time-honored one in the history of Argentine political oratory, would initiate the latest of half dozen coups here since 1930.

As with previous coups, plans have leaked in advance, and the broad outline has been published both here and abroad. As also with previous coups, the plans are subject to change without notice.

It is to be the formal end of the staggering government of President Isabel Peron, 45, who has presided for 21 months over a disintegrating economy and daily terrorist violence.

Although the precise date is unknown, it is expected to be soon and it is expected to be generally welcomed.

According to sources close to high military leaders, army commander Jorge Rafael Videla, 50, is slated to head the new government. As leader of the faction that has held out for months against other officers' pressure for an earlier coup, he is expected either to be titular chief or first among equals in a three-member junta.

If there is a junta, the other members are expected to be Navy Commander Emilio Massera, 51, and Air Force Commander Brig. Gen. Orlando Agosti, 49. They are close friends and regarded as moderate conservatives.

Among the first places to be padlocked by the army would be the Argentine Congress, where a disarray of squabbling minority parties and ruling Peronist party splinters have haggled for months over procedural details on bills intended to solve the country's economic and political problems.

The coup planners say they do not want to spill blood. Mrs. Peron would be arrested and exiled to Spain.

If this occurs, she would follow the history of her late husband, Juan Peron, whom the army exiled to Spain in 1955.

Meanwhile, a one-hour gunfight between guerrillas and soldiers in downtown Buenos Aires early today ended a week of stepped-up terrorist killings and bombings throughout Argentina.

The shootout came hours after six bombs were found on Libertador Avenue, one of the capital's busiest thoroughfares and President Peron's habitual motor route from the presidential palace to her suburban Olivos residence.

On Friday evening, she went home by helicopter.

Hollywood Weekend For Picking Oscars

Jaws has passed The Godfather and Gone With the Wind as the box-office champion of all time but may have a difficult chore winning the Academy Award as best movie of the year.

The saga of man against shark got only four nominations, compared with nine for One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest and seven for Barry Lyndon. Also in the race for best picture are Dog Day Afternoon with six nominations and Nashville with five.

Members of the Motion Picture Academy usually back a box office winner — Gone With the Wind and Godfather were both named best picture — but this may be the year the revenue totals will be ignored.

The uncertainty adds to the difficulty of predicting which movie will be named best film on Oscar night March 29.

For the second year the Victoria Times and radio station CJVI are giving Victorians a chance to predict the top Oscar winners and win a weekend for two in Hollywood, the home of the stars.

Winner of the contest will be drawn from among those who have correctly predicted the winner of best movie, best actor and best actress.

Three runner-up winners in the drawing will receive dinners for two at The Empress and double passes to an Odeon Theatre.

Oscar winners are announced Monday, March 29, and the drawing from among the correct entries will take place March 30.

Official entry forms will appear daily in the Victoria Times starting Monday.

The complete list of nominees:

Best actor — Jack Nicholson for One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, Walter Matthau for The Sunshine Boys, Al Pacino in Dog Day Afternoon, Maximillian Schell for The Man in the Glass Booth and James Whitmore in Give 'em Hell, Harry!

Best Actress — Ann-Margret in Tommy, Louise Fletcher for One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, Glenda Jackson as Hedda, Isabelle Adjani for The Story of Adele H. and Carol Kane in Hester Street.

Best Movie — Jaws, One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, Barry Lyndon, Dog Day Afternoon, Nashville.

Some wags have suggested that Brucie should have been nominated for his hard-hitting performance in Jaws. Brucie was the mechanical shark that terrorized millions of viewers with his life-like assault on swimmers near Martha's Vineyard, New England.

The site of the action was within miles of the place where Captain Ahab set out for the great white whale, Moby Dick, and critics have seen many parallels in the two stories of man against sea monster.

One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest earned nine nominations, including the two key awards of best actor and best actress. Solid acting performances by supporting players also was an indication of the power of director Milos Forman. The story of one man's fight against the system inside a mental institution is haunting but depressing.

Barry Lyndon is a beautiful tableau of a bygone age that some critics called sort of Tom Jones at half speed. It is slow moving but fairly impressive.

Nashville is an inside look at the fun, politics and heartbreak of the country movie industry in Tennessee while Dog Day Afternoon is the story of an offbeat holdup in Brooklyn.

The two leads from Cuckoo's Nest, Jack Nicholson and Louise Fletcher, are highly regarded for the top acting awards while Walter Matthau and Ann-Margret may be sentimental selections. Ann-Margret is making a comeback after severely injuring her jaw and things like that tend to influence Academy voters. Particularly if they are thinking Jaws as best movie.

Maximillian Schell and Al Pacino have both been to the winner's circle before and are strong contenders but the sleeper could be James Whitmore for his strong performance as Harry Truman.

Among the women, Glenda Jackson is a perennial nominee and is always difficult to beat. Isabelle Adjani and Carol Kane are newcomers.

The Times-CJVI contest is not open to employees of the two companies or their immediate families.

WESTERN EYEING $1M LOTTERY

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Western Canada Lottery Foundation announced Friday negotiations are under way for a million-dollar lottery to continue on a national basis after the Olympics.

The foundation said in a statement it would be similar to the Olympic lottery, which has a $10 ticket price, and revenue would go to the provinces on the basis of tickets sold.

"Nine provinces have agreed to this concept in principle and negotiations are being carried on with Quebec to ascertain their interest in the proposal," the statement said.

"Each province would determine its own spending priorities for the revenue. Under the proposed inter-provincial setup a board of directors representing the four regional lotteries would determine over-all policies."

Rollback Urged in Food Pact

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal Anti-Inflation Board Friday recommended a rollback of 1.4 per cent of the second year of the greater Vancouver area supermarket labor settlement.

The rollback would bring the settlement in the second year to about 10.5 per cent from 11.88 per cent.

The board did not touch the first year's percentage of 16.59 per cent.

Leaders of the meat cutters, retail clerks and Bakery workers unions said they would be taking the recommendation to their membership as soon as possible.

It is expected the meetings will take place a week from Sunday.

The anti-inflation board issued a statement on its recommendations after a two-hour meeting with supermarket employers and the union leaders in Vancouver.

The agreement between the B.C. Food Industry Labor Relations Council, representing the supermarkets, and the three unions runs from April, 1975 to March, 1977 and covers about 4,500 employees of 11 retail food marketing companies in the province.

The board said the settlement was based on the report of Clive McKee, an industrial inquiry commissioner appointed in January by then labor minister Allan Williams.

The agreements provide for increases in total compensation that exceed the federal wage and price guidelines by 5.2 per cent in the first year and 1.6 per cent in the second year.

The board said the settlement was substantially less than previous proposals made in June and July, 1975, when the food unions turned down an offer or more than 30 per cent in a year.

Russians Blast CBC

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet newspaper accused the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. today of waging a "cold war" against the Soviet Union and interfering in its internal affairs.

"If one judges by Radio Canada's Russian and Ukrainian language broadcasts, one can gather an idea that Canadian people are far from being peace-loving folks and good neighbors of the Soviet Union, but are acrimonious, grumpy, even aggressive foes," said Trud, a trade union daily.

According to Trud, the broadcasts showed a "a particularly touching consideration" for dissidents.

"They also gloat over individual critical articles in the Soviet press and try to interfere in the Soviet Union's internal affairs." The newspaper said the Canadian radio was "conducting a cold war on the airwaves, ignoring international agreements, and finally disregarding elementary requirements of journalistic ethics."

Trud cited the names of several persons said to be employees of the CBC, describing one as "a Nazi today," another as "a drunkard and a brawler" and a third as "a traitor to the motherland who abandoned his family and other relatives in pursuit of the sweet life abroad."

The attack on the CBC was one of several such articles in the Soviet press recently harshly criticizing Western Radio stations that broadcast to the Soviet Union.

FIREMEN ON THE RUN

An order for Chicken on the Run also got firemen on the run Friday night.

U.K. Jobless March

Lebanon Civil War Erupts Again

BEIRUT (AP) — Lebanon's civil war swept the country's summer resorts today amid police tales of renewed Moslem-Christian atrocities.

A Moslem delegation, including Premier Rashid Karami and parliament speaker Kamel Assad, left for Damascus seeking increased Syrian efforts to persuade Christian President Suleiman Franjieh to resign.

Their departure was shrouded in secrecy and only one hour after taken-off on a Syrian air force executive jet did officials leak the word about the trip.

A similar Syrian plane that was to have taken the Moslem mission to the Syrian capital Friday was shot at and set ablaze just before takeoff. The three delegates and a 28-man Syrian escort escaped unharmed.

Today's journey came after rockets, mortar rounds and heavy artillery shells roared over the republican palace in a night-long duel between leftist Moslem and right-wing militias.

Mutinous Moslem troops and loyalist Christian forces of Lebanon's 18,000-man regular army openly supported rival militiamen with tanks, armored cars and artillery, the spokesman said.

The main artillery exchanges raged between the tough mountain warriors of the Moslem Druze sect in Aley and the Beirut suburban garrison of Fayadieh, which handles the palace defence. The palace, four miles east of Beirut, is almost midway between Aley and Fayadieh.

The towns of Bickfaya, Dhourshouer and Beit-Mery — three holiday spots favored by free-spending summer vacationers of oil-rich Arab states — joined the battles, police said. The area on Mount Lebanon had been out of all previous rounds of fighting in Lebanon's sectarian conflict that claimed 12,000 lives by official count.

PLO Sets Killer Fire

NETANYA, Israel (UPI) — Palestinian guerrillas claimed responsibility today for a fire that raged through a eight-storey luxury hotel in this seacoast resort, trapping dozens of terrified tourists in rooms, halls and elevators.

Police said three persons were killed, 36 injured and an undetermined number missing in the five-hour blaze at the Park Hotel. Israel's national radio put the injured toll at 46.

Some of the injured, including several persons who jumped out of windows, were in serious condition.

Guerrilla sources in Beirut, Lebanon, said Palestinians placed explosives on the hotel's first, fourth and seventh floors.

"The attack was designed to retaliate for Israel's oppressive acts and recent campaign against the Palestinian people in the occupied territories," the sources said.

Meanwhile, Israeli troops moved against rioting Arab youths in three towns on the occupied West Bank of the River Jordan today and the Arab mayor of Hebron resigned in protest.

Sheik Ali Jaabri said he resigned as mayor because Israeli soldiers forced their way into the Hebron city hall to break up a disturbance.

Ombudsman For RCMP?

OTTAWA (CP) — Establishment of a federal police ombudsman with authority to review public complaints against the RCMP and report to Parliament on them is the chief recommendation of a commission of inquiry.

Judge Rene Marin of the Ontario County and District Courts says in his report, tabled Friday in the Commons, there was clear evidence of the demand for an independent reviewing authority, "particularly where public complaints are concerned."

The report says, however, that the RCMP commissioner must be left with direct responsibility and accountability for public complaints, along with discipline and grievance procedures within the force.

The ombudsman would not have the right to reverse decisions made by the RCMP.

Solicitor-General Warren Allmand, whose portfolio includes responsibility for the RCMP, said he favored the idea of an independent ombudsman.

On discipline within the force, the report says the commissioners felt a need to provide more safeguards for Mounties.

They recommended repeal of RCMP regulations which allow a Mountie to be jailed on the authority of commissioned officers.

Another recommendation is that a Mountie alleged to have committed a non-criminal charge no longer be required to give a statement.

Mounties should have the same rights to silence as other Canadians, the report says.

A third recommendation would allow a civilian lawyer to represent a Mountie before a service court. They now are allowed to be represented only by a fellow Mountie.

Mounties unhappy with how their cases were dealt with by the service court also could ask that the ombudsman review them.

Only Enough Money For 66%—Hospitals

As soon as hospitals in B.C. figure out how to turn 66 cents into a dollar they'll pay out the $4.5 million in anti-discrimination pay to female hospital workers, a hospital spokesman said Friday.

Chester Hooper, president of the Health Labor Relations Association, bargaining agent for B.C. hospitals, said the association has enough money to pay the 10,000 female workers two-thirds of the money they have going, or to pay two-thirds of the female workers all the money.

Tht 16,000-member Hospital Employees Union Friday threatened strike action at 99 B.C. hospitals by March 31 if the payments of $450 to the 10,000 people are not made.

The payments are to bring female workers in line with salaries paid male cleaners.

Hooper said most hospitals have not received enough money from the government to make the full payments and 'the alternative which we have taken is simply to wait until all the money is made available and then pay it out."

Four hospitals, including Port Alberni on Vancouver Island have already made the payments.

Hooper said the hopitals agreed to the anti-discrimination adjustments only on the understanding that the money would come from the health department.

Health Minister Bob McClelland said the $4.5 million was released by the cabinet several weeks ago.

Deputy Health Minister William Lyle said payments to the hospitals had been based on the number of employees provided for in approved budgets, rather than the number actually on staff.

Some hospitals had hired more or less staff than indicated in the budgets, resulting in discrepancies in their payments, he said.

The health department decided recently to cover part of the hospitals' operatinng deficits and Lyle said the decision is likely to have "quite an influence" on the payment of the anti-discrimination adjustments

Wrong Priority

TORONTO (CP) — Bringing the Canadian constitution home from Britain is not an important priority for Canada, Ontario Premier William Davis said Friday.

UVIC STUDENTS RALLY TO BLOOD BANK CRISIS

A week-long campaign for blood in Greater Victoria ended strongly at the University of Victoria Friday with 329 donors turning out to a clinic there.

It was the third daily clinic at UVic's Student Union Building and together they produced 1,032 donors, second biggest total from any series of clinics at the university, Red Cross spokesman Gerry Savage said today.

Biggest was in 1962 when 1,062 donors turned out.

The week, which began with a critical province-wide blood shortage, ended with supplies in the blood bank back to normal, said Savage. There were 1,696 donors in Greater Victoria over the week's clinics.

War 'Inevitable' In Rhodesia

LUSAKA (Reuter) — Zambia's two daily newspapers say war in Rhodesia is inevitable after the failure of constitutional talks between Prime Minister Ian Smith and black nationalist leader Joshua Nkomo.

"It is total war to the finish," says the government-owned Zambia Daily Mail in an editorial.

"A few days back, Africa had hoped ... for peaceful change. There is no no alternative but violent change. And when that violent change comes it is victor grabs all, and all fair play to the winds."

In Salisbury, Smith said today he does not "believe in black majority rule ever in Rhodesia — not in a thousand years."

"I believe in blacks and whites working together," Smith said. "If one day it is whites and the next day it is blacks I believe we will have failed and I believe it will be disaster for Rhodesia."

Smith told a news conference the day after the collapse of constitutional talks with Nkomo that he believes there should be a responsible majority government of black and white Rhodesians. He said he will continue to seek Britain's assistance in solving the matter.

Smith and Nkomo had met for about three months to try to agree on a formula to rule Rhodesia, where 274,000 whites govern 5.7 million blacks.

KING LISTS 'GIFTS' FOR SOCREDS

If Opposition leader Bill King had his way he'd present six of the Socred cabinet ministers with gifts, he said in the Legislature Friday.

At the top of his list was Education Minister Pat McGeer. King said he'd give him a pair of earmuffs "to protect him from the foreign bodies people have been telling him to stick in his ears," and a "shoehorn to help him extract his delicate foot from his mouth."

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm would, of course, receive a shovel.

"I have a large one, one so large I couldn't bring it into the house," King said.

Health Minister Bob McClelland would get a nice bright shiny new detective badge for his efforts sleuthing criminal activity in downtown Victoria which even the Victoria police know nothing about.

Labor Minister Alan Williams would be presented with his own padded stool so that labor leaders when they arrive could kneel and bow.

And to the old-time Socred MLAs who never made it into Bennett's cabinet, King said he'd give each a crying towel and a life-time membership in the Liberal party.

Profs' Pay Loophole Under AIB

TORONTO (CP) — Jean-Luc Pepin, chairman of the federal anti-inflation board, says control of university professors' incomes might be complicated by the fact that many of them hold second jobs.

Speaking at a conference Friday on collective bargaining in higher education, he gave examples of professors of medicine who have private practices and engineering and science professors who are consultants to government and industry.

Because the anti-inflation program is aimed at controlling compensation without discouraging productivity, such as overtime, Pepin said the board would be inclined to consider these cases as dual employment and might allow the guideline maximum increases of $2,400 a year for each job.

However, he said, the board has not yet considered any cases involving faculty wage contracts.

Funeral Monday Of Ex-Fireman

Funeral service will be held Monday for a veteran Victoria fireman who was once cited for bravery by city council after the hair-raising rescue of a woman from a downtown rooftop.

Karl M. Mills, 75, of 1510 Fairfield Rd., died Thursday at Gorge Road Hospital following a lengthy illness. A lifelong resident of Victoria, he retired as a captain in the city fire department in 1960 after 35 years service.

Capt. Mills was one of three firemen honored by city council for their part in rescuing a mentally-ill woman from the roof of a city department store April 18, 1932.

The woman was hanging by her fingers from a ledge below the roofline. Mills reached her by having two firemen lower him while holding onto his ankles.

In September of 1942 he was given leave of absence to join the Canadian Corps of Firefighters in England and he served in Plymouth until the end of the war.

Mills is survived by his wife, Annie; two daughters, Mrs. J. (Carol) Bartlett and Mrs. W. (Jean) Heagle, both of Victoria; a sister, Mrs. Lydie Hansen of Victoria, a step-brother, Tom Saunders of California and seven grandchildren.

The funeral Monday at 1:15 p.m. is at McCall Brothers Chapel, Johnson and Vancouver Streets.

Newman Named

TORONTO (CP) — Saturday Night magazine announced Friday the appointment of Christina Newman as executive editor. She was associate editor of Maclean's magazine from 1970 to 1974 and since 1974 has been a national reporter for Toronto Globe and Mail.

90,000 More Prints

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP added 90,000 fingerprints to its files in the year ended March 31, 1975, but only 20 criminals were identified by fingerprints left at the scene of a crime.

The information was contained in Solicitor-General Warren Allmand's latest annual report on his department. It was tabled in the commons Friday.

The report said the RCMP still had more than one million active criminal records on file although the number had been cut by some 200,000 from the previous year.

It had met 577,271 requests from "legitimate users," police forces or government agencies, for such files.

The force's commercial crime branch opened nearly 3,000 new investigations in 1974, including frauds valued at $189.5 million. They engaged in 1,159 prosecutions, recovering $6.3 million.

"At the end of 1974, approximately $27.5 million worth of stolen or missing securities remained outstanding in Canada," the report said.

It said Southeast Asia has replaced Europe as the main source of heroin. The number of heroin addicts in Canada was approaching 20,000 "and there are few large urban centres not infected with heroin abuse."

Cocaine was arriving from South America and growing in popularity among Canadians, although marijuana and hashish still led the parade. The number of drug offences grew by 4.6 per cent to 30,476 in 1974 as RCMP concentrated on importers and traffickers rather than users.

Lad's $100,000 Not for Dad

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — The parents of 10-year-old Judd Smoke will not be allowed to claim any of the $100,000 their son won in Thursday night's Wintario lottery draw, the deputy director of the Ontario minor guardian's office said Friday.

Lloyd Perry said the money would be placed in trust with the Supreme Court of Ontario, collecting nine per cent compound interest, until the boy is 18.

The parents would have to make application for any withdrawals, said Perry, but such money would have to be for the boy's maintenance, such as dental work and education.

The parents would not be allowed to use the money for anything that did not benefit the boy.

"These laws are for the protection of minors against adults, including parents, who might misuse the funds," he said.

Even if Judd had given his parents the ticket, the money would still belong to him, said Perry.

Judd, a Grade 5 student, won the Wintario ticket on a CKPT radio contest called Kid Stuff.

Earlier Friday, Clayton Smoke, Judd's father, said he intended to finish off a log cabin he is building, pay mortgages, buy a new truck, pay off debts to friends, and buy the children anything they want.

Smoke, 37, is a self-employed laborer who has been off work since October when a log fell on his arm, paralysing it. The family has been living on unemployment insurance benefits.

Judd, who is asthmatic, said he wants to buy a trail bike with his winnings.

The Smoke family has been discussing the legal aspects of the win with their lawyer, Barry MacDougall, who has discussed the situation with Wintario officials.

Woody Howard, president of Kawartha Cup International and distributor of Wintario tickets in the Peterborough area, said today there appears to be the possibility of a legal battle.

TRAVELEERS CLUB of British Columbia (Victoria Branch) will have their first meeting at the Princess Louise Room at the Empress Hotel at 2:00 p.m. Sunday, March 28th. Films to be shown are "All Seasons Greece" and "Land of the Chief," a beautiful film on B.C. narrated by Chief Dan George.

This is a club for people interested in travel and was established in Vancouver in 1960.

A Political Event

It is unusual in politics for a top-rank cabinet minister to resign, then wait eight months to give his resignation speech, even more unusual for the media to take much notice of such old news. But then not every retired politician is named John Turner.

Clearly, his speech this week to the Ontario Economic Council, an advisory agency funded by the Ontario government, was a political event of the first magnitude.

The address contained much sensible, useful advice, things that others have been saying for years now — government spending is growing too fast, social programs such as medicare and unemployment insurance must be tightened up, the price of oil should go up immediately to world levels, there is no such thing as a free lunch — nothing too surprising.

What is surprising is that Turner should say these things now. Politically, the speech is a not very subtle way of distancing himself from the crew now in control of the nation's economy. He rebuts head-on some of Prime Minister Trudeau's favorite theories, particularly his New Year's thoughts on the so-called new society and the need for continued controls and extensive government intervention in the economy.

"No one has convinced me there is an alternative system that would work better, while preserving the economic and political freedom we now enjoy," said Turner at one point in the speech, after carefully arguing against economist John Kenneth Galbraith's theory — publicly espoused by the PM — that big government is needed to control big business and labor unions.

"What kind of an economic system do we have? Is it essentially a market system? Is it dominated by a few large corporations and unions that do not respond to market forces. Galbraith states that the market system is now defunct. I do not agree. This is not to deny the importance of large corporations, nor do I wish to deny that many industries are dominated by a small number of firms . . ."

Ah, yes, but then what else could a brand-new director of Canadian Pacific (estimated assets $6 billion) be expected to say on the subject?

Another point to ponder is that Turner presided, from 1972 to 1975, over the very developments he now criticizes, the rapid growth in federal government spending, for example. During his 3½-year tenure as finance minister he may have been bound by the doctrine of cabinet secrecy and solidarity but after June last year, he was free to speak his mind.

Remember that his departure sparked a crisis of confidence in the government and the Canadian economy. A clear elucidation of his ideas then — such as made before the Ontario Economic Council this week — might have helped greatly to define a better anti-inflation policy. He enjoyed considerable influence inside the civil service, government ranks and in the country at large; he does still.

But he kept silent until now, when he is only a "private citizen." John Turner was a track star in his university days. It's clear he's lost none of the old skill at fancy footwork. It's also clear that he's settled in for a long distance run at something more than a quiet career of corporate law.

Pearse-Tansley Syndrome

Two instances don't make a trend, but two small news items relating to federal and provincial government spending are so amazing that they deserve widespread praise and recognition.

We refer to Peter Pearse, the one-man British Columbia royal commission on forestry, and Donald Tansley, administrator of the federal anti-inflation guidelines (the man who carries the big stick to back up Jean-Luc Pepin's sweet talk).

Are you sitting down? Good. What is amazing about each man is not that they have performed their duties well, but that each came in way under budget. Tansley was allotted $298,000 to establish his office during the remainder of the 1975-76 fiscal year, but he has $198,000 left in the bank. Pearse, whose year-long investigation was budgeted at $275,000, spent just $150,000 — remarkably cheap for a royal commission which held numerous hearings all over the province.

Spread the word, Pearse and Tansley. How did you do it? Infect others in federal and provincial public service with the secret. Clearly such conduct is so exemplary and so extraordinary, we hereby nominate both men for the Order of Canada first class for public service above and beyond the civil servants' job description manual.

It's on the Houses Or So to Speak

When elected officials accept free rides from vested interest groups they demean themselves, their office, and the process which elected them.

Neither Victoria Mayor Mike Young nor his Saanich counterpart, Ed Lum, are ignorant men. Conflict of interest is a term they understand. Yet both mayors allowed the Victoria Real Estate Board — a respectable organization in itself — to fly them to Scottsdale, Arizona, on a junket of doubtful practical value.

Such epiphanies they learned too! A convention centre would be economic folly in Victoria. New efficient ways to pick up garbage exist.

Garbage, all right. The same revelations could be obtained in a letter with a ten-cent stamp.

Yet when several reporters and broadcasters suggested free rides for mayors weren't cricket, Victoria Real Estate Board president Eric Charman reacted indignantly, as did the mayors.

The very thought that such good men would be influenced by a free jet flight . . . and blah, blah, blah. Every time a local pooh-bah stumbles, he inevitably reacts by ridiculing those who would criticize his action. It's the time-honored technique of discrediting the opposition with a classy sneer.

Remember Health Minister Marc Lalonde's flight to Israel aboard a Seagram corporation jet? The new minister almost lost his job over that stupid indiscretion.

Yet when the issue is at our back door, a tendency exists to gloss it over. No angry House of Commons is asking embarrassing questions. Victoria and Saanich councils are so milquetoast members don't appear to see the impropriety of such trips by their chief magistrate. They just dream away in their tight little communities on a tight little island.

Perhaps the real estate board president is correct when he says much has been achieved in terms of promoting Victoria and learning ideas that could be applied to Vancouver Island.

If Victoria must be marketed like a bathroom tissue, the real estate board is more than able, without appending elected officials to commercial interests. Certain Scottsdale ideas such as tertiary sewage plants could be applied to Victoria and environs, if only we had the money of the wealthy Arizona community.

In the main, though, it would be hard to find two more dissimilar communities. Climate-wide the desert city has slightly more than seven inches of rain each year. The average year-round temperature is more than 70 degrees Fahrenheit. Incomes average more than $15,000 per annum in the area.

Construction techniques are very different in Scottsdale. So are attitudes. Like medieval city states, subdivisions are walled and carefully guarded by armed security patrols. As one winter resident says, before they build anything they put up a fence.

About the only thing our two communities have in common is a high percentage of retired people and a surfeit of greedy developers. A common bumper sticker in the Scottsdale area proclaims the following: "Land Fraud: Arizona's Number One Industry."

It might be said the mayors could learn a lot of what not to do by visiting the desert city.

Having just returned from Scottsdale — at my own expense I hasten to add — the negative aspects of this sprawling community remain freshly in mind.

From the real estate point of view, it's a model community. All that land stretching ad infinitum into fertile desert, just waiting to be reshaped, packaged and watered to accommodate masses of sun-seekers. From a local point of view it is a madhouse of walled paranoia inviting comparisons with Orwell's vision of 1984.

If the justification for the mayor's trip on the basis of similar communities is partially a sham, it is still not the main issue here.

The mayors of Victoria and Saanich, not to mention a few reporters, compromised themselves in accepting this free trip. In the case of the reporters they have accepted gifts from an organization they write about. In the case of the mayors, the damage is more than personal.

By lending their names and positions to this kind of thing, they in effect put Victoria and Saanich in bed with the Victoria Real Estate Board.

Suddenly He's Appreciated

LONDON — The man who turned the British Labor party into what he called "the natural party of government" is leaving his post as party leader and prime minister with an abruptness that has shocked the country and saddened many of his supporters.

The vague feeling of loss in Britain is widely shared and emphasized by the fact that he goes of his own free will and not with what one Welsh Labor MP graphically called "any knives in his back whatsoever."

A leading stockbroker said on BBC radio:

"It may seem odd but the City is rather sad to see Harold Wilson go."

He was referring to the square-mile financial district in the centre of London.

His reasoning was that financial people respected him for having brought off the feat of applying a $12-a-week limit on wage increases and thus stopping the inflation spiral. He said there had been strong financial confidence that Wilson would have got the unions to agree to a new wage restraint policy this summer.

The economic situation in general is the reason for the disquiet felt in some quarters that Wilson should go at this moment.

No Right Moment

There are no obvious reasons why he should leave now but as Ron Hayward, head of the Labor party organization said: "There is no moment when it is just right for a leader to step down."

Wilson told a press conference that he regards this as "hinge period" in which inflation has begun to fall, the pay restraint policy is working well, but much work remains before Britain gets out of its economic trough.

"It is my view," he said, "that my successor should be in post now, to impose his or her style and to work out the strategy for the remaining years of this parliament."

The parliamentary Labor party has already met and decided that nominations for the leadership will close next Monday and that the first ballot will take place next Thursday.

The 317 Labor MPs will choose the leader by secret ballot.

If a second ballot is needed it will take place March 30 and if a fourth ballot is needed it will be held on April 5.

For almost negative reasons the favorite candidate is Foreign Secretary James Callaghan, who has strong trade union ties and few enemies in the party. At 64, he has been without ambition for the top job for the last three years but once sought it with single-minded ruthlessness.

He has held the three major government jobs, foreign secretary, chancellor of the exchequer and home secretary, and ran third in the 1963 leadership race won by Harold Wilson with George Brown second.

His serenity and elder statesman aura since Labor came to power again in March, 1974 have kept him outside party squabbles and in general party respect.

The other likely candidates are flawed in different ways. But the suddenness of Wilson's going guarantees that several will at least think of throwing their hats in the ring.

Whoever wins, it will be hard for the winner or any other party leader to equal in this century Harold Wilson's record of four election victories.

HAROLD WILSON
. . . says goodbye at 60

His 3,000-word resignation statement to cabinet pointed out that, at 60, he has been party leader for 13 years, nearly eight of them in government. In 31 years in parliament he has been on the opposition or government front bench for almost 30 years and almost 11½ years in cabinet.

He also noted that he had presided over "472 cabinets and thousands of cabinet committees; I have answered more than 12,000 parliamentary questions."

His skill in handling the quarrelsome wings of the party has been one of his major achievements and his ability to get the party into power between 1964 and 1970 and 1974 until now was the basis for his fervent claim at last fall's party conference in Blackpool that Labor was now one of the natural parties of government, not just a hiccup between stretches of Conservative rule.

Conservative leader Margaret Thatcher asked Wilson in the House of Commons if an election would soon be called to give the new leader the backing of the country, or otherwise.

But Wilson probably spoke truly when he said there would be no election and added, to enormous cheers: "I'm not sure she's all that keen on it either."

No election is necessary until 1979.

The election of 1945 that brought in what the Sunday Times has called one of the greatest reforming administrations of any century, also brought in Harold Wilson, a brilliant economist with a good reputation in private industry and a glittering future in the party.

Two years later he was the youngest government minister as president of the board of trade.

Through the long 13 years of opposition after 1951, when Churchill was returned to power, he held a series of shadow cabinet posts and had the party following to take the leadership in 1963 after Hugh Gaitskell died.

Accomplished Politician

When he became prime minister the following year he was the youngest prime minister since Pitt the Younger.

After helping to steer the party through its destructive debates over nuclear disarmament and nationalization, he gave it the self-confidence to push through a Conservative party dispirited and weakened by the Profumo scandal and seize power by a parliamentary fingernail.

After his heavy election victory of 1966 he steered the party through a fierce argument over legal controls of unions, through two switches of policy over British membership of the European Common Market, four more years of opposition and two rumbustious years of government in a nonstop atmosphere of economic crisis.

It may be that Harold Wilson has decided to quit while he is ahead.

As he goes, the judgment in this superb party manager passed by Edward Du Cann, chairman of the 1922 Committee (all the Conservative backbench MPs), on the shattering morning of March 1, 1974 when his party realized it had lost the election, remains valid.

Said Du Cann: "Mr. Wilson is the most accomplished politician of our generation."

Scottsdale Trip

How can a person (letter, Arizona Trip from Dwight Hudson Jr., Times March 13) who claims to have lived in Scottsdale, Ariz. suggest that it is a high rise concrete jungle? In fact there are no high rises in Scottsdale. The tallest building is a dormitory on the University of Arizona campus and that's in Tempe. By far the vast majority of Scottsdale's buildings are ground level, with a few two-storey and fewer still three-storey buildings.

This same individual suggests that there is a conflict of interest in our mayor's discussing buildings, bylaws, land and civic affairs with realtors and their counterparts in Arizona. This is tantamount to suggesting that they should not discuss laws with lawyers, medical services with doctors and education with teachers. One can only hope that the majority of people will recognize the good that can accrue from an interchange of ideas and an opportunity to compare methods and procedures with other parts of the world.

How a person could be so presumptuous as to state that the Victoria Real Estate Board as a body is opposed to zoning bylaws is beyond comprehension. Nothing could be further from the truth. The real estate board is totally concerned with the orderly and proper development of the city of Victoria and surrounding municipalities. It has repeatedly offered its expertise and knowledge to all levels of government, in a fervent desire to help create a better living environment. We plead for members of the public to respect the integrity of those elected officials who attempt through a process of education to increase their knowledge and efficiency in their field of public responsibility. — B. Highton, Victoria.

Spanish Armadas

The political party system has developed into a giant, immovable, unproductive, unrepresentative Spanish armada type of structure. It is only human nature to take a simple problem and in time develop it into a complicated and complex situation. So from time to time it is necessary in all phases of our lives to bust up these Spanish armada situations, whether they be of a personal nature, business or in politics.

The reduction to simplicity in this case would be to dissolve the political party system as we know it.

It would be replaced by a system where smaller districts draft just and competent residents to run by popular vote and on current issues.

This would result in representation being more closely tied in with people and issues, not back door deals, patronage, party politics and loud, well-organized, minority pressure groups. — Robert Lynn Henshaw, 3435 Yorkshire Place.

Innocent Slaughter

One has to have the greatest admiration for the crusading members of the Greenpeace Foundation in their valiant efforts to protect the baby seals off the coast of Newfoundland — even at the risk of their own lives. We have far too few heroic, dauntless members in our society willing to take on a humane challenge such as that.

Now I would like to see these very dedicated protectors of the baby seals take on as their next project, and with the same zeal, the abolition of the "slaughter of the innocents" that is being carried out daily in a great number of our hospitals in Canada — namely, the butchery of human babies. Surely they are worth the same zealous protection as are the babies of the supposedly lesser species, seals and whales. — A Mother of Six, Victoria.

Gun Control

There must be many Canadians, like myself, who are neither gun-owners nor "anti-hunter," but are very concerned over the current controversial gun-control legislation. Hateful though government intervention is, we are wondering what alternative is available, when we consider the following:

In the media, most spokesmen for the gun lobby appear to be of the Archie Bunker type, accusing those who disagree with their views as "pinko," commie, or "some kind of nut." We feel that the majority of sportsmen are not in this category, but in the absence of more rational arguments put forward on their behalf, we are left wondering. Certainly, the Archie Bunkers of this world would appear to be the least responsive to self-discipline in weapon-handling.

Gun merchants, who by their laxness in securing handguns, present criminals with irresistable temptations to pull off a heist, are howling loudly that their civil liberties will be curtailed. Again, the question of fitness to deal in weapons arises.

With depressing regularity, we read of emotionally unstable characters, frustrated by some petty annoyance, rushing home to pick up their rifle or shotgun which they empty into some innocent bystander. Do gun-owners seriously maintain that reducing these possibilities would be infringements of a psychopath's civil liberties? — W. J. Bloomberg, 1061 Erindale Place.

Seal Killings

The picture on the front page of your newspaper March 16, showing the mother seal mourning over the bloody remains of her cub, should engender feelings of revulsion in anyone with a spark of compassion. A natural reaction, of course, is to blame the seal hunters who must be completely callous and insensitive to be able to perform their grisly task.

However, I wonder how many thousands of women, after expressing dismay over such pictures, proceed to go merrily on their way, clad in their prized status symbol — a fur coat?

In the final analysis, it is really up to the women of the world to stop the slaughter of baby seals and other fur bearing animals — without their co-operation there can never be an end to it. — Valerie Melville, 500 Transit Road.

Time to Stop Wasting our Wastes

By DERRICK MALLARD

(Mallard is president of the local Citizens' Association to Save the Environment)

A quick run through local newspapers during past months shows: "Clover Point sewage outfall pipe extension estimated to cost $8,000,000." "Engineering costs for Clover Point outfall pipe extension to date (January, 1976) stand at about $412,000." "McAulay Point holding tanks and pumping system approved by Capital Regional District at $32,000." "Garbage collection service cut to reduce costs." "Shortage of water on Saanich peninsula, farmers complaining." "Agricultural fertilizer costs rising by 200-300 per cent — food to cost more."

Our methods of handling wastes have not improved since Roman times. Victoria's raw sewage has been dumped into the Strait since 1894 and such antiquated methods will, it seems, continue to prevail.

For thousands of years the Chinese have returned their crop residues, human and other organic wastes to the land as fertilizers. These wastes, together with alluvial mud swept down by the rivers and canals, have enabled the Chinese to support high density populations of up to five persons per acre, compared to western needs of two acres per person. The Chinese and other Asian peoples continue this procedure without the soil fertility and structure breaking down.

In the United Kingdom, more than 40 per cent of all the sludge generated from sewage treatment plants is applied directly to agricultural land to enhance its fertility. Furthermore, many of these plants utilize the sewage gases as a source of operating energy.

Numerous plants have been established in Britain to retrieve wastes for re-use and additionally compost the organic wastes with sewage sludge. The compost is then sold for return to the soil as a soil conditioner and fertilizer.

Since 1955, when it was first built, a plant at Worthing, England, has retrieved 115,979 tons of waste material for a return of $1,612,800. Total returns from waste retrieval and compost sales have, during the past eight years, covered all costs of retrieval plus part of the costs of garbage collection. Such economic returns have benefited the community. Additionally, since most of the waste material is re-used, land required for garbage fill is negligible.

The new waste retrieval-composting plant at Wanlip in Leicestershire, serving a population equivalent to the Capital Regional District, has the capacity to handle 300 tons of garbage daily. In 1974, the plant handled 900 tons per week and produced 30 tons of compost weekly.

Compost from these various plants is sold to farmers, horticulturalists and gardeners, providing an economic and practical return to the community. The demand for compost from the composting plants at Kirkconnel and Locherbie in Scotland apparently exceeds the plants' outputs.

Composting plants exist in many other countries — including France, Germany, Holland, and the U.S.

Composting produces a dark brown-black humus material containing various chemicals, mineral elements, and organic materials to assist soil fertility. When compost is applied to the soil the humus content is increased; this permits the growth and maintenance of small organisms that are so necessary for healthy soil and ultimate plant growth. Soil aeration is also significantly increased, which assists plant growth. Additionally, the soil's water retention is improved (up to 30 per cent), with obvious soil benefits and economic advantages. Furthermore, increased water retentivity reduces the run-off of soil nutrients.

Although the amounts of chemical nutrients contained in compost may not satisfy all the needs of intensive agriculture, the available nutrients can and do reduce the gross quantities of fertilizers used; that is, the fertilizers derived from oil and gas, which are now fast dwindling resources and subject to increasing prices.

Municipal waste retrieval and sewage composting, together with sewage plant liquid effluent for irrigation purposes, appear to be logical and beneficial to the community. The economic long-term advantages also benefit the community.

In the Greater Victoria area more than 20 million gallons of raw sewage are flushed into surrounding seawater every day, thereby polluting these waters and the inter-tidal beaches. More than 400 tons of garbage are dumped into the Saanich Hartland Road land fill every day. A great amount of this could be re-used.

As the population increases by 75 per cent (as planned) in the next 25 years, solid waste generation may well reach 1,000 tons per day. An increased quantity of sewage will also have to be dealt with.

Despite the obvious need for a sensible ecological approach to wastes, the engineering report to the Capital Regional District on waste management (April, 1974) recommends expanding land fill sites to accommodate all this garbage. The report suggests either incineration or grinding and baling the garbage to reduce volume prior to land-filling. Composting was dismissed in the report because, "after consideration of the disposal requirements of the Capital Regional District it was obvious that the cost of the composting operation was extra to the basic components required of all the other schemes and no major advantages accrued from the production of compost."

Despite these blinkered engineering approaches, the following facts must be considered:

1. An increasing cost component of food production stems from the rising prices of fertilizers derived from dwindling non-renewable resources. Therefore using more organic wastes to enhance soil fertility is most necessary.

2. Land for land-fill operations is becoming more costly. Reducing this requirement lessens the load on taxpayers.

3. Re-cycling waste materials conserves resources and provides a tangible financial return to the community.

4. The need to conserve water is most apparent; consequently in the long-term approach increasing soil humus content by using compost will assist such conservation.

The need to adopt a new ethic toward our wastes which are really valuable resources has not yet been accepted by provincial and local governments. The antediluvian mentality persists of viewing garbage disposal, sewage disposal, water supply and soil conditioning as separated functions.

In Age of Fuzzy Speech Funkiness is Next to Godliness

By WILLIAM SAFIRE

(Safire is a columnist for the New York Times. This article is taken from a speech to the American Association of School Administrators)

I want to bring into sharp focus a very blurred subject. I want to talk about a danger that should be troubling everyone in the media, in education and in politics.

The danger is rampant, suffocating fuzziness. Fuzziness in the way we express ourselves, fuzziness in the way we educate our children, fuzziness in the way we make our political choices.

I suggest that this fuzziness is closely related, and is spreading. I want to show how it exists in my field, the world of words; how it has insidiously worked its way into your schools; and how it is now billowing out across the landscape of political ideas. Then, because I am an optimist and because I believe in precision, I will suggest how, together, we can launch a counterattack.

The other day I was looking at my 11-year-old son's report card. The first thing I looked for, of course, was "English:" that's what pulled me through at the Bronx High School of Science 30 years ago. But there wasn't any category named "English;" instead, as my son patronizingly explained, he studied "language arts" or "language skills."

Why the snazzy new name? I could understand it if the category dealt with several languages or a course in linguistics, but it turned out my son was taking one part of one language: English grammar.

I suggest that the first word they should study in "language arts" is "euphemism." Perhaps there is some excuse for a garbageman wanting to call himself a "waste disposal engineer," but why should a teacher of English want to pose as a language artist? That's the work of a con artist (or, as they say in school, a student of the confidence arts).

Too many of us, in our common parlance, take part in this drift toward fuzziness. We no longer speak of a "way of life" or a "mode of dress," but we lump them together into a vogue word like "lifestyle." We do not ask where we are, but where we are at: The edges of our moments blur into "time frames." Maybe this is because we have learned the ambiguous language of testimony, from the land of to-the-best-of-my-recollection.

Our vogue words are vague words. Funkiness is next to godliness, perhaps because its meaning varies. We are afflicted, in this age of fuzziness, with the response of feeling rather than the response of understanding. Let me give an example: About 10 years ago the standard response to everything was "fantastic." As that murmured answer became popular, it was replaced by "beautiful." Today the standard response — which only means "I'm here, I'm listening" — is "terrific." "I'll take a walk, right?" "Terrific." The word is not a word, it is an approved sound to express not a thought but one's presence in the room. A simple grunt would be a better use of language.

When we debase the meaning of specific words, we file down the currency of accurate communication. The difference between vaguely "indicating" and firmly pointing is the difference between pettifoggery and pedagogery . . .

I don't want to sound too much like an old Agnew speech, which I probably wrote, but it seems to me that our school system encouraged a lot of this fuzziness. In the misguided bloom of egalitarianism, in the desire to encourage self-expression, too many educators did away with the necessary discipline of direction.

Were too many students suffering from those repressive bad grades? Don't flunk them out — end the grading system, or inflate it to death. Were people being denied higher education because they were subjected to inferior lower education? Then open up the system, never penalize the unqualified student.

I'm not suggesting we "get tough" or rap knuckles; I am suggesting we set standards and make demands and begin at the root of communication: English.

In our language, at home and in school, the creeping fuzziness creeps on. What about the political arena? Surely there we demand specific ideas from articulate men and women.

Alas, the fuzz is on the political cheek as well. Even in little ways, like mixed metaphors.

In New Hampshire just the other day, President Ford wanted to make the point that he was in the primary campaign to stay. He told his audience: "I'll be in this game right up until the whistle is blown." Now, he's a former football player. He ought to know that you blow the whistle at the start of the game. So what he said was that he was in the game right up until it started. It's the wrong metaphor all around. At the end of the game, the gun goes off, and he could not very well say, "I'm in the game until the gun goes off;" he would scare hell out of the Secret Service.

Because I want to be bipartisan today, I should say that the Democratic frontrunner, Jimmy Carter, also tends toward fuzziness. He is a former peanut farmer, and what he says tends to stick to the roof of your mouth . . .

The other day candidate Carter looked dreamily out over his audience and informed them: "The future lies ahead." There's a promise a politician can keep. It's not the lying in the future that's the problem, it's the lying in the present. But quite properly, former Governor Carter is giving "The Speech," the same well-rehearsed pitch at every stop. It has two endings, each suitably fuzzy. One is the "love" ending: There is this vast reservoir of love in the American psyche; just waiting to be tapped, and what we need is a man who can help love sweep the country.

There's a word for this in the political lexicon: "Bomfog." When Nelson Rockefeller used to talk of the "Brotherhood of Man, the Fatherhood of God," the reporters would just scribble the initials: B.O.M.F.O.G. The other Carter ending to "The Speech" is the "Trust Me" ending. He looks hard into every eye in the room, a good trick if you can do it, and he says, "When I'm president, there's one thing you can be sure of — I'll never lie to ya."

That is quite effective, because it plays upon distrust of all politicians. Trust is an interesting word. Trust and truth have the same etymology: They are rooted in the Anglo-Saxon word for tree; and the essential meaning is stability, order. To stress this theme is good demagogery: Not many people stop the anti-politician to say, "You cannot ask for trust, you have to earn it." Too many people prefer the bomfog of the man without a program who pretends not to be in politics . . .

My point is this: fuzziness in language, practised in the home and in the school, has encouraged fuzziness in the political discourse, and even a new vagueness and lack of sharp contrast in political thought. Before a politician can be asked if he means what he says, he has to say what he means.

What can we do about it? First, in our schools, I think we should put a new emphasis on English — not "language arts" or "communications skills," but straight talk and plain, clear writing.

We can awaken interest in language by exploring with students the slang that's in action today. Nothing is wrong with informal speech, as long as you know when to use it, and know to what specific, precise use it's being put.

Second, we ought to reinforce a new emphasis on language, our war on fuzziness in the home . . . Parents must be enlisted in the crusade for articulation. Their job is not just to tell their kids to sit up straight and do their homework, but to work with teachers in discovering how to communicate verbally, and how to rediscover the lost art of writing a letter.

Third, career education fits into this accent on precision. I know there are educators who insist that this is a terrible trend toward vocational training at an early age, and who say we must let our children be children. The answer to that is to let our children be people. Economics is a fact of real life, and young people do well to learn about the dignity of work, and the discipline careers demand, fairly early.

Why Do They Sing While on the Wing?

STRAY FEATHERS
harold hosford

There is something about birds that sing
on the wing,
from high
in the sky.
Why?

Over the whine of an idling DC9, a faint tinkling note drifted down from overhead. It was, appropriately enough, a Skylark. I knew it was a Skylark without seeing the bird because Skylarks are the only birds likely to be heard singing from the sky over Pat Bay Airport.

Once the DC9 got its clearance and was off for wherever DC9s get clearance to, I found that there were at least three Skylarks holding forth over that little corner of the airport. For a long time I couldn't find them but three different voices, coming from three different directions, led me to conclude that three birds were involved.

Elementary, my dear Watson?

Not that elementary; Skylarks — or any other kind of bird that sings from a high, blue, cloudless sky — are often hard to spot against the featureless vault above. Not only are the birds themselves well-nigh invisible but their songs seem to have a ventriloqual quality that leaves their direction open to speculation.

But these three were persistent. I was able to locate all of them before each ended its performance with that spectacular plummeting dive that is the trade mark of the Skylark.

But, having found each songster, I was repeatedly surprised to discover that each bird when located was much lower than the direction and volume of its song seemed to indicate. So, another of those little mysteries that plague naturalists from time to time, goes into my note book. Why does the sound of the song of a bird, singing high in the sky, seem to be coming from higher than the bird actually is?

I leave the answer to that question to some acoustical expert, and I hope he never tells me what the answer is because half the fun of listening to birds on the wing (for me anyway) is the happy frustration of not being able to find the singer.

But there is another question about birds that sing on the wing and it relates to my earlier little experiment in doggerel; why do birds sing on the wing?

Actually, I could be more specific and say: Why do some birds sing on the wing habitually and not from the usual perches used by most birds? I could go a step farther and separate the songsters from "Heaven's Gate" from those more earthbound types that only occsionally flutter a few feet into the air to utter an ebullient version of the song they usually reserve for perched presentations.

To be quite specific, I mean those Old World larks — the Skylark for example — and our only native North American lark, the horned Lark, and a less familiar bird of the plains; Sprague's Pipit.

All are birds of open, essentially treeless country; the Skylark, of deserts, moors, sand dunes and extensive pastures; the Horned Lark, of tundra, beach and alpine meadow; and the pipit of the short-grass prairie.

While Horned Larks and Skylarks occasionally do sing from the ground, they are at their best high in the sky. Sprague's Pipit reserves all its vocal endeavors from the Heavenly stage.

So why this peculiar specialization? Could it be an adaptation for life in a treeless environment? I'd be willing to wager a dinar or two on that!

Trees or, for that matter, all high perches, are important to many species of birds as places from which they can sing to advertise their presence — either to attract a mate or to warn potential interlopers. And in country where there are no trees what better way to solve the problem than by simply mounting high in the sky, holding your position by hovering, and creating your own high perch.

We can carry the sky-perch analogy a step farther and liken the post-song plunge of the Skylark to the cover-seeking plunge made by many arboreal songsters after they have completed a round or two of songs.

This is all pure speculation, of course, but safe speculation. After all, who can prove you're wrong?

Deflating the Myths About Spare Tires

NEW YORK (NYT) — The spare tire is nearing the end of the road.

An energy-conscious Detroit has sent the word to Akron, Ohio, home of the giant tire companies, to come up with a realistic substitute for the 60 pounds of tire and tools that motorists now drag along with them.

"If we could somehow remove the spare and jack from every car in America today," Elliott Estes, president of the General Motors Corporation, said in Akron recently, "we estimate that one action — just eliminating that weight — would save nearly a million gallons of gasoline in this country every day.

No one in either city quite knows when this version will materialize — it may be five years or more — but there have already been a number of revolutionary developments, including:

- The minitire, a lightweight and small model resembling its motorcycle cousins that could be driven up to 3,000 miles. A collapsible version, filled by the motorist from an aerosol can is already in use.
- The self-sealing tire, which would contain sealants designed to plug punctures automatically. This concept was tried several years ago and failed.
- The run-flat tire, still only conceptual in its many different forms but based on the principle of eliminating the destructive friction between the flat tire and the wheel rim.

"The race is on among tire manufacturers to develop a tire which effectively resists small punctures and has the capability to run flat for some distance," W. H. Schmalz, president of Uniroyal Tire Company, said a few months ago.

Uniroyal has been concentrating on self-sealing tires and expects to introduce its Air Guard II this spring. However, the company concedes that the sealant will not plug all leaks, requiring a spare to be carried. Uniroyal has also unveiled a crude warning system to alert the motorist to low tire pressure, but the device will have to be refined before it is marketed.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company is rethinking its Lifeguard Safety Spare, which was marketed from 1956 until the early 60s. The concept then was a "tire-within-a-tire" so that if there was a puncture the small inner tire would stay inflated. But sometimes both tires burst, so Goodyear now plans to make the inner "tire" out of a rigid plastic.

The B.F. Goodrich Company pioneered the inflatable spare in 1967, but then had to recall a million of them because motorists sometimes overinflated them using service station hoses, causing failures. Goodrich says that the problem has been solved and has licensed the development to Goodyear.

Although these tires are about 25 per cent lighter their primary function is to save space. Detroit now includes them in a number of models, particularly "hatchbacks," such as the Chevrolet Vega.

To avoid the problems with self-inflation, the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company is excited about its "tempa-Spare," smaller in size and weight than the collapsible but fully inflated. Although both versions would run only 3,000 miles, Firestone's product offers slightly reduced performance.

Both of these concepts require a motorist with a flat to change his tire twice, but General Motors reports that the only adverse reaction it has had is that the aerosol can is difficult to use in cold weather.

As for cost, the only savings will be when the spare is eliminated. G.M. acknowledged that the collapsible spare cost more, but it would not say how much.

Youth Discouraged By Meaningless Jobs

VANCOUVER (CP) — High unemployment among youth is to a large degree caused by dissatisfaction with meaningless jobs, a United Way-sponsored study in Vancouver has fouhd.

At the same time young people find it difficult to hold jobs because they are "last hired and first fired," because they find it difficult to gain entry into labor unions and because they often leave school when they sense a stigma in being slotted into vocational programs.

While the unemployment rate for persons under 25 can be as much as three times that of the rest of the labor force, the figures would be still higher if they included young people who are too discouraged to look for work any longer and are not listed as unemployed, the study reports.

The three-month study on obstacles to the employment of youth in the Vancouver area was conducted under sponsorship of the United Way by two researchers who interviewed youthful workers and jobseekers.

The report says that youthful disaffection with work stems from a growing awareness that industrial work can be destructive to both the individual and society.

"Because a great deal of the work that is seen to be necessary is governed principally by the economic criteria of profit and efficiency, the principal purpose of work is production," it says.

"Consequently, the factories are built for efficiency and not to satisfy the creativity of the workers, who consequently do not care about their work and may become increasingly alienated from it."

The search for more meaningful work has roots in the campus activism of the 1960s, the report says, but while college students now are more career oriented, the college discontent of previous years has spread throughout society.

The researchers also found that when employers are faced with a tight economy the first to be laid off are the inexperienced and unskilled and these are often the young.

When the economy picks up, the jobs become available again but then these young and inexperienced workers find their jobs "do not satisfy their needs for work."

Labor unions are a problem, the report says, because many of them have purposely stiff entry regulations to keep down the number of their members and thus achieve greater bargaining power.

"The youth who knows the right people, or who know how to make the right friends, has more chance to secure the union membership that is necessary to get secure and well-paying employment."

More Yukon Rail Justified—Study

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Estimated traffic volumes of outbound forest and mine products would justify a northward extension of the current White Pass and Yukon railway, according to a study of future rail transportation requirements for the Yukon.

The completion of the study was announced by Transport Minister Otto Lang, Indian and Northern Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan and James Smith, commissioner of the Yukon Territory.

It was carried out by a team of consultants from Canadian Pacific Consulting Services Limited and Canadian National's Canalog Logistics Limited.

The study is entitled "A study of Railway Extension Alternatives in the Yukon Territory Based on Traffic Requirements to the year 2004."

The study noted that higher levels of traffic than were forecast would be required to justify an extension of the British Columbia Railway from its proposed terminas at Lower Post, British Columbia.

The study makes no recommendations. But it indicated that forecast traffic volumes of outbound forest and mine products compiled by the federal departments of Indian and Northern Affairs and Energy Mines and Resources would justify a northward extension of the current White Pass and Yukon railway.

The extension would realize savings in transportation costs in excess of the capital cost and provide benefits to governments, resource developers, trahsportation companies and residents of the Yukon, it found. But no single beneficiary could economically justify the investment on its own, the study concluded.

25% Reduction in Crime Police Goal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police authorities in B.C. are aiming at a 25 per cent crime reduction in the province during the next year, police commission chairman John Hogarth said Thursday.

The commission, RCMP and B.C.'s 12 municipal police forces are relying on better community-police relations to do the job, he told a service club luncheon.

Already, Hogarth said, there are encouraging results from several programs, including one in Delta aimed at juvenile crime and one in Burnaby aimed at break-ins.

Major reductions in crime depend on the recognition that the majority of offences are committed by persons known to the victim, he said.

"In an assault on a young child, we tend to think of a strange man enticing our son or daughter into a car—but it's more likely to be an uncle, a grandfather or a next-door neighbor," he said.

"I'm the last person who wants to take the heat off the professional criminals that do exist. But just remember that it's likely to be your next-door neighbor's kid who steals your car or breaks into your garage."

Hogarth said a high proportion of murders stem from domestic disputes and noted that 80 per cent of convicted murderers know their victims.

Police are reluctant to investigate family trouble because it is difficult to deal with and there is a high incidence of injury or death to police on such calls, he said.

"It's time that police got as much credit for resolving a family dispute — a potential homicide — as for apprehending someone breaking into a warehouse," he said.

Town 'Studied To Death'

PORT ALICE (CP) — Mayor George Lacey said Friday this town in northern Vancouver Island is being studied to death.

Lacey had just received an engineering study on what to do about Port Alice mud slides. The report, by Thurber Consultants Ltd. of Victoria, recommended four more studies, he said.

"There isn't time for more studies," Lacey said. "With our short summers we've got to get the work done while it's warm and dry."

The Thurber Report recommends that a model be set up to study the effect of diking and drainage ditches suggested as one solution to the mud slide problem.

Last November 600 persons — a third of the pulp mill community's population of 1,800 — were evacuated because of mud slides.

A similar slide in 1973 was followed by a report which recommended ditches. Another report, by the provincial highways department, said there was danger of more slides.

"We've got a stack of reports six inches thick, it's time something was done," Lacey said.

In Victoria, Ben Marr, deputy minister of the environment, said the Thurber report was needed to supplement the earlier reports.

"The whole thing is under review and that is all I can say on it," he said.

Victims Collect

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Workers' Compensation Board has awarded 28 people a total of $47,409 in February under the Criminal Compensation Injuries Act. Under the act, any victim of crime in British Columbia can apply for compensation from the board.

Women Sentenced

VANCOUVER (CP) — Martha Kathleen Dixon, 20, and Theresa Gloria Brewer, 18, were each sentenced to two years less a day definite and two years indeterminate terms by County Court Judge D. B. MacKinnon Friday after being convicted by a jury of robbery and assault causing bodily harm. Leroy Hill, 46, testified that the pair entered his Prince Rupert home and when he heard them and went to investigate, they confronted him with long-bladed knives and terrorized him for four hours.

B.C. Rail Idles Men

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Dave Gunderson, executive director of the North Cariboo Forest Labor Relations Association, says that more than 500 lay-offs have occurred in the forest industry between 100 Mile House and Fort Nelson because of the B.C. Railway strike, which began March 2.

Rewards Offered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rewards totalling $7,500 have been posted for information in the disappearance of Abby Drover, 12, of Port Moody, missing since March 12. Alex Dicimbriani, a Vancouver businessman, said Friday he would pay $2,500 to any person providing information on the girl's whereabouts and, if police suspicions of foul play are substantiated, pay $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the abductor.

FIRED MAN WINS

VANCOUVER (CP) — William Alexander Burton, 48, a former executive with MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., was awarded $35,014 in British Columbia Supreme Court Friday for wrongful dismissal.

Burton sued the forestry company after he was discharged Dec. 31, 1974, from his position as manager of the engineering service department, of MacMillan Bloedel's pulp and paper division.

Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe said the company had attenpted to vary the terms and conditions of Buxton's employment and that it had committed breach of contract and dismissed him without proper cause and lawful excuse.

The company said Burton was discharged for cause and was not entitled to notice or salary in lieu of notice.

Mr. Justice Munroe said Burton had been offered a choice of dismissal, resignation or a subordinate job and was entitled to 15 months' salary less benefits.

Burton is currently employed with B.C. Hydro.

30-DAY 'ULTIMATUM' GIVEN NOTRE DAME

VANCOUVER (CP) — Education Minister Pat McGeer has told Notre Dame University representatives they must reach agreement with the Universities Council of British Columbia about NDU's future within 30 days or all government funding will be withdrawn, Val George, NDU administration president, said Thursday.

George said he first received the ultimatum about the fate of the Nelson University during a meeting Tuesday with Dr. McGeer. He said the intent of the threat was reinforced by Bill Armstrong, chairman of the universities council, during a subsequent meeting.

Jim Bennett, a spokesman in McGeer's office, said the office is not aware of any ultimatum.

Bennett said Deputy Minister Walter Hardwick, could better give "an interpretation as to whether this is an ultimatum."

The controversy centres on the future of Notre Dame University, a 13-year-old private university which has recently been receiving provincial government funding in a plan sponsored by Eileen Dailly, education minister in the previous New Democratic Party government.

Enumeration Begins In Vancouver East

VANCOUVER (CP) — Enumeration of voters in the Vancouver East riding began Friday and is expected to be completed in time to enable a provincial byelection in middle or late May.

Chief Electoral Officer Ken Morton said he did not expect enumeration to take more than two weeks, with another week's office work to assemble the voters' list.

The minimum time in which a byelection can be held is 31 days, if there is no advance poll. Providing for one, the time from the issuance of the election writ to voting day is about 38 days. Premier Bennett has said he will set the byelection date after enumeration is completed.

Barrett lost his Coquitlam seat by 18 votes to George Kerster of Social Credit in the Dec. 11 provincial election.

Barrett was nominated for Vancouver East last weekend, but no other parties have named candidates.

Orphans Fight Police to Stay with 'Dad'

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — A group of 28 screaming runaway Vietnamese orphans Friday attacked with red hot pokers a force of 40 policemen who raided a country cottage to force them back to a government welfare centre.

It took the police more than 15 minutes to pin down the hysterical children, who ranged in age from 5 to 19, and cart them off to a waiting police van. Once inside the van, the children began to break out windows.

When they finally got to the centre, the children smashed furniture and broke out windows, shouting in Vietnamese they wanted to return to a Danish journalist who brought them from Vietnam.

The police raid came on the request of Danish welfare officials who said journalist Henning Becker was not giving the children proper schooling and social care. Becker brought more than 200 orphans to Denmark after the collapse of South Vietnam last year.

When police broke down the front door of the cottage in Zealand province north of Copenhagen, the children attacked them with red hot pokers from a fireplace. One policeman was led away bleeding.

At one point during the struggle inside, Becker appeared in the door, crying and carrying the youngest of the children in his arms. He was immediately surrounded by police and forcibly taken away from the centre of the melee.

At another time, seven children could be seen on the ground outside the cottage, each held down by four Danish policemen.

Finally police succeeded in getting all the children and Becker into a waiting police bus. Once there, the children began to break the windows of the bus. The vehicle managed to get to the welfare centre, but the trouble was not over.

On arrival, the children immediately began to break windows of the building and destroy furniture. Some climbed on the roof and screamed in Vietnamese. After about 20 minutes, however, they appeared to calm down.

Victoria Cable TV Licence Renewed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC)) said Friday it has renewed until 1979 broadcasting licences of 48 television stations and two radio stations in British Columbia.

The CRTC said it also is renewing, on a month-to-month basis, the Victoria cable licence of Victoria Cablevision Ltd.

The short-term renewals will continue until the Federal Court of Appeal rules on the CRTC's appeal of a Federal Court order that the commission consider an application from Capital Cable Co-operative for a licence for the area now served by Victoria Cablevision.

Under CRTC policy new applications are not considered for areas already receiving television, radio or cable service unless the licence-holder is guilty of gross violations of broadcasting regulations.

The CRTC renewed the licence for the basic Canadian Broadcasting Corp. English-language television service at CBUT, Vancouver, with 34 rebroadcast satellite stations across the province.

The commission also renewed the Camelsfoot TV Association licence for CFDF-TV in Fountain and Lillooet.

Other television licence renewals: CFKB, Newcastle Ridge, Kokish, Port Hardy and Sointula; CFKY, Holberg; CFNV, Woss and Nimpkish; CHOW, Clearwater; CHPV, Pemberton; CHWM, Alta Lake; CHYT, Yale; CJFC, Boston Bar; CJVT, Port Renfrew; SKUP, Ucluelet; CKVA, Vavenby and CILY, Lytton.

Radio licences for CKIQ, Kelowna and CFHG, Holberg also were renewed.

'Cod War' Worries Japan

TOKYO (WP) — Each new encounter in the "cod war" between Icelandic warships and British trawlers sends tremors through the Japanese fishing industry. As the world's No. 1 fishing nation, Japan fears its own ocean-ranging trawler fleets may meet similar resistance in traditional foreign fishing grounds.

"That's a nightmare for us," said the government's deep-water fishing director, Ahira Matsuura. "The cod war could be a typical phenomenon, and Japan has no warships."

The bureaucrats and fishing tycoons are watching with trepidation a worldwide intensification in the politics of fishing that is certain to work to Japan's disadvantage.

When the freedom of the high seas was undisputed, the fishing tactics of the technically advanced and adventurous Japanese trawlermen allowed them to reap rich harvests from the seas off the United States and the Soviet Union.

Those days are passing. Fast-dwindling global catches, and a new consciousness that fish may be the last precious food resource, have spurred moves by many nations to safeguard their fishing grounds.

Most threatening of all to the Japanese is a proposal before the conference on the law of the sea at the United Nations that would grant maritime nations the rights to fish and seabed minerals in economic zones up to 200 miles from their coastlines.

If strictly enforced, the 200-mile limit would narrow the high seas and place 45 per cent of Japan's existing fishing grounds under the control of other nations. Last year the Japanese fishing industry mounted an international advertising campaign against the 200-mile limit, claiming it would cost 4.5 million tons of the country's 10-million-ton annual catch.

Fears were easily aroused domestically since fish makes up 52 per cent of the protein intake here. Nor do the Japanese have the option of replacing a huge fish loss by raising more meat. Agronomists say that is simply impossible in land-poor Japan.

Diplomatic observers insist, however, that the Japanese are deliberately exaggerating the threat to protect a negotiating position and a fishing industry that has grown oversized by "vacuuming" the world's fishing grounds.

In two decades, the fishing companies have expanded their payrolls to 500,000 workers. Any cutback in catches would endanger those jobs and thousands more in processing and canning. Six companies recently merged their whaling divisions into a single combined enterprise and 1,500 men lost their jobs.

Some towns that are almost wholly dependent on fishing "could be reduced to villages" by legislated reduction of catches, said Matsuura. In towns such as Wammamai in Hommaido, where the population of 5,600 is dependent on ships fishing off the Soviet island of Samahalin, the outcome of the U.N. conference is critical.

"Any drastic production decrease means instant unemployment for our people," said Mayor Tatsuo Hamamori.

The draft text of the 200-mile-limit legislation contains a provision that while the host nation has first rights, it must then allow access by other countries with priority given to those that have established traditional fishing areas.

'FLU IN U.S. ON DECLINE

ATLANTA (UPI) — The United States' worst influenza epidemic in eight years appears to have peaked and is now declining, the national centre for disease control said Friday.

The CDC said, however, a telephone survey of state health departments March 11 showed that influenza remains widespread in 21 states, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia. It said 21 other states reported regional outbreaks, with isolated cases occurring in the remaining eight states.

SASK. BRACES FOR FLOOD

MOOSE JAW (CP) — With warm temperatures during the last few days, some roads in the area already are experiencing problems as water starts to flow over them and city residents and rural landowners start preparing for possible flooding.

As the 1976 spring runoff starts, the flooding may not reach the proportions of the disastrous 1974 floods but levels are forecast to run as high again this year.

Gord Gillies, secretary of the rural municipality of Mortlach, today said there was "all kinds of water running over roads" in that area.

He said there was no serious problem so far because frost remained in the roads and the water was not washing them away.

He did not foresee any serious problems "but undoubtedly there will be some damage."

Highways 334 and 399 and 36 south of the city had water flowing over them.

'Free' Centre City Worries Copenhagen

COPENHAGEN (AP) — With growing uneasiness, the Danish government is preparing to evict 600 to 700 men, women and children—along with their hundreds of dogs, cats, goats and even horses—from a self-proclaimed, 45-acre "free city" in the heart of Copenhagen.

For more than four years the free city of Christiania, named after the surrounding 17th-century district of Christianshaven, has been tolerated as a virtual state within the state, leading its own perplexing life in an abandoned army base protected by a moat and ramparts.

The free city briefly had government acceptance as a "social experiment" — a search for an alternative way of life and a last refuge for those beyond any help the Danish welfare state could offer.

The National Museum, in a recent booklet, ranked the free city as a worthy object of study for anthropologists, historians and anyone interested in human behavior.

To other Danes, however, the free city represented the illegal occupation of public property, a sanctuary for lawlessness and drugs, and a haven for anarchists and subversives—in general, an outrage to law-abiding, tax-paying citizens.

Now, by decision of the Folketing (Parliament) the entire population of the free city must be cleared out by April 1. Then bulldozers are to begin knocking down all but a few of its 190 buildings. But a "Save Christiania" campaign has been launched by the free city and it is being supported by an array of the country's leading intellectuals and most major newspapers.

"It seems that whatever we do there will be a confrontation—either with the free city or with those standing for law and order," said Defence Minister Orla Moeller, who is technically the free city's landlord.

The community came into being in the fall of 1971 when youthful squatters moved into the barracks three months after the army had moved out. The squatters announced their intention to create a large, classless, urban commune that rejected what they described as waste and impersonal welfare.

But Christiana is not the Utopia its founders talked about, but a kind of live-and let-live anarchy with a measure of order, and also a receptacle for the city's worst social problems.

It is quite natural for a person to share a room with a horse, for all kinds of mystic sects to thrive, for residents to be known only by their first names, for nobody to ask about anyone's past and for some to join collective activities while others just mind their own business.

Cars are banned and nearly everyone lives on a low level of consumption. Nearly every thing is second-hand. The general store will sell you a teaspoonful of sugar if that is all you need and cafeterias offer health food or cakes with or without hashish baked into them.

An old garage has been turned into a flea market and furniture repair shop dedicated to the rehabilitation of drug addicts. A riding hall has become one of Copenhagen's most successful theatres, specializing in anti-capitalist satire.

It is also a place where the well-off, who hold outside jobs and pay income tax, live in snug, even elegant comfort in spacious houses or attic apartments refurnished at great expense.

Others live in dirty, unheated barracks rooms or in the isolation of outlying windowless bunkers on the ramparts.

Best available estimates indicate nearly a third of the residents are on relief and about 100 of them, including runaway minors, ex-convicts, drug addicts and mental cases, are officially classified as total dropouts. Another third are foreigners, mostly Scandinavians, many of them drug addicts and most with no easily identifiable source of income.

The only established authority is a so-called plenary meeting open to anyone, including outsiders.

"Our laws are adhered to only by those who adopt them," explained Hans Loevetand, co-founder of Christiania. "Others do as they please, refusing to be governed by a self-styled assembly. But somehow it all works out, and that is what makes this a really free city."

He said it did not become the commune he and others dreamed of, simply because all the social problems of Copenhagen poured into the free city.

"We all became social workers. But that also added a new dimension to the free city, giving it new importance. This is a cultural revolution."

Medal For Whelan?

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelen defended the federal government's dairy policy Friday as opposition spokesmen criticized it for not meeting the needs of producers and consumers.

Whelan said in the Commons that an agriculture minister was fired in the Soviet Union because of poor agricultural production.

"If I was in Russia, they'd give me a medal," he said.

The Commons was debating a Social Credit motion deploring the government's "failure to control dairy imports and its inability to provide income security to dairy farmers."

Andre Fortin (SC—Lotbiniere) said dairy farmers are facing the prospect of lower incomes because they have increased the efficiency of their farms.

"We penalize people because they are too efficient while people are dying of hunger," he said.

Either a Judge or a Minister Not Telling Truth—Broadbent

OTTAWA (CP) — Ed Broadbent, leader of the federal New Democratic Party, says evidence of cabinet interference in the Quebec judiciary indicates either Health Minister Marc Lalonde or Mr. Justice Kenneth Mackay of the Quebec Superior Court is lying.

"Either we have a dishonest judge on the benches, who makes public criticism of a minister of the Crown, or we have a dishonest minister in the cabinet now," he said in an interview with Standard Broadcast News.

"And one of them, in my view, ought not to be there. You see, if it turned out that one of them is lying, as I frankly think is the case, then either the justice should not be on the bench or Mr. Lalonde should not be in the cabinet."

The NDP leader's comments referred to differing accounts of a visit Lalonde made to Mr. Justice Mackay in 1970 when Lalonde was principal secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau.

Lalonde says he went to ask when a verdict would be delivered in a case involving 10 Trinidadian students charged with damaging a computer centre at Sir George Williams University in Montreal.

Mr. Justice Mackay says Lalonde asked him to delay the verdict because of international pressure from the government of Trinidad and Tobago.

The NDP has been pressing in the commons for an inquiry into allegations that ministers interferred with Quebec judges, which led to the resignation of consumer affairs minister Andre Ouellet.

Public Works Minister C. C. (Bud) Drury also offered his resignation, but it was refused by Trudeau.

Drury admitted calling another Quebec superior Court case involving Ouellet.

Broadbent repeated accusations that Trudeau did not question the two ministers closely enough when the allegations became public more than two weeks ago.

The NDP leader said there is a reluctance to suspect wrongdoing among the highest officials in the country.

"Well, if you look at the evidence, it really is possible. Let's not make a big distinction between what's illegal and what's inappropriate here.

"There are very good grounds for believing there is profoundly improper behavior and even if, for example, it turned out, and God forbid, the prime minister was lying, that's not illegal. It's certainly beyond acceptability."

JUDGE DEBATE LINGERS

OTTAWA (CP) — An attempt by the government to have the opposition withdraw a charge that cabinet members acted illegally in contacting judges concerning cases before them failed Friday.

Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp wanted Sinclair Stevens (PC—York Simcoe) to take his seat on a specific charge against a cabinet member or withdraw an allegation made in a speech Thursday night.

While questions of privilege are normally dealt with in a few minutes, the debate ran on for more than 90 minutes as members on both sides of the House had their say.

Members of the Social Credit party protested vigorously because the debate was cutting into the time alloted to them for a debate on national dairy policy.

Speaker James Jerome is to rule Monday on whether Stevens used unparliamentary language in saying the Liberal government was allowing cabinet ministers "who have acted illegally" in the judges affair to carry on in their posts.

Sharp said House rules are clear and Stevens must make a specific charge or withdraw the remarks.

Opposition MPs argued Prime Minister Trudeau admitted there had been wrongdoing on the part of Public Works Minister C. M. Bud Drury. He called a Quebec judge who was hearing a contempt-of-court charge against former consumer and corporate affairs minister Andre Ouellet.

Trudeau had said while Drury committed an impropriety in making the call, he had done nothing illegal. Trudeau has said his opinion was backed up by a report from Chief Justice Jules Deschenes which found the intervention improper, but not illegal.

UNION SHOP!

Barber Carries Card, Union Splits Hairs

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Local union leader John Schibli let himself in for a lot of ribbing at this week's Victoria Labor Council meeting — he turned up sporting a new non-union haircut.

Schibli rather sheepishly admitted to the meeting he feared his new trim was the work of non-union scissors, but he said he had an excuse — there was a union shop card hanging on the wall of the barber shop.

"I really thought it was a union shop," said Schibli, president of the labor council and of the carpenters' union.

The shop does indeed have a union card hung prominently on its wall, owner Paul Almeida of Modern Hairstyling in the Hillside mall admitted.

And, no, it's not a union shop.

The card was in the shop when he bought it two years ago and now he refuses to give it up. He's become rather attached to it.

The barbers' union would be pleased if Almeida would give it up, union past president and recording secretary Len Stephenson said.

Stephenson made a trip to the shop a while ago in an unsuccessful attempt to get the card back.

"It's not worth getting your head bashed in about," he said.

The local has now turned the problem over to the international "and I expect if they want it they'll come and get it."

Stephenson himself ran into a similar problem when he sold his own barber shop in the Empress Hotel.

He forgot to turn the card back to the union and for a while it remained in the shop. It is now down, he said, and the problem was his fault.

Almeida said the union card in his shop is now "just a point of mind."

He has no intention of joining the union — it would raise his already high prices, $6 a cut, any cut.

Stephenson went about getting the card back in the wrong way, he said. "He tried to grab it off the wall."

"I was upset with the way he tried to get it back. He didn't ask me for it and now I just don't feel like giving it to them.

"I'm not stupid, I know it's not my card and I'll probably give it back if someone comes and asks me for it."

In the meantime, Schibli is waiting for his hair to grow again and undoubtedly considering a change in barbers.

The Scapegoats Are Happy At Fernwood-Springridge

If you listen to City Hall and to some of the media men who report the goings-on there, you no doubt by now have come to the conclusion that a so-called group of young radicals in the Fernwood-Springridge area are a barbaric lot, indeed.

The young people, who formed the Springridge Housing Co-operative two years ago but also belong to several other community groups, have been accused of some fiendish things.

They are said to be involved in a power struggle for control over $1 million in Neighborhood Improvement Program (NIP) funds designated for the Springridge district near Victoria High School.

One reporter said the radical "Group of about 20 young people, few of them holding regular jobs, has succeeded in all but destroying the Fernwood Community Association, taking control of the committee responsible for drawing up guidelines on how to spend the $1 million jackpot, and generally intimidating the established community forces in that area."

"They have," said the same reporter, "disrupted meetings, forced adjournaments half an hour after they started; they have replaced (NIP) committee members with their own and have brought the situation to a point where all three levels of government should seriously consider scraping the whole NIP endeavor in Springridge."

"Other members of the Fernwood-Springridge community have called the co-op members everything from Hippies to Communists."

The "radicals" have even been accused of wanting more community input in the development of their area. Now there's a dangerous suggestion! Don't they realize the residents are used to City Hall having the monopoly on community bunglings?

The finger has been pointed at Paul Phillips, said to be the acknowledged leader of the co-op group. But Paul politely declined a chance to explain all in an interview because, he said, he isn't the acknowledged leader of anything. He does belong to four different district groups, though, and is very active in the community. And he lays the blame squarely on City Hall.

"City Hall has wanted to control the program from start to finish," Phillips said, "that's what it has wanted — and that's what it's out to get."

Joyce Heynsbroek agrees with him wholeheartedly.

Four times an aldermanic candidate and a much-involved resident of Fernwood for 10 years, Mrs. Heynsbroek now is acting chairperson of the Fernwood Community Association. And she says her association has had no trouble from the "radicals."

"The word radical means root," said Mrs. Heynsbroek "and these young people are certainly working hard at the grass roots of the community. Their lifestyle is different — they have long hair and wear jeans and don't work at regular jobs because they don't go into the office from 9 to 5, and this upsets some people. But I would say they've had a large measure of success."

The success refers to the co-op's much-criticized housing project involving the conversion of four old homes into duplexes.

Mrs. Heynsbroek described Paul Phillips as a very articulate Welshman.

"He's a go-getter, very forceful in his manner of speaking, and because of this he irritates a lot of people," she said.

"I have been acting chairperson for this year and have personally never had any trouble with the housing people. There is not one of them on the board and they do not control our meetings — I do.

"The Fernwood Community Association has had internal problems," Mrs. Heynsbroek admits. "There were frustrations with one or two of our own members — nothing to do with NIP or Paul Phillips — but somehow or other it appears to have been all turned round and blamed on the housing co-op people."

As Phillips says:

"We're a very happy scapegoat for City Hall."

The Fernwood Community Association wants to be the official spokesman for the NIP project. City Hall hasn't agreed to this.

"Our only real trouble has been with City Hall and its refusal to recognize us in connection with the NIP project," said Mrs. Heynsbroek.

Citing inter-community group feuding as their reason, city aldermen this week warned residents they risked having no say in the matter. Ald. Murray Glazier even said he was very close to recommending the council step in and appoint its own NIP committee to run things.

"I'm very angry and upset with city council people over this," said Mrs. Heynsbroek. "They have allowed Fernwood to become a run down area and they are now trying to use this NIP money to fix up things like storm drains and potholes that they should have seen to years ago."

But Mrs. Heynsbroek thinks the council's threats are hollow.

"It's a federal government project ($500,000 comes from Ottawa, and $250,000 each from the provincial government and city council) and I don't think the federal government will go along with the things the city council are saying," she points out. "I'm certainly going to scream to Ottawa, anyway, if there is no community input allowed in Fernwood."

As far as those "radical" co-op people are concerned, they aren't too upset with what has been said about them. But they are worried about the community.

"The whole community is being negated," said Phillips emotionally.

"Our struggle is ours. We're us . . . we can live through the lies."

Tod Family Friend Donates Historic Housewarming Gift

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

It's small, plain and unpretentious.

The bureau's natural wood lies hidden under coats of paint, swollen thick through many applications.

Seeing it stowed away in the Oak Bay municipal yard, it's difficult to believe the chest is an important reminder of Victoria's past.

It's the first donation toward furnishing Oak Bay's historic Tod House on Heron. Jointly bought for $65,000 last November by the municipality and the provincial government.

The house was built for Hudson Bay Company chief factor John Tod and Oak Bay council is trying to refurnish it as it looked in 1830.

The little chest was donated by Mrs. H. Lauder Ramsay of Somass Drive, who probably knew the Tod family better than anyone alive today.

It was handmade at the small saw mill operated in Cedar Hill by Tod's son James.

Mrs. Ramsay estimates it was made around 1851. She recalls how, before they were hidden in paint, the wooden knobs on the chest showed signs of being fashioned with a penknife.

"They cleared the land and sold cordwood to buy food. They had to make everything," she explained.

Her mother was a close friend of Meleva Tod, wife of the factor's youngest grandson. She was brought up by the Tods, most people knowing her better as Dorothy Tod, than by her real name, Dorothy Poulton.

The little chest and another larger one which she earlier presented to the Provincial Museum were in her bedroom during her growing-up years.

She recalls how the Tod family was among the first to buy a car in Victoria, purchasing a Cadillac in 1912 and another one the next year, this one being the first in the area that was a self-starter.

Meleva Tod preferred horseback riding to a four-wheel steed. Because of this, her "niece" Dorothy began driving at the age of 11.

"It was a huge car and they had to prop me up with half a dozen cushions," she chuckled. "You didn't need a driver's licence in those days. If you had a car . . . you drove."

Mrs. Ramsay explained that most people walked to and from town in those days and anybody driving a car would stop and offer a walker a lift, even if he or she was a stranger.

She couldn't understand why few people accepted her offer.

"Then Aunty told me people were convinced when they saw a little kid trying to drive that great machine it had to be dangerous."

There is a possibility that the other chest in the museum may one day rejoin the small one, once it has been cleared of its paint and taken to Tod House.

Mrs. Ramsay . . . and chest made at James Tod's mill

A museum spokesman said if the municipality makes a request the Provincial Museum would consider letting the chest go to the house on permanent loan.

However, he added, the museum would have to be assured that conditions were ideal, including that of temperatures, to ensure protection of the wood.

Oak Bay expects the house to be open to the public by the end of the year and has installed temporary caretakers to protect the property.

But before even the little chest can move back with its memories on Tod ground, the house will have to have new wiring and electrical work, as well as structural work.

Ald. Doug McLelland hopes this project, too, will be jointly financed by the municipality and the government.

Drinking Drivers On Rise

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Drinking driver offences in Saanich and the peninsula are more than double in the two largest police jurisdictions compared with a year ago.

Saanich municipal police show a 142 per cent increase in charges for impaired driving and for operating a vehicle with blood alcohol of .08 per cent or more.

In the RCMP jurisdictions of Sidney and North Saanich the increase for these offences is exactly 100 per cent.

The periods compared are the first two months of each year.

A survey of the Greater Victoria area was taken after drinking driver statistics from Nanaimo and Prince George showed heavy increases for January and February.

Insp. E. L. Tedford, chief of the traffic section at RCMP "E" Division headquarters, was asked if there was a provincial trend toward alcohol-related driving offences.

He said province-wide figures were not yet assembled and there was no indication so far that such a trend may develop.

But in the Prince George district there had been a campaign to reduce the risk of motor vehicle accidents, he noted.

If there is any reflection in forthcoming figures that law enforcement has increased in other jurisdictions, he said, "It's not because of any particular direction from here, unless there is a flagrant showing of collisions" within a specific area.

Tedford said local jurisdictions are under normal instructions to gear enforcement to apparent accident causes.

In Saanich, the capital region's most heavily populated residential community, impaired driving offences rose to 21 in January and 25 in February, from 15 and four in the two months a year ago.

Sidney RCMP handled 36 such charges to mid-March this year and 18 in the period last year.

Colwood RCMP — covering a jurisdiction from Metchosin to View Royal and north to the Malahat—is one of three capital region jurisdictions which actually experienced a margin drop in the number of impaired charges for the period, going to 19 from 21.

The other two were Central Saanich which had two less at eight, and Oak Bay, where the decline was more substantial — from 11 to five.

Esquimalt was up marginally at seven, an increase of one.

Victoria police records department was unable to furnish figures due to reoganization of the division, but an officer said there was nothing to indicate significant variation this year from last.

At Nanaimo the highway patrol reported 68 drivers were charged with drinking offences in the first two months, compared with only 30 in 1975, or a ratio of one offence in 134.7 of population.

Prince George had a ratio of one in 55.6 compared with an average in Richmond, Surrey, Burnaby and North Vancouver of one in 153.8.

Funeral Wednesday For Irvine Dawson

Monterey elementary school principal Irvine Dawson died in hospital Friday after a long fight against leukemia. He was 64.

Funeral services for Dawson, the member of a pioneer Victoria family, will be held Wednesday at 3:45 p.m. in the McCall Brothers chapel on Vancouver Street.

The popular principal was born and raised in Victoria and spent all of his long teaching career, except for 10 years in Powell River, in local schools.

He was known for his involvement in the arts. He was a keen amateur photographer, a potter and involved in the symphony society. He encouraged arts and drama instruction at his schools.

Dawson's great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Irvine, came around Cape Horn from Scotland to Sooke in 1851. The family moved to the Cedar Hill area soon after.

Dawson attended Cedar Hill school, Victoria High and the Lansdowne normal school. His first teaching post in the three room school in Powell River lasted for 10 years before he moved back to his home town to teach at Monterey.

He became vice-principal at Willows school and principal of Oak Bay elementary, Craigflower and View Royal schools.

While at View Royal he set up an innovative reading program which had Grade 6 students reading at the same rate as good Grade 11 students.

He took over the Monterey principal job in 1967 and was to have retired this year.

Feng Bang Must Wait For Charges

The Taiwan fish boat Feng Bang, under arrest in Victoria's Inner Harbor, will be charged with a violation of the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act — but formalities may take several days.

Regional fisheries director Rod Hourston said he is not sure when the charge will be officially laid and a fisheries spokesman in Vancouver said it will have to await reports from officers involved and consideration by the justice department.

Maximum fine upon conviction under the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act is $25,000.

Meanwhile the 144-foot long liner, which has a crew of 27, is tied up at the fisheries dock at the foot of Broughton after being escorted to harbor by the fisheries patrol vessel Tanu Friday.

Alderman Won't Take $50 Raise

Victoria Ald. Ron McKenzie said Friday he will try to persuade his city council colleagues not to give themselves an eight per cent salary increase.

But even if he fails, he won't accept the extra money.

McKenzie, who was away on holiday when council first voted for the pay raise at a caucus meeting three weeks ago, said it was almost the first thing he heard when got off the airplane.

"Quite frankly I was dismayed, surprised and a little shocked," he said.

"I don't think there is anyone on council who really needs another $50 a month."

The eight per cent increase, in keeping with the federal anti-inflation guidelines, would raise Mayor Mike Young's salary to $21,190 a year, and aldermen's remuneration to $7,954.

But McKenzie said he questions the rationale council has used in following the federal guidelines.

"I feel any raise should be tied strictly to productivity, but as it's virtually impossible to determine the productivity of an alderman the only fair basis to use is the productivity of the country as a whole. And Canada's last year was zero or less than zero."

He noted that if council gives itself an eight per cent boost every year for the next five years, aldermen will be earning more than $10,000 a year "and that isn't the name of the game at all."

The alderman said it's up to municipal councils to set an example in their respective communities, to underline the fact that Canadians can only earn as much as they produce.

And he pointed out that a former city mayor, Hugh Stephen, set such an example several years ago when council raised the mayor's salary from $10,000 to $15,000 but he declined the increase.

Only Ald. John Hayes, elected in last month's byelection, voted against the pay raise when the bylaw was introduced and given first readings last week.

Final reading is scheduled for next Thursday's regular council meeting, but McKenzie said before that he will try to lobby aldermen on his views in an effort to change their thinking.

With Ald. Bob Ellis away on holiday next week, only eight council members are expected to be present for the vote. As a simple majority is needed for the bylaw to pass, a split 4-4 vote would be enough to defeat it.

Which means that McKenzie has to win over only two more aldermen for the increase to be rejected.

Softball: Vindication From The Man With Bates

The end of the week, and it should be noted that in the aftermath of the World Softball championships at Lower Hutt, New Zealand, and the crowning of Bates as world champions, and then this week as "team of the year" (what else?) in local sport, a note arrived in the post defending the Canadians for the bad press they received in Kiwiland.

In a letter to one of the dailies in Wellington, a Mr. Neal Hogg of Lower Hutt, who was one of two liaison officers assigned to the Canadian party, jumped to the defence of the Canadians.

He says he was "shocked and disgusted" at statements made by tournament chairman Kevin Baldwin. It may be recalled that Baldwin called the Bates unco-operative and laid most of the blame on Bates for the non-completion of the tournament, among other sundry items, which were revealed here earlier.

But here's what Hogg has to say:

"Mr. Baldwin's statement that they were unco-operative and that the attitude to some of the party was insulting to officials throughout the whole series is, in itself, arrogant and insulting and most certainly untrue."

Hogg also accused Baldwin of making his statements with the knowledge they would be published AFTER the Canadians had left New Zealand and that they would not be in a position to reply.

Hogg continues: "The team and supporters were great ambassadors for their country. I am sure that everyone who attended the games enjoyed the vocal support they gave their side and this in turn inspired our own supporters to become more vocal.

"The Canadian coach, Mr. Joe Patterson, was most certainly annoyed and angry when he left the function on Sunday night and he had every right to be so.

"I live several hundred yards from the ball park and it had rained almost continuously all day. At 6 p.m. it was obvious that the rain had set in for the night and that any play would be impossible, dangerous and downright stupid. No decision as whether play would continue had been announced when supper was served at 8:30 p.m. . . . and it was after 9 p.m. when Mr. Baldwin rose to his feet and announced the end of the series

"The news that New Zealand and the United States would share the tournament honors (with Canada) was the 'straw that broke the camel's back' as far as Patterson was concerned. But he did not blame the tournament organizers . . . It was the complete lack of consideration shown to the players, particularly during the last hour, which angered Patterson, and all of his party, of which I felt I was one.

"And as a New Zealander, I felt embarrassed and ashamed."

And that is another side of the story and if Bates weren't vindicated before, they should be now. Thank you, Mr. Hogg.

Now, Bates' Harvey Stevenson says he is going to retire . . . but then he may stay on as a pinch hitter . . . that the U.S. national championship team may yet come here for a series this summer . . and that Andy Konopacki of Vancouver may reverse himself again and still come to Victoria to play for the champs . . . reports and rumors were flying thick and fast at the Sportsmen's Dinner, Monday, but nobody really wants to see Stevenson retire, and he was so advised . . . and I'm sure the Bate players will convince Harvey they still need the big bat . . .

It was interesting, too, listening to two-time Indianapolis winner, Rodger Ward, talking of his favorite sport. Concentration, simply and above all else, is the key, the car holding together, that is; and Ward was saying that driving as closely behind another car as race drivers do, is actually quite easy. "You drive off the other car, something like formation flying, and you do as he does. But you never take your eye off him. That's the concentration." And he admitted that when he realized he was going to win his first Indy he did get excited, especially on the last couple of laps—wondering if anything would go wrong, would the car hold up, the tires, would there be a pileup?—and then suddenly it's all over and you're a winner. Made it sound easy, he did.

In town this week too was Eckhard Krautzan, new coach of the Vancouver Whitecaps of the North American Soccer League. He was here to confirm the Whitecaps' appearance in the second annual Victoria Cup competition which will see the Whitecaps play the Vancouver Island Selects who a week ago knocked off Canada's national team. And he was saying "I was impressed with the Island team" and that he might steal one or two players. He was referring to Bob Bolitho and Brian Robinson who will sign for the Whitecaps as amateurs this year. Still, he would like them to play for the Island, but not at the expense of the Whitecaps looking bad, he suggested. He also said he may talk to former English pro, Bruce Twamley, about a job with the Whitecaps.

His goal, he said, is for the Whitecaps to first reach the playoffs and then the finals in the NASL, and he feels that the imports the Whitecaps have secured this season will improve the club. Actually the Victoria Cup series, sponsored by C-FAX and Chew Excavating, is a worthwhile endeavour as the proceeds will be split between the Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped children and the Lower Island Juvenile Soccer Association, on a 75-25 basis. And after last week's showing by the Selects, don't bet they won't give the Whitecaps a tussle. "They play very attractive soccer," was Krautzan's view. And oh, yes, he's heard about Ike MacKay as well, and may even have a chat with him; but not until after next week's game. And there go all our stars—for the summer, at least. G'Nite all.

Bays in Full Control

VANCOUVER — It was ball-control time for Oak Bay Friday night and the Bays have reached the championship game in the British Columbia high school boys' basketball tournament for a record-equalling seventh time.

Apparentlyb ack in the form that carried them to the Vancouver Island title this season, the Bays were zealous guardians of the ball at Pacific Coliseum in the tournament's semi-final round.

The young men of coach Don Horwood gave the ball away only 10 times on turnovers as they rolled to a 64-55 triumph over last year's provincial champions, the North Delta Huskies.

Tonight, the second-ranked Oak Bay club goes for the title against the top-seeded North Surrey Spartans, who got a 23-point effort from Charlie Olson on the way to a 77-67 victory over Burnaby South Rebels.

Rebels and Huskies clash at 7 tonight for third place in the 16-team tourney and the Bays tangle with the Spartans at 8:45.

(The final game will be broadcast by radio CFAX (1070), starting at 8:45.)

Oak Bay is the lone Vancouver Island squad remaining in action. Belmont Braves were ousted from consolation play when they lost 67-53 to Vancouver College, Courtenay Towhees were eliminated Thursday.

Vancouver College, incidentally, set the record of playing in seven finals and still hold the record of five championships in the 31-year-old event.

Winners of the title in 1973 and 1974 and fourth-place finishers last year, the Bays are making their third appearance in the tourney final in six seasons.

Horwood expressed pleasure with Friday's performance by the Bays, who probably turned in their finest effort since winning the Island crown.

"The players were a little shaky in the first two games," said Horwood, "but they are now playing with confidence. They showed a lot of poise and controlled the game when it counted."

Again, one of the Bays with the greatest poise and slickest shooting touch was Ken Kirzinger, who connected for 22 points after notching 16 and 18 in the team's first two outings.

For the third time in as many games, Horwood did not start Kirzinger. But it was early in the first quarter that Ken got the nod, and after that he didn't depart, producing nothing but trouble for the Huskies.

Kirzinger, who grabbed 12 rebounds, and Dave Richmond, who snared 11, gave the Bays good control of the boards and the Victorians ended up with a 42-30 edge in rebounds.

Also turning in a solid effort for Oak Bay was Mike Miller, who was a determined defender as he held one of the North Delta scoring aces, Stu Fitzpatrick, to a mere five points. Miller, who picked up four points, also received credit for assists on six Oak Bay baskets.

Kirzinger hit on nine of 14 field goal attempts and the Bays wound up with a 43 per cent shooting percentage from the floor after hitting at 47 per cent in the opening half.

North Delta held a 34-32 lead at the intermission but the Bays scored the first six points of the second half and appeared to be in control the rest of the way although the Huskies did manage to pull even at 40-40.

The Bays were credited with 14 steals while the Huskies stole the ball 11 times, but were guilty of 22 turnovers.

Belmont started well against Vancouver College and fashioned a 28-25 lead in the first half, but the Braves managed only two points in a disastrous third quarter while the Fighting Irish ran up 23 points.

College plays today against Penticton Lakers in a game to decide fourth and seventh positions. The Lakers advanced with a 75-62 victory over Terrace Kermodes as Gord Herbert fired 20 points to boost his tournament total to 82 for three games.

In today's other game, Semiamoo Totems of White Rock clash with Kelowna Owls for fifth and eighth places, Totems topped the Titans 66-57 while the Owls dropped Cranbrook Trojans 66-48.

Hill Holds Lead

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Mike Hill, a one-time beer truck driver who joined the pro tour "just to see if I could make a living," scrambled to a four-under-par 68 and the second-round lead Friday in the $175,000 Greater Jacksonville Open golf tournament.

Hill, a self-contained man something of a loner among his fellow tourists, and younger brother of tour-veteran Dave Hill, put together a two-round total of 137, seven under par for two trips over the surprisingly-difficult Deerwood Club course, 7143 yards of lakes and pines meandering through a posh residential area.

With two rounds to go in the chase for a $35,000 first prize, the 37-year-old Hill enjoyed a one-stroke lead over skinny little Nate Starks, a career non-winner and one of the last men on the golf course, who men on the golf course, who came in with a 69-138.

Hubert Green headed a group of six players tied for third at 139. Also at that figure were Bob Murphy and veteran Miller Barber, with matching 67s in the second round' rookie Jerry Pate, 67, and Ray Floyd and Lanny Wadkins, who slipped from a tie for the first round lead with 71s.

Green, a winner last week in the Doral Open, moved up with a late-afternoon 67 that included a birdie on the final hole.

Arnold Palmer continued to have his difficulties, however. He scored an eagle-three on the front side but made a bogey-six on his last hole, a bogey that cost him the cut.

He finished with a round of par-72 and a 147 total, one over the cut-off figure. It was the third time in seven starts this season Palmer had failed to qualify for the final two rounds.

Mariners Up for Grabs

SANDIEGO (AP) — San Diego Mariners are up for grabs and so are their players.

The World Hockey Association announced Friday the franchise has been taken away from Baltimore businessman Joseph Schwartz and all Mariner players have been declared free agents.

Ben Hatskin, the WHA's board chairman, said two local groups are interested in taking over the club and a decision will be made next week.

"We'll have something decided by Monday or Tuesday morning at the latest," Matskin said. "We're looking for local control. I want to emphasize that."

Hatskin said Mariner players assured him they will continue playing until ownership is settled, despite the fact the twice-monthly payroll has been missed.

The Mariners moved to San Diego two years ago. Before that, they were known as Jersey Knights and New York Raiders.

The WHA team has another year left on its three-year lease with the San Diego Sports Arena.

The team's front-office problems didn't help the Mariners on the ice. They dropped an 8-3 decision to Houston Aeros at Houston with Mark Howe scoring three times.

Ralph Backstrom's third goal of the night, coming at 4:33 of overtime, provided New England Whalers with a 6-5 victory over Cincinnati Stingers.

Overtime also was served up in two other games. Richie Leduc connected at the 2:20 mark to give Cleveland Crusaders a 6-5 win over Phoenix Roadrunners while Rejean Houle waited until the 6:29 mark before scoring the winner in Quebec Nordiques' 4-3 win over Toronto Toros.

Cougar-Helping Pats Clinch Playoff Berth

Friday night the Cougars found some friends.

Tonight the Vicoria Cougars will be on their own as they continue their struggle to remain on their fifth-place perch in the over-all point standings of the Western Canada Hockey League.

The friends of the Cats were Regina Pats, who clinched the 10th and final playoff spot on home ice by bouncing the Brandon Wheat Kings 8-6.

That left the Cougars in a somewhat more comfortable position as they start a punishing home-stretch run tonight by meeting Edmonton Oil Kings in Memorial Arena at 8:30.

Brandon's defeat Friday left the Cats with a one-point lead over the sixth-place Manitoba crew, but they now have two games in hand. If the Cats can remain in the fifth spot they will clash with 10th-place Regina in the opening round of playoffs.

But if the Victorians slip back and wind up behind the Wheaties in the sixth berth, they will open their playoff chores against the powerful, league-leading New Westminster Bruins.

Following tonight's contest, the Cougars go on the road for games in Saskatoon (Monday), Medicine Hat (Tuesday), and Lethbridge (Wednesday and Friday). They'll be back home Saturday to finish off their schedule against Medicine Hat.

Several Victoria players will be missing the action Monday, with Greg Tebbutt, Lorry Gloeckner and Al Hill sitting out suspensions resulting from a bench-clearing incident on Feb. 20 in Saskatoon.

Tebbutt, Archie Henderson and Tim Williams will not appear in the game Tuesday at Medicine Hat because of court cases arising out of hockey brawls.

Al Dumba connected for three goals and clubmates Jon Hammond and Drew Callander each added two tallies as the Pats tripped the Wheat Kings.

In other games Friday, Clay Pachal fired three goals to help the Bruins to a 7-4 win over the Oil Kings and two scoring shots by Neil Hawryliw paced Saskatoon Blades to a 7-4 triumph over Winnipeg Clubs.

Oak Bay, Saanich Click at Courtenay

COURTENAY — Saanich Braves and Oak Bay Henderson Realty were scheduled to clash at 4:45 this afternoon after chalking up victories Friday in the four-team Vancouver Island midget hockey tournament.

BOWLING MEETING

All members of the Victoria Women's Tenpin Bowling Association are urged to attend the annual meeting starting at 8 p.m. Sunday at Mayfair Lanes.

Getting two goals from Garry Slezak and one tally from Ed Beauchemin, the Braves tripped Nanaimo Clippers 3-1 Friday in a tight-checking struggle.

Oak Bay kept pace with Saanich by trimming Comox Checkers 8-4.

In Sunday's final round of the tournament, Oak Bay will meet Nanaimo at 11 a.m. and Saanich will tackle Comox at 2 p.m.

The Island Title will be decided on total points.

BOXERS DROP FIRST GAME

POWELL RIVER — London Boxing Club of Victoria dropped a 6-5 decision to Powell River Friday in the opening game of the best-of-three Vancouver Island zone intermediate hockey final.

Al McLaren and Ron Poole each scored twice and Rugs Pritchard counted once for the Boxers.

Squash Favorites Advance

Thom stroked his way to 3-0 victory over Bryce Hardin of Seattle in Friday's first-round matches and today he goes against the "A" class favorite — 19-year-old Pat Richardson of Vancouver.

Second-seed Rich Fleming of Vancouver also had a first-round bye and was slated to clash today with Richmond rival Roger Ovens, who eliminated Victoria's Julian Greenwood 3-2 Friday.

Another Victorian, Ken Waterfall, chalked up a 3-2 win over Vancouver's Lou Geddes in the "B" event and was scheduled to tangle today with second-seeded Doug Smith of Vancouver.

Two other Victoria players, Blair Kruger and Kevin Gillett, went down to defeat against Mainland opponents in "B" matches Friday.

Two players from the Jericho Club in Vancouver, former national champion Jane Dixon and Sue Grimsdick, are seeded first and second for the women's event, in which Vancouverites Val Ellis and Gillian Thomas posted triumphs in first-round contests.

Ridley Proves a Point to Penguins

Canadian Press

Despite the fact he was owned by Atlanta Flames, goaltender Curt Ridley never played a game for the National Hockey League club.

Friday night, Ridley, who was acquired by Vancouver Canucks from the Flames earlier this year, showed his former employers he was a capable NHL netminder.

Ridley kicked out 34 of 36 shots, including 16 in the third period to help Canucks hold Atlanta to a 2-2 tie in one of three games. In other action, Pittsburgh Penguins downed Washington Capitals 7-3 and Montreal Canadiens withstood af irst-period California barrage and defeated the young Golden Seals 4-1 in Oakland.

"I was pleased with Ridley's play," said Vancouver coach Phil Maloney. "He made some crucial plays for us late in the game."

Tom Lysiak scored his 30th goal of the year and assisted on another by Barry Gibbs to set a team single-season scoring record of 78 points. He held the old mark of 77 points.

The Flames led 2-0 midway throught he final period before Ron Sedlbauer and Dennis Kearns tied the game for Vancouver.

At Landover, Md., Jean Pronovost scored two goals, both in the final 10 minutes as Pittsburgh defeated Washington.

Pronovost's 47th goal of the season broke a 3-3 tie at 9:55 of the third period, Lowell MacDonald added another goal at 13:02 and Pronovost scored his second of the game at 18:08. Syl Apps had a goal and four assists for the Penguins.

The Canadiens survived a 24-shot outburst by the Seals in the first period and registered their 15th game without a loss by defeating California for the fifth time in as many games this year.

Bob Murdock scored the lone California goal in the opening session and an apparent goal by Rick Hampton later in the period was disallowed by referee Ron Wicks because Fred Ahern was in Ken Dryden's crease.

Power-play goals by Guy Lafleur and Yvan Cournoyer put Montreal ahead in the middle session with Steve Shutt and Murray Wilson scoring for Montreal against California netminder Gary Simmons in the final session.

Former Dolphins Free To Join Highest Bidder

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield, stars with the 1973 and 1974 Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins who later jumped to the World Football League, dominated the final session of the National Football League meetings even though they weren't here.

The trio played out their options with the Dolphins and jumped to the now-defunct WFL with multi-year, million dollar contracts. Friday, John Bassett of Toronto, who owned the WFL Memphis club, declared them free agents.

NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle said he didn't know if they were truly free or not, but if so, they presumably are free to sign with the highest bidder.

Bassett failed earlier this week in his bid to get an NFL expansion franchise for Memphis and Friday released control of all his players.

Fullback Csonka, 29, running back Kiick, 29, and wide receiver Warfield, 33, were signed to personal contracts in 1974 by Bassett for a reported $3.5 million.

But the brightest spot of the week for the 28 owners probably came when Dick Anderson, president of the players association, came to their meeting and said the players were "ready, willing and able" to negotiate a new collective bargaining agreement.

Pro football has been without one for two years, with many lawsuits involved.

Anderson and Rozelle each expect meetings to start within two weeks.

In the wrapup session, the owners decided to loosen the rule covering players who had been put on the injured reserve list in 1975 and were out for the year.

Under the statute last year, only three players could be protected by their clubs from being picked up on waivers if they had been on the injured reserve list.

Three players still may be eligible for trade, but all the rest on the injured reserve list will be given the chance next year of making the grade with their team. If they don't, they must be put on waivers, where another club could claim them for $100.

Jim Kensil, NFL executive director, said the intent of the rule always has been to stop clubs from putting players on the injured reserve list only so they will be available if needed in future seasons.

Dates for the expansion draft were set for March 30-31 to stock Tampa Bay and Seattle. The also-delayed college draft will be held April 8-9.

The owners' final action was to clarify tie-breaking procedures for selecting sites in playoff games. The best won-loss record will determine the home club. The tie-breaker will be the number of points scored and the number of points given up.

UNIVERSITY AWARD FOR SHELLEY WINTER

VANCOUVER — Shelley Winter, the field hockey star from Victoria, has been voted female athlete-of-the-year at the University of British Columbia.

Winner of Big Block awards in each of her five years with the UBC Thunderettes, Miss Winter has been a member of Canada's national field hockey team for the past two seasons.

Scheduled to graduate this spring with a degree in secondary education, Miss Winter was a standout with the national team last August in Edinburgh during the world championship field hockey tournament, in which Canada finished 14th among 23 countries.

Braves Erupt In Final Frame

COMOX — Saanich Braves enhanced their reputation as a strong third-period club as they surged to a victory here Friday in the opening game of the best-of-three Vancouver Island Junior "B" hockey final.

Trailing 3-2 after the first period and down 5-4 after two sessions, the Braves exploded for eight goals in the final period to defeat Comox Mr. Mikes 12-5.

Saanich outshot the Comox club 23-8 in the second period and had a 67-43 shooting margin for the game.

Rob Coldwell, Ron Jobson and Brent Patterson each fired two tallies for the Braves who also got markers from Ron Vincent, Ron Vause, Wayne Larsen, Bill Adkin and Scott Connors. Game reports did not list who scored the other Saanich goal.

Marty Peterson counted twice for Comox and clubmates Gord Jones, Dean Collier and Guildo Novelli each scored once.

Nanaimo Beaten By Racquet Club

Racquet Club of Victoria and Nanaimo launched the Vancouver Island bantam hockey championship tournament Friday in exciting style at Juan de Fuca Arena.

The Racquet Club crew came out on top in a high-scoring thriller by defeating the Nanaimo club for the first time this season, snatching an 8-7 triumph when Brian Martin scored his third goal of the game with 12 seconds remaining.

Dale Schmidt and Paul Pynn each added two tallies for the Racquet Club and Guyle Cornett connected once.

Mike Johnson, with three, Ken Burgoyne, Bruce Brown, Lenny Dawes and Tony Feltrin counted for Nanaimo, which held a 7-5 lead at one point during the final period.

Comox and Saanich are the other teams in the tourney, which continued today and will conclude Sunday with games at 8 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Winner of the Island title will compete in the B.C. playoff in Nanaimo, March 27 to 31.

Should there be a deadlock for first place after the final game, points for and against will determine the winner of the round-robin tourney, which will be conducted under international rules.

Students Aid Olympic Cause

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Olympic Association's athlete support program got an unexpected financial boost this week.

Bob Second, the program's co-ordinator, received a cheque for $1,631.42 from students at Hudson Bay composite school in Hudson Bay, Sask. At the request of the students, the money will go toward assisting two Saskatchewan track stars — Diane Jones and Joanne McTaggert, both of Saskatoon — prepare for the Montreal Olympics.

The students from the small town of 2300, 250 miles north of Saskatoon, rallied behind student council secretary Jeannine Alain in organizing a lap-a-thon, run at the school gym on March 7.

STRONG DISPLAY BY BOXING CLUB

McCaghey fired 26 points as the Victorians charged to an 85-54 triumph over Chemainus in the opening round of the six-team double-loss B.C. tournament.

In other contests Friday, Kamloops Brewers downed a University of B.C. squad 79-65 and Alberni Chieftains overpowered Powell River 88-61.

Jim MacKay was another effective sniper for the Boxers, connecting for 17 points in the victory over Chemainus. Alf Hass (11), Bill Hingley (10) and Rich Connolly (10) also hit double figures for the Victoria club, which tackles Alberni in today's second round.

Victoria Seniors Beaten in Final

HANEY — Skip Gordie Moore expects to be back with his Victoria Curling Club rink at Vernon Sunday for the start of the provincial seniors' curling championship — an eight-rink, round-robin event involving the four zone winners from the Pacific Coast Curling Association and the four zone champions from the B.C. Curling Association.

Moore, twice winner of the provincial seniors' crown, was sidelined by flu Friday when the Victoria quartet lost out in the final for the PCCA title here, dropping a 10-5 decision to the New Westminster rink guided by Lyle Reichert.

Stew Foster moved up from third to handle the skip's duties for the Victorians as regular rink members Ed McDormany and Ev Valleau each moved up a notch and replacement Graham Sled tossed lead stones.

The Victoria crew defeated Joe Hadfield of Chilliwack 9-4 in the semi-finals while Reichert, who was calling shots for Bergy Bergvinson, Max Cook and Sonny Errington, reached the final with an 8-6 win over Bill Osborne of Qualicum.

Rollins Will Pay

TORONTO (AP) — The World Hockey Association says it has fined defenceman Jerry Rollins of Toronto Toros $250 for his altercation with linesman Wayne Bonney during a March 14 game in Quebec City. The fine is in addition to an automatic $150 fine levied at the time of the incident.

IN CURLING

Extra Work Required Before Titles Awarded

It took three extra games on Friday to decide the Canadian schoolboys' curling championship, and two extra games were played before the national junior women's championship was decided.

In Kapuskasing, Ont., Manitoba's Garth Light caused a four-way tie in the schoolboys' championship by scoring a 4-3 last-round win over Alberta's Rob Williams to leave both rinks with 8-3 records.

That opened the championship door for Prince Edward Island's Bill Jenkins and Nova Scotia's David Leblanc as well as for Light, and it was Jenkins and his Charlottetown rink which stepped through it.

In the sudden-death playoff which followed, Alberta evened the score with Manitoba by squeezing out an 8-7 win, and P.E.I. breezed past Nova Scotia, 7-3, with a seventh-end four the knockout punch.

The Charlottetown rink were 0-4 trailers after two ends of the final, but it steadied there, and with Jenkins making a number of key shots came on to win 9-6.

Ontario finished fifth with a 7-4 record, and Saskatchewan, at 6-5, was the only other rink with a winning record. Greg Monkman and his B.C. champions from Maple Ridge finished 3-8 and in a four-way tie for ninth place.

In Thunder Bay, North Vancouver's Vicki Collins lost the semi-final in a three-rink playoff when Saskatchewan's Colleen Rudd scored two on an extra end to break a 5-5 tie.

Miss Rudd, vice-skip on the Saskatchewan rink which won last year, then led her rink to a 7-6 win over Ann Merklinger to deprive P.E.I. of a sweep of the junior championships.

Elsewhere Friday, Manitoba won the Canadian police championship, a Vulcan, Alta., rink took the Canadian Legion championship, and an Estevan, Sask., rink stayed out front in the Canadian Elks championship.

Roy Gislason and his Winnipeg RCMP rink retained police honors in Montreal, running their record in round-robin play to 10-0. One round remains but Art Kavanaugh of Ontario and Ray Croy of Alberta went 1-1 Friday and both are 8-2.

Mel Jordan, representing Alberta-Northwest Territories finished the round-robin Legion playoff at Prince Albert with an 8-1 record, clinching with a 7-0 win over Saskatchewan. Brock Stackhouse of Quebec was second with a 7-2 slate. Ontario was third at 6-3 while B.C. finished in a three-way tie for fourth place at 4-5.

Saskatchewan's Glen Curtis is 4-0 in the Elks championship, a game ahead of Alberta's Don Longmore. B.C. and Manitoba are next at 2-2. Morden, Man., is the host town.

'Problem Is Discipline, Not Violence'

(Last of Three Stories)

By AL COLLETTI
The Canadian Press

Almost everywhere Clarence Campbell goes he must field questions about violence in the National Hockey League.

"It's just the product of the imagination of a lot of kooks who know nothing about it," says the NHL president, his voice rising as he hits back at critics.

Despite intrusion of the courts, nothing has happened so far that makes him believe present NHL disciplinary standards are socially unacceptable, he adds.

He maintains that the rough play in the league today is "pantywaist" compared with the pre-expansion period, prior to 1967, when the NHL had only six teams.

He says there have been two incidents involving the courts and the NHL and neither resulted in convictions.

In 1970, Wayne Maki of St. Louis Blues and Ted Green, then with Boston Bruins were acquitted of assault charges brought against them in Ottawa after a fight in a preseason game Sept. 20, 1969.

The Green-Maki duel ended with Green suffering a skull fracture that almost ended his playing career. Maki, who was not injured in the fight, died four years later of a brain tumor.

Dave Forbes of the Bruins was charged with aggravated assault after a fight with Henry Boucha, then with Minnesota North Stars, in a game in Bloomington, Minn., Jan. 4, 1975.

A nine-day trial in Minneapolis ended in a hung jury and the prosecutor later announced he would not ask for a second trial.

Meanwhile, Boucha underwent a series of operations on an injured eye and early this season was still having problems with double vision.

Still before the courts is the case of Dan Maloney of Detroit Red Wings, charged with assault causing bodily harm for an attack on Brian Glennie, of the Maple Leafs in Toronto last Nov. 5. A trial date is to be set after the end of the NHL season.

Campbell says that if eventually a case involving NHL violence ends in a conviction, it would not mean all that much.

"If this took on any greater or epidemic proportions, obviously we would have to say that socially our disciplinary standards are not acceptable. But up to the present time they certainly have been.

"If you go for 50 years and our discipline is acceptable, what is there that has happened all of a sudden that makes it so unacceptable? Certainly it isn't anything that's happening in the game, I'll guarantee you that. . . .

"I've said this many times — the most violent thing that happens in hockey games these days is the language, and most of it is by the coach against the player. They've even abandoned the referees now."

Bobby Clarke, the Philadelphia Flyers centre who is not averse to wielding his stick when the opportunity presents itself, has suggested that violence should be attacked not from the top but rather at the peewee and junior level.

"I go along with that," Campbell says. "But the approach is not violence at all. That isn't the problem. The problem is discipline. It has nothing to do with violence.

"Everybody is against violence of a character that is likely to be injurious to other people's health. No question about that. Nobody debates that. The National Hockey League doesn't debate it.

"What we say is that we can provide a degree of control that's acceptable to society. We do it ourselves. We don't need any other intervention. It hasn't been demonstrated that it's needed."

This was a reference to the remarks of Ontario's new attorney-general, Ray McMurtry, who last fall ordered Crown attorneys to lay more charges against pro hockey players who commit acts of violence. It was only a few days later that Maloney was charged.

Campbell insists there is no need for police to check on violence on the ice.

"I don't think it's necessary and I don't think it has geen demonstrated that it's necessary.

"I think we've got some do-gooders who think they would like us to play the game the way they like it. But that doesn't happen to be our responsibility."

Asked if suspunsions have been stiffer than normal this year, Campbell replied: "No, less."

In recent weeks there have been a couple of NHL suspensions. Dave Hutchison of Los Angeles Kings was ousted for eight games for trying to spear Doug Risebrough in a game against Montreal Canadiens Jan. 31. He also got a match penalty.

And Bob Dailey of Vancouver Canucks was suspended for two games for shoving referee Bruce Hood to protest a goal by Philadelphia Flyers.

In the World Hockey Association, Bobby Hull of Winnipeg Jets staged a one-game strike in October to protest violence. He was upset by an incident in a game against Cincinnati Stingers in which Perry Miller of the Jets was attacked by three opponents after scoring a goal.

Bernie MacNeil of Cincinnati was required to post a $1,500 bond and coach Terry Slater had to put up $5,000.

But Hull's campaign attracted little active support. And a few days ago the Jets and Quebec Les Nordiques were involved in a bench-clearing brawl in which police restored order after 25 minutes.

Referee Ron Fournier imposed 142 minutes in penalties, including game misconducts to Pierre Roy, Serge Bernier, Gord Gallant and Charles Constantin of Quebec and Lyle Moffat of Winnipeg. Game misconducts carry an automatic $100 fine and the league decided no further action was warranted.

The WHA takes the same position as the NHL. "It is a matter of opinion that there is too much violence in professional hockey," said Bud Poile, WHA vice-president.

He said fines and suspensions have been handed out in an effort to discourage violence. Among them was a six-game suspension of Steve Sutherland of Quebec for hitting Doug Roberts of New England Whalers with his stick in a Feb. 22 game.

And Ben Hatskin, chief executive officer of the league, has said the WHA will be the first to react against coaches or managers "condoning any acts of violence."

"Many people have inferred that some of our owners actually promote violence in order to sell seats. This is not the case. They are aware this type of action would be more detrimental to our sport than it would encourage more fans."

Anti-Violence Bill Introduced For Fan Safety

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government proposed legislation this week to curb violence in sports and to ensure the safety of spectators.

Under the bill, the government may seek injunctions to prevent sporting events from taking place if the safety of participants of spectators is judged to be in danger.

Organizers of recreational and sports activities are responsible for taking "appropriate measures to discourage the use of violence . . . and to ensure the safety of participants and the protection of the public."

The bill was tabled in the national assembly by Paul Phaneuf, minister responsible for the high commission on youth, leisure and sport. When the proposed legislation was promised last year, Mr. Phaneuf said it would be used to curb hockey violence.

JUNIOR COACHES FINED

KELOWNA (CP) — Bryan Couling, president of the British Columbia Junior Hockey League, has fined two coaches $200 each following incidents in two playoff games last weekend.

Joe Tennant, coach of the Vernon Vikings, was fined $200 for verbal abuse of officials in a game against Chilliwack Bruins in Vernon. Tennant also has been ordered to post a $200 bond to prevent further outbursts.

Kreiner Places Third

MONT STE. ANNE, Que. (CP) — The 1975-76 World Cup ski competition moves into its final phase today with the point gathering chase of the last four months replaced by what most of the competitors consider the fun side of the tour.

Today's program consists of a parallel slalom for the women, and this the final stop on the tour concludes Sunday with a similar event for the men.

The parallel slaloms feature the top 32 racers competing against each other in pairs, with the winner of each heat advancing to the next round.

No World Cup points are awarded for these events.

In the final point-garnering event of the season Friday, Monika Kaserer, of Austria won the women's giant slalom.

Kaserer, 23, who started fifth in the field of 59, directed her attack against the 64-gate, 3,939-foot course with such vigor that she finished 41-100ths of a second better than Fabienne Serrat of France.

The winner's time was one minute, 52.43 seconds, compared with the 1:52.84 registered by the French girl.

Kathy Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., an Olympic gold medal winner for Canada at the recent Winter Games at Innsbruck, missed at least a tie for second place here when she finished 1-100th of a second behind Serrat.

Those who were looking for favored Rosi Mettermaier of West Germany to gain revenge for the loss of the Olympic gold medal to Kreiner before the Canadian girl's own fans, were disappointed.

The little West German champion, second to start, failed to finish as she became entangled with a gate one-third of the way down the course.

She was one of five of the 15 top seeds who failed to complete the run. In all, only 42 of the 59-woman field did.

However, Mittermaier retained the over-all season championship by a wide margin. Her 281 points were 67 better than her nearest rival —Lise-Karie Morerod of Switzerland. Kaserer's victory moved her three notches up to third place over-all with 171 points.

Kaserer also vaulted into second spot in the women's GS standings, as she finished with 95 points, four more than Mittermaier, but 25 fewer than Morerod.

In Friday's race Claudia Giordani of Italy placed fourth in 1:53.15, while Evi Mittermaier, younger sister of Rosi, was listed fifth with a time of 1:53.30. Abbi Fisher of the United States matched the younger Mattermaier's time, but was listed as sixth on the official result sheet.

Morerod placed seventh at 1:53.46.

In addition to Kreiner, four other Canadians finished.

Vanita Haining of Calgary and Susan Clifford of Old Chelsea, Que., placed 38th and 39th respectively, while Susan Aslett of Toronto and Jeanette Zanier of Trail, B.C., were 41st and 42nd. Karen Cloutier of Lorraine, Que., did not finish.

Two Title Bouts Highlight Card

Two title fights highlight a professional wrestling card which begins at 8 p.m. Thursday at Memorial Arena.

In the other bout, Gene Kiniski and Siegfried Steinke battle George Wells and Dean Higuchif or the Canadian tag team championship.

Four supporting bouts complete the card.

"With 50 tons of logs breathing down your neck..."

"With 50 tons of logs breathing down your neck, it's nice to know you won't slide around. From Vancouver to Calgary, nothing fazed those little Fiats.

The 128 is unusually roomy. It took four big men. Comfortably.

Icy logging trails, deep snow, or fast highway cruising. Heavy loads, big people, hard work. They never put a foot wrong."

It was no modern Saga of the West! But it was quite a test of a car. Two cars, to be exact. A Fiat 128 sedan, and the new Fiat 3P hatchback coupe.

The occasion: A photographic session in the Rockies and the foothills of Alberta. Vancouver photographer Toby Rankin and one of the drivers, Montrealer Robi Roncarelli, know cars. Both raced and rallied in club events, as Rankin puts it, "in our impetuous youth". But the Fiat 128 was unfamiliar to them. And a surprise to both. Some sample quotes:

Rankin: "The cars would start off on steep hills, in packed snow, no fuss at all. With my car I'd have had to back right down to the bottom and try again." (Rankin owns a small import — a sporty, expensive one. But unlike the Fiat, it doesn't have front-wheel drive.)

Roncarelli: "Fantastic handling. Rankin would say things like 'take the bend a foot from the snowbank, slide the rear end round so I can take a side shot, then straighten out in front of the tree.' And it would do it like that." (The 128 has won the Canadian Winter Rally five times — a record that will most likely never come close to being equalled.)

Rankin: "That's a really solid car. No squeaks or groans — and some of those logging roads were rough."

Roncarelli: "The engine had the guts to keep going at high speeds mile after mile. It pulled powerfully up the mountains even at low revs."

Rankin: "We had crosswinds gusting to at least 40 and it was as steady as a rock."

"A car that can maneuver as well in the snow as the 128 would find our hills and downtown traffic a breeze to handle" —Vancouverite Rankin.

The writer: "I was in the back most of the time. Boy, there's a lot of room! I'm big, but my legs weren't cramped at all and the back seat's really comfortable. Most aren't."

Verdict: "Tremendous little cars!

Rankin said: "I like the hatchback. I can get my camera gear in and out fast and it makes a great platform for running shots!"

Fiat 128 3P Coupe.

Fiat 128 Sedan.

FIAT 128 SEDAN. Front-wheel drive. Independent suspension all round. Power-assisted disc brakes up front. Rack and pinion steering. 13 cu. ft. trunk. Steel-belted radials. 2-door, 4-door and station wagon versions. Guts, space, and great handling — the superior small car. FIAT 128 3P COUPE. The virtues of the sedan, plus a hatchback, fold-down rear seat and beautiful lines.

Note — The Fiat 128 costs more than most other small cars. But if you want more space, and guts, and front wheel drive, and super handling, as Roncarelli observed: "It's more than worth the extra money." But you'll have to take a test drive to know for sure, won't you? Do that!

The 131. High-performance engine with handling to match — a family car.

In performance, the Fiat 131 is in the same league as the Volvo 242, BMW 2002 and Audi 100LS. But it costs a lot less. It comes as a sedan or station wagon. Has 5-speed gearbox (five!) or an on-the-floor automatic you can shift for yourself if you have a mind to.

Classic Spider, or mid-engine X1/9. Some choice!

The Fiat 124 Spider — one of the world's few remaining genuine sports cars. Fast. Roomy. Comfortable. And open to sun, wind and admiration. On the other hand, there's only a handful of mid-engine sports cars. And only one at the price of the X 1/9. Some choice!

Care ensures illness-free trip

By HARRY NELSON

It takes only a little common sense and vigilance — plus a few tricks of travelling — to stay healthy and happy roaming the world.

A few precautions can make serious illness unlikely but there are risks. There are also ways to minimize those risks if you know how. Here are some of the ways to ensure an illness-free journey:

Vaccinations. Generally, travel directly to the United States, European countries Mexico or the Caribbean does not require an international certificate of vaccination. There are, however, vaccination requirements for travel to specific countries and between countries. You can learn the details from your travel agent or ask your physician.

Immunization can be required for travel to certain countries by international law only for smallpox and yellow fever. However, in some parts of the world, failure to have a documented cholera immunization necessitates having the shot at the border (sometimes with a needle of doubtful sterility), or some kind of antibiotic prophylaxis. Consequently, cholera vaccine (although medically not considered very effective) often is recommended before leaving, if the traveller is to visit certain countries.

Some doctors give gamma globulin to persons going to countries where hepatitis is a high risk. It usually is not considered necessary for travel to urban Mexico, the Caribbean, the U.S., New Zealand, Australia, Japan or Europe.

Prophylactic drugs. According to Dr. Elizabeth Barrett-Connor, a University of California at San Diebo medical school authority, only three parasitic diseases are preventable with currently available drugs. They are malaria, amebiasis (a serious form of dysentery) and African trypanosamiasis (sleeping sickness) — all diseases which the average traveller need not be concerned with.

Risks can be minimized

Unlike some physicians, Dr. Barrett-Connor does not recommend drugs to prevent the most common of all travellers' ills — travellers' diarrhea.

In the past many doctors have advised the prophylactic use of a drug called Enteroviaform to ward of attacks of diarrhea which commonly affect travellers. In 1972, however, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration recommended against its use for that purpose because of its tendency to produce undesirable neurological side effects in certain susceptible individuals.

Dr. Barrett-Connor is opposed to the use of sulfa drugs and the antibiotic neomycin taken prophylactically for the prevention of diarrhea on grounds that they "probably are more hazardous than the limited illness those drugs are intended to prevent."

Her chief reason for advising against use of the drug for this purpose, she wrote in a recent issue of the Western Jornal of Medicine, is that they upset the balance of bacteria normally present in the intestinal tract, thereby making the person more susceptible to other bacteria that can cause intestinal illness.

Probably the most effective preventive of diarrhea is care in drinking and eating. Impure water (including ice) is one of the most common sources of the bacteria which can make the traveller's sojourn in a foreign land miserable for a few days. This risk can be avoided by using soft drinks, beer, wine or carbonated water instead of the water from an unkown source often served in hotels and restaurants.

If it's necessary to drink water, purify it by use of tablets that can be purchased before leaving home. Another method is to travel with a small bottle of Clorox and an eye-dropper. One drop of Clorox per quart of water (two drops if the water is cloudy) will kill most bacteria within 10 minutes. Faucet water that is uncomfortably hot to touch is usually safe to brush your teeth with.

Some doctors suggest the Clorox method as a way to treat ice that may be contaminated. Or, two or three drops of iodine per quart of water will achieve the same results as Clorox.

Food is harder than water to control as a source of bacteria which may cause diarrhea. The risk can be minimized by avoiding all raw food, particularly vegetables, or any fruit or vegetable that cannot be peeled.

It may be difficult to do, but some authorities say it may be wise to avoid the lavish buffets offered by some hotels on the terrace or the patio in warm countries. They can be particularly risky after the food has been exposed a long time inadequately refrigerated — or refrigerated on a bed of contaminated ice.

Diarrhea occurs sometimes, despite all precautions. When it does, there are numerous medications and home remedies that are said to relieve the symptoms but none is perfect.

Eating chocolate is said to be one remedy. Paregoric and a drug called Lomotil are two of the medications most commonly prescribed. But according to Dr. Barrett-Connor, the value of all such drugs is questionable.

While on the subject of drugs, the trade names of drugs do not signify the same drug in all countries. For example, the trade name Cardoxin is used in Israel for the generic drug dipyridamole, a dilator of coronary arteries. In Australia, Cardoxin describes a heart drug but not the same one as in Israel.

Didion, a trade name in Europe to describe a drug used for epilepsy, is used in Israel to describe an anticoagulant.

Except in emergencies, travellers are advised to refuse medications that must be injected by physicians or pharmacists in a setting where there is reason to believe the needle may not be properly sterilized. Persons with medications prescribed by their personal physician should carry a letter from him saying this is the case. It sometimes avoids problems with customs agents who may wonder at the traveller's array of drugs.

Here are some of the medical items you might consider taking with you: A spare pair of glasses or a copy of the prescription, insect repellent, sleeping pills, Clorox or iodine and eyedropper, bandages, antiseptic, non-narcotic pain reliever such as aspirin, antibiotic-antifungal ointment and a broad spectrum antibiotic.

A common problem with modern travelling arises from the physiological effects of long distance nonstop jet flights, particularly from west to east — best known as jet lag.

Fatigue, insomnia, anxiety or depression are among its more common symptoms. They arise because the body "clock" is still set on your departure time while your time of arrival is hours slower or faster depending on the direction of your flight.

A recent article in the Western Journal of Medicine suggested these ways to reduce jet lag symptoms:

● For short flights eat, go to bed and arise the first day or so according to "home time."

● When travelling west to east, go to bed progressively earlier before the trip (vice versa east to west).

● Use food and drink sparingly during the flight and the first three days after arrival.

● On long flights arrange a halfway stopover.

● Arrange your schedule to shorten the day rather than the night.

If you travelled to a developing country, public health authorities recommend you be screened for diseases you may have acquired.

Regardless of where you have been, you should see a doctor if you develop a fever or diarrhea after returning home.

Wales evokes dreams of Camelot

By KEN HUDSON

Today's Welshmen — who claim to be the only pure English because of their Celtic ancestry — take this remarkably beautiful countryside as a matter of course.

One would not be at all surprised to see Merlin come forth from the thickets, even though this village is a bit north of those places that claim a direct relationship ith the Arthurian legend.

Ruins of grey castles brood over the countryside from hillsides, almost as if they are watching the flocks of sheep and cattle that graze between the hedgerows.

Whether coal miners or farmers, factory workers or fishermen, the gentle people of this land resist the inroads of modern technology.

They even are changing the Anglicized county names back to the original Welsh names — names like Dyfed, Powys, Gwynedd and Clwyd.

These people speak a soft, lilting mixture of English and Welsh that fits perfectly with this land of poetry and music.

For more than an hour each Monday night here in Brecon, the church bells sound across the River Usk and gently echo back from the hills.

But they aren't calling the faithful to services.

It is the practice night for the bell changers, who are learning this age-old art of crating muxic. The practice is repeated across the land in virtually every village on various nights of the week.

The bell changers form an elite social group, along with the members of the many choirs. Farther north, the poets are more numerous, and there are local, as well as national, poetry competitions.

South Wales is an alluring place to the visitor, and it takes only a short time to get over the reluctance to try pronouncing some of the village names — like Llandovery, Ebbw Vale, Bwlch and Aver-gavenny of Cwmbran.

Alluring, friendly, mystical

It isn't easy, but the friendly Welsh are happy to hear visitors at least trying to pronounce those names correctly.

If one tires of visiting the vast number of castles, there are remarkable caves and potholes, excellent fishing streams and a network of lanes that satisfy the most avid backpackers.

Even busy, bustling, industrial Cardiff — from whence Lancelot reportedly escaped the wrath of King Arthur after his dalliance with Guinevere — boasts wonderful attractions such as Cardiff Castle and the National Museum of Wales.

An automobile is suggested for touring Wales. Although the major cities are served by the superbly efficient British Railway system, it hasn't penetrated the countryside as it has in England.

There are local buses but even then the visitor is fairly limited in getting to intriguing places.

For a modest amount (less than $15), one can take a train from London's massive Paddington Station to Bristol, hire a car (for less than $90 a week with unlimited mileage) and begin probing into the colorful countryside villages.

$1,000 buys citizenship

Residents make all decisions in Swiss town

By MARGARET NESS

RAPPERSWIL, Switzerland (CP) — In this charming Swiss town of 8,500, you need permission from the general open assembly before you change the outside color of your house.

The assembly, which consists of all adult residents, decides on everything to do with the town, even such minor matters as increasing the dog licence fee. Women have shared in its deliberations since they were granted the vote three years ago.

An important revenue source for the town is honorary citizenships, which the assembly gladly bestows on anyone willing to pay about $1,000 for the privilege. The money supports Rapperswil's cultural activities.

About 12 years ago, the town started restoring its old houses from various periods and the castle on the hill. In keeping with the restoration plan, television aerials are banned.

The town and castle date back to the early 13th century when young Count Rodolf, returning from the First Crusade, fell in love with the flat hilltop site on a peninsula jutting out into the Lake of Zurich and built a fortress-style castle.

The castle, overlooking the red-roofed four-and five-storey houses, has two high towers. Its inner courtyard is surrounded by thick walls and a wooden gallery that served as a lookout.

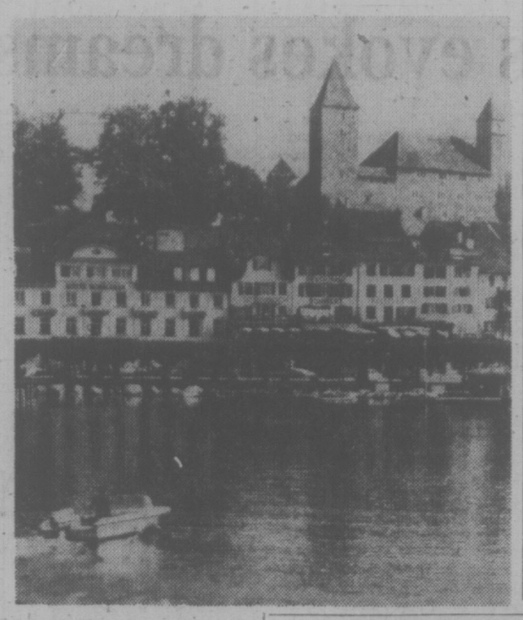
Outside the walls is a walk leading to the sandstone Church of St. John, with high, narrow windows and moss-green tiles down the centre aisle.

The main square is dominated by the 15th century Rathaus (town hall) with a fine banqueting hall. On the front of another house is a huge painting of the three wise men presenting gifts to the infant Jesus.

On the outskirts is Knie's children's zoo, run by Circus Knie, the national circus, which has its headquarters in Rapperswil. Open from March 15 to Oct. 15, it supplies special food for children to feed to the animals, some of which run loose.

Rapperswil can be a centre for exploring the St. Gall district. There are several good hotels including the Hotel Schwanen, more than 100 years old, on the lakeside promenade with an excellent dining room.

Or the town can be reached easily for a day trip from Zurich. It is 19 miles by road, 50 minutes by express train or two hours by lake steamer.



A 13th century castle looks down on Swiss town of Rapperswil, sited on Lake of Zurich. Citizens have restored old houses, dating from various periods, and in keeping with program television aerials are banned.

Simple meal insult to Maxim's!

PARIS (AP) — Fried eggs, salad and water for two at some of Paris's most famous restaurants will bring a bill for about $30 and a large portion of French sarcasm and contempt.

The conclusion is that of the newspaper Le Figaro, which sent two of its reporters to five Paris restaurants—four of them three-star gastronomic places—to test whether courtesy could withstand an assault on self-importance.

The reporters wrote that they were welcomed with simplicity and friendliness at Le Grand Vefour, Lasserre and Ledoyen.

But it was a different situation at Mixim's and La Tour d'Argent where the reporters were subjected to stares, arguments and sarcastic asides from the waiters.

Claude Terrail, director of La Tour D'Argent, said he was amused by the article.

Roger, Mixim's headwaiter, was not.

"It's a provocation," he said. "He lacked respect for Mixim's. This was not a foreigner, but a Frenchman. A Parisian. A provication, I tell you."

JERRY HULSE visits a Club Mediterranee

For legions of lotus eaters, the Garden of Eden is a cashless society of beads, bronzed bodies and bikinis.

In this never-never-land of sun and sex, no one eats alone, plays alone or sleeps alone. That is to say, no one occupies a room alone. The bed? Well, this is another matter; such decisions are left to the individual.

As for the beads, they are used in lieu of money (obviously the sight of cash would spoil the illusion). This is another world and it is only when one returns to the real world that the bar bill arrives with other incidentals.

By now it should be clear to nearly everyone that this world without woe is the famous (and sometimes infamous) Club Mediterranee which operates private enclaves throughout the world with a success best described as remarkable.

Without exception, the philosophy is the same at all clubs: an inexpensive vacation with a lack of formality. At Club Med guests are freed from ordinary rules and restraints, the idea being to shuffle through Shangri-la without giving a hoot—the meek as well as the mellow.

At Club Med there are no radios, no TV, no newspapers. None of the distractions which haunt the rest of us beyond the club gates. There is only this moment, and it is to be enjoyed.

The dress of the day is a bikini or a pareau and the most pressing decision concerns only whether to go skin-diving or sailing, sunbathing or skiing.

It is a formula that has worked effectively from the moment the first club opened on the island of Majorca in 1950 until the present. With 72 clubs currently operating from Moorea to Marramesh and from Israel to Italy, the organization continued to move ahead.

It's a French theme with an international flavor, and although you may not understand the language, who can misunderstand the bikini? Still, Club Med is not for everyone. It depends upon the individual and that individual's inhibitions and desires.

For instance, Club Med is facing a lawsuit brought by a young woman who felt unsuited to the bikini and the gay abandon of life on the Caribbean isle of Martinique. During a three-week vacation she claims she wasn't left alone for a single day or evening.

It is common knowledge among the club's vast alumni that Martinique is dedicated to the swinger. It is a singles sanctuary in which the sun warms the blood and the hunt is the challenge.

The cast at Club Med's worldwide properties ranges from secretaries in their 20s to those who remain young only in heart.

Kauai in Hawaii is a departure for Club Med in that it is the first property operating under a franchise. Here where the sky comes wrapped in rainbows, the French have joined hands with the Japanese to attract both the Occidental and the Oriental.

Instead of the hula, vacationers do the penguin and in place of island lullabies, the band plays rock, all of which indicates that it's neither French nor Japanese. Or even Hawaiian for that matter.

No concern, for the international sign language remains the swaying of a bikini — out among the sheltering palms.

And then there's the enclave on Guadeloupe in the French Caribbean, a tropical outpost where vacationers occupy rooms in the old Ft. Royal Hotel, sunbathe nude on nearby beaches and join hands in body-building classes guaranteed to take the sags out of tired muscles.

It is all a bit of St. Tropez with a Caribbean accent. There was, as I recall, a receptionist named Sophia, a brunette goddess who wore nothing more than a smile and a bikini, her lovely eyes every bit as seductive as lovely Liz Taylor's.

From my window at Club Med I could count the girls on the beach. They were French, American, Swedish, Spanish and Dutch. As each new group arrived members were greeted by the chief de village who suggested that they remove coat, tie and girdle and get on with the joie de vivre.

You have to remember, however, that there is a great deal of togetherness and that if this is not your dish, then neither is Club Mediterranee.

It is the communal life, with groups bathing together (I'm speaking of sunbathing), playing together and dining family style at tables set for eight.

Among North Americans, the most popular clubs are those in the Caribbean, Hawaii and Tahiti. For one reason, the staff members all speak English.

There are few bilingual properties in Europe. An exception is St. Moritz where the good life during the high winter season comes to $247 a week, including free skiing lessons, meals and shelter.

Club Med's single biggest playground exists on the Greek island of Corfu where up to 1,500 members of the beads-and-bikini set are accommodated in a single session, the low season price being $90 a week and the high season package selling for $134. Only Don't expect the simple luxuries, private baths being one example. Here everyone uses a community tub.

Closer to home, Club Med's Playa Blanca property (Between Puerto Vallarta and Manzanilla) costs $220 a week (April through the end of September) plus air fare. The high season rate is $325. For people used to luxury, this is the place.

The club's most remote site is Mauritius in the Indian Ocean off Madagascar, while its most popular destination (among Americans) is Tahiti.

Tahiti is not all that popular, though. I have a couple of acquaintances who travelled there with stars in their eyes and returned bitterly disappointed, which surprised me because they insisted beforehand that they loved the outdoor life of which you get a big helping in Tahiti.

Three evenings a week a jetliner filled with escapists leaves los Angeles International Airport bound for Tahiti. The passengers pay $964 each for the round trip hop, shelter for two weeks, meals, wine, sun and fun, the cautivites including fishing, snorkeling, scuba diving, tennis and a lifetime or togetherness squeezed into the 14-day period.

It is an overnight flight that delivers the recruits to Tahiti at five the next morning. After this they're delivered across the Sea of the Moon to the club's slick operation on the island of Moorea.

Guests disenbark at Cook's Bay, behind which mountain peaks rise like the spires on a church. Thatched huts like those in the romantic flicks stand among the coconut palms. Along the shore a dozen outrigger canoes await the new arrivals.

Supine on the golden sands are lovely brown-skinned maidens, drowsing in the hot sun, voluptuous bodies draped in colorful bikinis.

It is the South Seas with boy-girl chases, stars that hang barely above the earth and the heady fragrance of frangipangi perfuming one of French Polynesia's loveliest islands.

Palms provide shade and lagoons shimmer like liquid rainbows. It takes little time until demure holidaying secretaries switch roles, becoming seductive maiders dressed in bikinis.

Meanwhile, the male contingent, freed from the skyscraper jungles back home, grab a wahine, a run punch and the chase beings.

For the following two weeks Club Med's guests live as Tahitian as possible without giving up their own citizenship. They set sail in outrigger canoes, visit neighboring islands, are serenaded by the islanders and, after two weeks, return home — the whole episode filling their minds like some melancholy dream.

There was an attorney who sat one day with his wife on the beach. As one of the Club Med's babes-among-the-palms, he's spent a fortnight shelling along the shore, swilling rum, napping and reading. He even grew a beard when shaving became a nuisance. In only days he's succumbed to a virulent attack of Polynesian paralysis.

All his life he'd been a lotus eater . . . and here he hadn't even realized it.

A Worthy Theatre Showcase

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER

LONDON — The brilliant National Theatre Company, perhaps the world's finest repertory group, has found a showcase worthy of its tal—ents.

After 12 years in the cramped Old Vic the company moved into its new home last week, a massive concrete structure of towers and terraces on the south bank of the Thames.

This time, the theatre as well as the actors has been playing to rave reviews.

Only one of the three auditoria, the 890-seat Lyttleton Theatre, is completed and it is a playgoers' delight. The sight lines from its two tiers to the conventional proscenium stage are superb. I could hear and see almost as well from the last row as from those up front. There was little distortion even from seats on the flanks.

etting in and out of Lyttleton is remarkably easy, with no crush at a full house. The foyers are spacious, there are eight bars and so no pileups there, either. I shudder at the prospect of traffic jams when all three of the structure's new theatres are going at once. But an easy walk across the adjoining Waterloo Bridge will take you quickly to the north bank and the Strand.

Esthetically, architect Denys Lasdun's work will take some time to become familiar. The grey concrete exterior with its jagged profile looks like a stranded ship. Indeed, one critic thought it looked "rather like an aircraft carrier in collision with a Norman keep."

The interior is far more satisfying. Unfinished, sand-colored concrete walls and pillars sound brutal, but somehow they are not. Thin vertical slabs, horizontal balconies and curving diagonal staircases make a coherent setting. Low concrete ceilings, indirect lights and purple carpets encourage an unexpected intimacy. The sense of drama never leaves the playgoer when he leaves the auditorium during an intermission.

This summer, the building trades willing, the other two stages are due to open. The Olivier is the principal theatre, with its 1,160 seats arranged fan-like around an open stage. The Cottesole, with 400 seats in a box, will provide an arena for experimental drama.

Peter Hall, the new director who has succeeded Laurence Olivier, plans to use the National Theatre from noon until night. Its restaurant and two buffets will be open for lunch, drawing office workers for the view, if not the food. In the early evening before the curtain, Hall will exploit the large foyers several times a week, presenting concerts, recitals and playlets.

One of Hall's biggest innovations is his price policy. At the Lyttleton, one-fifth of the seats will be sold on the day of performance for just $2. An advance sale seat can be bought for as little as $4.70. The buyer will not get a numbered seat, but the best one available when he shows up. The expense account trade, insisting on numbered reserved seats, can have them for an additional $4.

If this works — and Hall is already running into complaints — it will be extended to the Olivier Theatre. The experimental Cottesole will have only low-priced seats.

What the playgoer gets for his money probably cannot be duplicated anywhere. The National currently has six plays in its repertoire: John Gielgud and Ralph Richardson in Harold Pinter's despairing "No Man's Land"; Albert Finney as "Hamlet," a striking nihilistic interpretation directed by Hall; John Osborne's new play, "Let It Come Down"; a stark reading of Ibsen's "John Gabriel Borkman"; Samuel Beckett's "Happy Days" and Ben Travers "Plunder," a lightweight 1828 farce about gentlemen crooks that is redeemed by sparkling ensemble playing.

About $32 million of taxpayers' funds were spent to build the new National Theatre. Hall and his company — which also includes Wendy Hiller, Angela Lansbury, Denis Quilley, Peggy Ashcroft and Frann Finlay — get $4 million a year more for their plays. This covers about half the cost of production, with the rest coming from ticket sales.

Finney and the others have been saying that their new workplace is an actor's dream. It has huge rehearsal rooms, technical devices for fast and complex scene changes and first-rate acoustics.

Above all, this latest addition to the south bank's art complex is a working tribute to the belief that theatre matters in a civilized community.

Bastion Hunts for Gowns

Bastion Theatre is on the look-out for fashionable gowns.

Not the today look, but the look that was supreme a couple of decades ago — the coutourier designs of the 50's associated with such names as Jacques Fath, Balenciaga, Dior and Schiapiarelli.

If anyone has an evening gown or accessory that echoes these coutourier creations, Bastion wants to borrow them for its next production, Jean Anouilk's Ring Round the Moon.

Smokey on Top

By DAVE MARSH

SMOKEY ROBINSON: "Smokey's Family Robinson."

The fourth solo album from the man who has embodied Motown for the better part of two decades is simply marvelous, as relaxed and confident as Robinson's records with the Miracles, his old group. Always a great singer and writer, Robinson has become a competent producer, canny arranger and true sex symbol, paralleled at his Motown base only by Marvin Gaye and Stevie Wonder.

But unlike Wonder, Robinson has gained his musical maturity without losing sight of the vocal style which brought him his first success. (How could he? Has thereever been a more distinctive voice than Robinson's high, wavering tenor?)

Although all of his songs (save one) on this album run for more than four minutes, the instrumental passages never get away from the vocals which propel the songs. Like the arrangements on Gaye's What's Going On and Let's Get It On, Robinson's instrumentals are delicate and understated, relying often on lighter horns, like the flute or Marvin Tarplin's incredibly elegant guitar figures.

The rhythm section is incredibly reflexive, contributing to the record's extreme sense of relaxation.

But Robinson, as contemporary as his music may be, still retains all those wonderful characteristics of the past. His voice is one of the great soul vehicles, in a league with Otis Redding, Jackie Wilson, Jerry Butler and Sam Cooke's, which is the only league that counts. And his writing continues to be marvelously bemused by the everyday—Robinson can still take a phrase like 'Get Out of Town' and turn it into something obsessively hummable. Better, he can build on an over-worked lyric idea like 'Castles Made of Sand,' his greatest song of his solo career. And his imagery, with its lovely little internal rhymes, remains too special to characterize: in 'Castles,' unstable-unable and weak foundation-mere imitation become reinforcing rhymes, yet they're sung with such grace that the almost punning quality of the former and the double banality of the latter are elevated.

He loses control only on 'Open,' which is out of character. Riff-rock in the Wonder-Sly-Stone tradition probably isn't ever going to be something Robinson can feel comfortable with (although the upbeat 'Mickey's Monkey' and 'Going to A Go-Go' from the first disco era prove he can cut loose). And it hardly matters, for the bump-and-grind of 'Do Like I Do' will keep his music on the dance floor. What's more important is that Smokey Robinson has moved so completely into contemporary music without sacrificing any of the peculiar warmth which made so many of us love him in his miracles days.

NET CROSSED OCEAN, OFFICIALS BELIEVE

QUEEN CHARLOTTE CITY (CP) — Officials have determined that a radio-equipped section of a fishnet found on a beach northwest of here last week apparently drifted across the Pacific Ocean from Japanese waters.

When it was found, officials believed that it may have come from a foreign vessel fishing illegally in Canadian waters.

But Captain Mitchell Gay, marine superintendent for the southern operations branch of the federal fisheries service, said investigation showed it had lain on the beach for "some length of time."

He said the investigators concluded it had broken loose from net fishing operations in Japanese waters.

There was no evidence the net had been set by a vessel fishing illegally in Canadian waters, although the markings on the transmitter were in Japanese.

Musicals Dominate New Theatre Season

If dance lovers had their picnic in 1975-76, it begins to look as though the balance of '76 is going to be dedicated to those whose special interest is the musical theatre.

Staged musicals all the way from Broadway to grand opera are lining up elbow-to-elbow from April until almost the end of the year. Included in this sudden proliferation are the traditional and the new, the imported and the home-grown.

An import starts the ball rolling at the end of this month with Offenbach's romantic comedy, The Grand Duchess, a first visit by Vancouver's bustling 28-year-old North Shore Opera Society.

Following less than a month later comes Victoria Operatic Society's Cole Porter goodie, Can-Can.

With scarcely a pause the newest Victoria theatrical organization bows onto the McPherson stage under the name Mascot Theatre in a John Krich-directed production of Gypsy.

But the show with the newest angles and most interesting possibilities is John Minshall's proposed summer production of Cabaret. If there are no hitches, and none are in view at this time, Cabaret will go into rehearsal fairly soon (casting starts next week) and will be performed with the audience seated around tables in cabaret style. It will be staged all of July and August, for the first month in the Cedar Hill Community Centre and during August at the Empress Hotel.

Four Seasons Musical Theatre Society, which did Gilbert and Sullivan excerpts at Newcombe Auditorium under the Summer Festival umbrella last year, has plans to be back in action this summer, but there will be a difference. Because Provincial Museum authorities have ruled out such events in the Newcombe, the Four Seasons group plans to remove their action to The Belfry.

And because that means they will be charging something for admission, it also means that they can no longer come under the Festival umbrella, which, being grant-sponsored, means concerts and all fringe benefits must be free to the public.

Early in the fall John Minshall brings a group from Britain also doing Gilbert and Sullivan and a little later VOS is on again with The Stingiest Man in Town.

The fall marks another debut — the Vancouver Island Opera Association, with more than three years of preparatory workshops and study behind it, mounting its first full opera, Mozart's lilting Marriage of Figaro, at the McPherson.

It seems therefore that for the large percentage of people who like their music to have the eye-appeal of dramatic action, or who like their action prettied up with music, the spring, summer and fall is taken care of.

But there is still one sort of musical theatre which has a place in the season but is not, at present, on anyone's list; and that's one of those special kinds of imaginative fantastical shows that have magic for every member of the family and that belong so perfectly in the Christmas season.

I'd like to think that it wouldn't be Nutcracker for the umpteenth time, nor English pantomime, but a concoction totally our own — a story line for instance based on a native myth with music written and arranged by one of our not inconsiderable group of talented composers.

And if I were asked to nominate the people to take on such a project my vote would havet o go to Kaleidoscope, that small company of highly imaginative professionals who are proving conclusively to all who have had the privilege of seeing their work that they are totally in tune with the youngest generation and a joy to everyone else.

TRUE LOVE'S PATH is not running quite smoothly for David (Dugald Nasmith) and Wanda (Paul Reck) and all because David fell in love with the stage and in seeking a career with a fifth-rate company in the Bronx has become entangled in some sticky problems. Altogether it makes for some bright comedy. Its title is Enter Laughing, directed by John Krich for Victoria Theatre Guild, opening at Langham Court Thursday, where it will run through April 5. Also in the cast are Brian Lenton, Rube Price, Helen Jarvis, Richard Neville, Todd McIntosh and Jim Dunn. Box office opens Tuesday at Eaton's. (Photo by Dietrich)

Musical Profiles:

WAYNE

A Star on Strings

Wayne Thompson started his musical career on a one-eighth size violin in the Suzuki classes of Frona Colquhoun. That was a few years ago.

Now at age 13 he is assistant concert master of the Greater Victoria Schools Symphony Orchestra, studies with its director, Thomas Tucker, and this week won the strings championship with 91 marks in the Upper Island Musical Festival in Nanaimo.

In the Victoria Music Festival he has received the B.C. Registered Music Teachers junior strings award for two consecutive years and will be back this year when the Music Festival gets under way in late April.

'The Grand Duchess'

From its debut in 1949 with the short grand opera, Cavalleria Rusticana, the North Shore Light Opera Society of Vancouver has made a long trek through Gilbert and Sullivan, Lehar, Smetana and Herbert among others, to its current production, Jacques Offenbach's The Grand Duchess.

Its 30th show in 27 years is also the occasion of the company's first trip to Victoria. It goes on stage with The Duchess at McPherson Playhouse March 27 at 8 p.m. and March 28 at 2 p.m.

Offenbach is a master of the comic operetta and Grand Duchess is built around lively, lilting music of the kind that made both his tales of Hoffman and Orpheus in the Underworld timeless favorites.

The production is possibly the Canadian premiere of the work, but this year the Canadian Opera Company will also perform it throughout Ontario.

A cast of more than 50 with orchestra and fully mounted will introduce it to Victoria theatre-goers.

The amateur company works under the direction of Norman Leggett, ballet master for the Anna Wyman Dance Theatre, whose international experience in direction and choreography includes work in England, Scotland, Belgium, France and Holland.

'Friendly Things' for Kids

An exhibition of Polaroid photographs by young children in three Victoria schools —South Park, Tolmie and Sundance—will be presented at Open Space Gallery under the title Friendly Things, from March 29 through April 10.

The project is sponsored by the National Film Board and is being arranged by Peggy Cady and Lucien Duhamel.

In conjunction with the exhibit the gallery has arranged a special program for elementary school children. Between the hours of 12 noon and 3 p.m. during the exhibition there will be daily performances of short plays, dramatic readings, puppet shows, musical events, workshops in dance, visual arts, movement and music.

School groups are being encouraged to contribute in these areas.

Workshops led by the children for the purpose of communicating a skill or special activity to another group of children are another aspect of the project.

Friendly Things will be the theme for all performances and workshops. Anyone interested in participating in the series of events in any capacity should contact Ms. Cady or Geli Lukin Johnson at 383-8833 or at 510 Fort.

Cariboo's Deep Powder Lures Skiers Who Can Pay the Shot

VALEMOUNT, B.C. (CP) — The lure of deep powder brings hundreds of skiers from across Canada, the United States and Europe to the Cariboo Mountains every winter.

The area, just off the Yellowhead Highway, has become a skiers' mecca because of the downhill runs that average between 2,000 and 3,000 feet of fine powder, far away from the crowded slopes of most Canadian resort centres.

Canadian Mountain Holidays, based in Banff, Alta., and operating through Bow Helicopters, offers this virgin powder without lift lineups for those who can pay the shot and have above-average skiing ability and fitness.

Weekly rates for a helicopter skiing holiday vary from $570 during the slow part of the season to about $950 during the Jan. 24 to April 3 period.

There are two jump-off points in the area: one at Cariboo Lodge offering only seven-day packages, and the other at the Sarak Motel offering both daily and five-day packages. Daily rates vary from $60 to $75 depending on the season.

Skiers opting for the more lengthy packages travel by bus from Edmonton to Valemount where they are taken by helicopter to their lodge high in the mountains.

Groups of 11 skiers go out with a guide who selects the route and leads the skiers down the mountain.

Pat Lever at Canadian Mountain Holidays' Banff office says all of the 10 guides in the Cariboo are certified by the Canadian Association of Mountain Guides or the parallel European organization.

Professional guide Hermann Frank is in charge of the day skiers and he sees to it that nothing is overlooked in making the experience safe as well as exhilarating and memorable.

Miss Lever says the organization's accident record is good, considering that powder skiing in the mountains is always potentially dangerous. Only one person has been killed in an avalanche in the 21 years that Canadian Mountain Holidays has been operating.

Skiers are equipped with SKADIS avalanche radios which serve as both transmitters and receivers, enabling searchers to find a buried skier in minutes. Also, guides are equipped with rescue gear.

Student Play At Noon

Cat XT-3 Hose
gets wide use at major B.C. coal mine

Caterpillar XT-3 hydraulic hose is used extensively at the large surface coal mining operations of Kaiser Resources Limited, in southeastern British Columbia. Not only on 32 different pieces of Caterpillar equipment, but also in the steering and dump-hoist circuits of other large rock and coal handling machines including 22 cubic yard front end loaders and giant 100 and 200-ton haul trucks in which hydraulic pressures may rise as high as 2,000 psi.

With a tough outer cover that resists weather, oil and abrasions, Cat XT-3 hose maintains a remarkable flexibility while performing under the toughest high pressure applications. Unlike many competitive makes, Caterpillar collet-type couplings are reusable—not just once, but over and over again—cutting replacement costs and adding savings in maintenance time. And when these couplings are matched with Cat XT-3 hose, leakage and blow-offs are drastically reduced, giving better production, less pollution and additional safety on the job.

In hundreds of applications across British Columbia, Caterpillar XT-3 hose and couplings are reducing downtime while increasing production and profitability on all types of equipment—in mining, forestry, construction, materials handling, fish boats, tow boats—anywhere high pressure hose is used.

Caterpillar XT-3 hose assemblies and a wide range of fittings are available in full supply from all Finning parts centres or their sub-dealers located throughout the province. Finning, a British Columbia company, working for and with British Columbia industry.

Jews in India Port City Last of Vanishing Breed

By PAUL CHUTKOW

COCHIN, India (AP) — As darkness falls on this little port city on India's southwest coast, Jacob Ellas Cohen and Raymond Abraham Salem make their way home from the synagogue.

They and about a dozen other men from Cochin's ancient enclave of "white Jews" have just finished an Orthodox midweek prayer meeting in what Cochin's Hindus, Christians and Jews all approvingly refer to as "Jew Town."

The street is crowded with barefoot, turbaned messengers jabbering to bicycle rickshaw drivers in their native Malayalam, and a sea breeze envelops Cohen and Salem in the typically Indian night scents of nim trees and the sweet little cigarettes called Bidis.

The names on the houses are Cohen, Parur, Hallegua. On the door frame of many of them is the traditional Jewish mezuzah.

"Yes," says Cohen. "You certainly must see Ruth. Ruth's a doctor."

The women are playing or kibitzing a card game brought to the south of India centuries ago by the Portuguese and they barely look up when Cohen and Salem introduce them to a Western visitor.

"These are our ladies—all of them," Cohen says.

For a long time now Cochin's 50 or 60 remaining Jews, who trace their settlement in India to before Christ, have been trying to accept what appears to be inevitable. The young people are leaving.

"In another decade the community will be gone," says Salem, a 56-year-old bachelor. "The only ones left are those that are too young or too old to leave and those who have businesses here.

"The reason is simple. No young people, no babies. I would love to get married. I've been thinking of getting married for years. There are no available women here. Unless I go to Israel I will spend the rest of my life thinking of getting married."

Cohen nods. "In the last few years many of us have gone to Israel. Or died. Now we're like the white mastodons of Russia, a curiosity."

"Yes," says Cohen. "You certainly must meet Ruth. Ruth's a doctor."

"Most of us are doctors, engineers, businessmen or teachers," says Salem. "And we have a lot of lawyers, too many. Cohen and I are lawyers but we call ourselves liars."

Ruth is tall, very fair, and though she is a little shy, she talks about her quandary.

"I want to get further medical training," she explains. "The only way is to go to the West or join the Indian army. I've applied to the army but I'd rather leave India."

Ruth is unmarried but her Orthodox parents aren't pressing her about that either.

"I can't even think about getting married now because I must go on in general medicine," she says. "And there are no young men here. Well, there's one. But we grew up with him. He's more like a brother.

"I go out with Hindu boys and Christians, and one or two of my friends married Hindus. If I wanted to marry a Hindu my parents wouldn't say no, but they would advise me about all it would mean."

Ruth says the quiet, traditional way of life of Cochin still pleases her and she may yet decide to stay.

That way of life, according to the history outlined in Cochin's 400-year-old Paradesi Synagogue, has roots dating to 992 BC when Jews are said to have arrived on the Malabar Coast in King Solomon's galleys.

In the first century AD a large number of Jews fled Palestine and settled in Cranganore, 25 miles up the coast.

When Cranganore was destroyed by the Moors and Portuguese in 1524, the Jews came to Cochin and, in 1568, built the little synagogue they still use.

There has never been a rabbi in Cochin. The prayers are conducted by the elders in Hebrew, but the elders admit their knowledge of Hebrew is not extensive.

Three years ago the community's butcher died. No one else could butcher meat according to Jewish dietary laws.

So the Jews of Cochin have not eaten meat in three years. One poultry man cleans chickens according to Jewish law, so fish and fowl are the staples of the community's diet.

The white Jews of Cochin are not the only Jews in India, although they say many of the estimated 10,000 dark-skinned Jews actually trace to converted slaves.

There is a community of brown Jews in Bombay who are believed to be from the Middle East, and in Bombay and Calcutta there are Arabic-speaking Jews tracing to 18th-century Baghdad.

Only in recent years have the Jews of Cochin married non-whites in an effort to keep their community alive. They still accept no converts.

Salem says those who have decided to stay will carry on as asual.

"Our standard of living here is considered to be rather high. And we haven't had any problems with the Kerala state government or the national government."

The Jews of Cochin say they have always got along well with the large number of Christians, Hindus and few Moslems in the region.

"You have to row your boat with the others," Salem says. "The principle of survival of the fittest works for us all."

Prudhoe Bay Area Gas Estimates Up

JUNEAU (Reuter) — Estimates of natural gas reserves in the Prudhoe Bay area have been increased by about 10 per cent to more than 30 trillion cubic feet, Alaska State officials said.

Earlier estimates on the main Sadlerochit formation were between 24 and 27 trillion cubic feet. The new figures are based on information gained during North Slope field development drilling last year.

O. K. Gilbreth, Alaska's oil and gas division director, told a legislative committee that the state estimates there is a total of 51.7 trillion cubic feet of natural gas in the state-owned section of the North Slope, the offshore areas in the Beaufort Sea and the interior areas of the Tanana and Kandik basins and Brooks range.

He did not say whether the new gas estimates meant there were new higher estimates of the Prudhoe Bay oil reservoir. Natural gas at Prudhoe Bay is largely held in solution with oil, except for a gas "cap" above an oil reservoir.

INFLATION FALLING

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's annual rate of inflation is continuing to fall — to 22.9 per cent last month from 23.4 per cent in January — latest official figures slow.

This is the sixth consecutive month that the rate showed a drop. The new rate is the lowest in 10 months, but is still higher than Britain's main industrial competitors in the West.

BLOOD SAMPLER SLASHES COSTS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Costs of conducting 20 tests on a sample of blood is likely to be cut to $2 from $40 when a new automated analyser at St. Paul's Hospital comes into operation at the end of this month.

Dr. Rod English, director of laboratories, said the number of samples processed will leap to 150 an hour from the present 60.

The new equipment will also enable routine blood-screening for every patient admitted to hospital. It would cut down on procedure time and provide immediate basic information before therapy or surgery is started.

Dr. H. D. McDonald, executive-director at St. Paul's, said the new machine has sufficient capacity to enable the same screening service to be available to the affiliated hospitals of St. Paul's — Burnaby General, St. Joseph's, St. Vincent's, the Grace and Richmond General.

The new machine cost $200,000. However, this is $400,000 lower than today's price because the order was placed three years ago, said Dr. C. K. Harris at the laboratory.

Private Phones Ring Bell

WASHINGTON (WP) — U.S. residential and business customers will no longer be required to obtain any of their telephone equipment from the telephone company under a far-reaching Federal Communications Commission decision.

The decision will essentially eliminate the telephone company's control over installation of phone equipment in homes and offices throughout the U.S. and spur competition in the infant, but already burgeoning, telephone equipment industry.

The FCC had chipped at the phone company's control last November when it decided to permit connection of some equipment — like extension phones, message-recording devices and data equipment — to the telephone system without the need for telephone-company-supplied "protective" devices required before.

Under a program scheduled to go into effect May 1, manufacturers of telephone equipment — American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and its competitors — would only register their equipment with the FCC so that the commission could make sure it wouldn't harm the phone system.

The November ruling excluded the "main" telephone provided residential subscribers, switchboards, coin telephones and the "key" telephones used by businesses to handle a number of incoming phone calls on separate buttons.

Thursday's decision expands the FCC policy to include the main telephones, key telephones and switchboards in the registration program.

In its 5-2 decision the commission said:

"The present requirement of connecting such equipment solely through telephone company-provided connecting arrangements is unlawfully restrictive of the customer's right to use the telephone network in a manner which is privately beneficial without being publicly harmful."

AT and T said it would abide by the FCC decision but reiterated its belief that the introduction of such competition would hurt the telephone system and its residential users.

"We regret that the FCC has chosen ... to continue down a path that will inevitably have harmful long-range effects on customers' quality of service," AT and T board chairman John D. deButts said. The company will "adhere fully" to the provisions of the FCC order but "will not give up the right — or, perhaps I should say, responsibility — to call public attention to the fact that the quality and cost of telephone service for millions of Americans will be adversely affected by this decision," deButts said.

Some of AT and T television commercials have suggested to viewers that the phone equipment of its competitors is inferior. Capitol Hill sources say AT and T representatives have been seeking support for legislation that would bar telephone competi-

FIRST, THE CLUES THEN . . . SUICIDE

CALGARY (CP) — Eighty per cent of persons planning suicide drop clues before they commit the deed, says Janet Moore, nursing professor at University of Calgary.

She told an audience at a noon lecture that clues may be direct or indirect and include words or actions.

Another nursing professor, Janice Bell of the university, said persons emerging from a depression are more likely to do themselves in than those still deeply depressed.

The fact that they've pulled themselves out of depression shows they have the energy to commit suicide, she said.

In Alberta, suicide is the second-highest cause of death for persons 15 to 34, said Ms. Bell.

She added that suicides are often "well-thought-out solutions to problems."

Danger suicides for potential suicide include lack of interest, indecisiveness, insomnia, loss of appetite, touchiness, guilt and drastic mood changes, the meeting was told.

Ms. Bell said she believes each citizen is capable of committing suicide but an alert person may be able to help someone survive a stressful situation.

Clinic Stresses Family Therapy

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Going to a psychiatrist may help more if you bring your spouse and children with you, say doctors at a clinic here which emphasizes family therapy.

In traditional therapy, the individual is the focal point. His problem is isolated and treated.

Family therapy views each individual as a part of some family unit. The immediate and extended families, and even close friends, sometimes participate in family therapy sessions. Relationship patterns in the family are examined and the ones that do not work are changed.

Dr. Philip Guerin, director of the Centre for Family Learning here, said family therapy "takes the problem out of the head of the individual."

The centre is in its third year. Its staff of about 20 psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers treat about 100 troubled families and teach post-graduate training classes in family therapy.

Dr. Guerin said the centre mainly works with middle-class families. The cost of a one-hour clinical session is determined according to income, with $20 the minimum and $60 maximum. The centre, a non-profit organization, is chartered by the board of regents of University of the State of New York.

One centre client, a housewife and mother of four who did not wish to be named, said if she and her husband had not had family therapy, "we would be divorced and mortal enemies."

She and her husband were separated for several months, when they went to the centre at the recommendation of a parish priest.

She said that in her household she dealt with the children's needs and discipline problems, with little help from her husband. After visiting the centre for a year she said she feels there is more sharing of household responsibilities among members of her family.

She said her husband has established stronger relationships with the children, and her reactions to family crises are "no longer purely emotional."

Although there still are problems in her marriage, she said she feels "less pressured and very optimistic."

Family therapy looks at family problems as a "natural part of the living process," said Dr. Guerin. It makes the family "a part of the therapy, not an object for blame."

Family therapy can deal with physical as well as emotional problems. A family crisis can cause illness or there may be "emotional reaction to the physical illness of a member of the family."

Research in family therapy started about 25 years ago. But the method has gained popularity only in the last five years. It still is "not in the mainstream," said Dr. Guerin. Critics regard the method as a superficial one, where "the individual is lost."

But in the New Rochelle centre, family therapy is the way of thinking. There are similar centres in Washington, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia.

At a recent first session with a troubled couple, Dr. Guerin took a "genogram," a tracing of three generations of both the husband and wife's families. He says relationships with the extended families often give a clue to problems within the immediate family.

In that session, Dr. Guerin encouraged the middle-aged couple to discuss their individual feelings about each relative before he asked their reason for coming for therapy.

Drifting Back: State Balls

elizabeth forbes

This column is an exercise in nostalgia. Or perhaps I should say a drifting back to years in which State Balls at Government House were an exciting climax to every beginning of a British Columbia legislature,

Earlier this week, that precedent was broken when the first session of the 31st Legislature officially opened.

On Wednesday night, there was no ball in Government House.

State balls in this province were last cancelled during the days of the Second World War. Mainly because Government House was blacked out and social events were non-existent, unless planned to benefit the war effort.

When hostilities ended and b l a c k - o u t curtains came down, the ball was reinstated — while Hon. W. C. Woodward was Lieutenant-Governor.

That was before a disastrous fire destroyed the old Government House. And not only was it decided to again hold the ball but also, on the same night, to have the first of two State Dinners at Government House.

Timing of those events found ball guests arriving while the meal was still in progress. So, it wasn't long until another night was chosen for the dinnner.

In those days, all foods for special functions were prepared in the Government House kitchen, under the watchful eyes of head cook, Chew Chung Leung.

The kitchen was small compared to present day standards. Chung worked at a huge coal and wood stove, augmented with a smaller gas stove on the side.

There, with his small staff and some extra help brought in for the occasion, he prepared delicious foods for many state balls.

He also found time to create baskets and vases of realistic flowers from spun sugar, to decorate refreshment tables.

Only the main course (cold meats, salads, hors d'ouevres and condiments) was served buffet style.

Maids in dark dresses asd crisp white aprons removed the empty plates and brought desert and coffee to guests as they sat at tables in the dining room, the long halls and for a time, on the balcony above the ballroom.

During one regime (the Wallaces, as I remember, and after Chung had retired) head chefs from the Empress Hotel, in tall white hats and white uniforms, were at main course buffet tables, to carve the various meats.

All phases of the ball, then and up to the last one in 1975, were carefully planned under supervision of the chatelaine at Government House, and everyone from the housekeeper and butler down to the pantry boy, worked overtime to make the event a success.

In the main entrance hall, aides-de-camp, in dress uniforms of the services, headed by the Government House secretary (now Cmdr. Gar Dixon and back down the years, Capt. W. G. Cromack, A. D. M. Fairbairn and H. J. S. Muskett) were on duty to assist and direct.

In the old Government House, cloak rooms on either side of that main hall were small and crowded. Now they take up the best part of the lower floor.

Lines always formed in the main hallway and moved slowly forward toward the drawing room where guests were received by the lieutenant-governor and his wife, then went on to the ballroom.

Prior to the disastrous fire, that ballroom was decorated in royal blue and gold. At one end, a huge mirror reaching from floor to ceiling, reflected the scene on the dance floor.

Today, there is no mirror and the decor is red and gold.

Music? Long ago it was Cecil Heaton and his orchestra, followed by Billy Tickle and his musicians.

Then, for some years (almost up to the time of rock and roll) it was Len Acres and his dance band.

Printed programs were in style for a while and those programs sometimes had a number on them that signified the supper sitting a guest had been assigned.

Waltzes and foxtrots were popular. Then, dance steps gradualllly changed, until at recent state balls the beat of drums and the stamping of feet introduced a new and less informal style.

Guests changed too. Always there were many new faces.

Invitations did go out to a protocol list, but a certain number were also given to every member of the Legislature and these went to people in ridings throughout the province.

With the result that every year many British Columbia citizens entered Government House for a first time, during an exciting formal function.

Last Wednesday afternoon those who were at the Legislative Buildings, on invitation, were there merely to witness opening of the 31st Parliament, then go on to a crowded tea-hour reception in the Empress Hotel, hosted by the new government.

There was no mounting excitement of rushing home or back to an hotel room to dress for the evening, have a quick dinner at some glamor spot, and then set out for a ball at Government House. There was no ball.

I'll agree that with the present state of our economy there may not have been anything "to dance about" this year.

However, I'll not agree with those who say it does not matter if we have a State Ball or not and that now is the time to cancel it out for all time.

Rather I would hope that by this time next year something "to dance about" will have been discovered, and that the ball will again be reinstated and held in Government House.

Doing the Town

With DOROTHY FRASER

Big doings at the Handloom . . .

You could have knocked us over with a feather last Monday when we barged into the Handloom without even bothering to read the signs saying they were renovating . . . and found ourselves facing a bit of a mess. . . . Whole Trounce Alley section of the shop is being opened up and changed . . . though there's still plenty to see in the other portion which is open for business . . . in fact while we were there Doug Lafortune came in with one of his gorgeous big carved totem poles! . . . Reason for all this renovating and beautifying is to make room for the lovely things Mrs. Higgin bought during her recent trip to New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Quebec and Ontario . . . and to show them off to better advantage . . . For instance the Trounce Alley windows are to be re-carpeted and re-lighted . . . We asked Mrs. H. what she has bought and she waxed lyrical over the hand-blown glass jugs, beer steins, bowls, cups, wine decanters and the like which are now en route . . . There'll be a lot of Eskimo soapstone carvings . . . porcupine quill Indian baskets . . . Quilting from "Sutters and Seawinds" in Nova Scotia . . . Things like purses, placemats, pillows, chair seats, etc. . . . and thereby hangs a tale Mrs. Higgin would be delighted to tell you about! . . . Empress shop is being almost doubled in size, too . . . Handloom, 625 Trounce Alley, 384-1011 and Empress Hotel, 384-1518.

Amalfi sandals for pretty feet . . . . . .

It's small wonder so many women have a love affair with the cool, comfortable, foot-flattering sandal! . . . It's the perfect type of shoe to start wearing right now and right through until the snow flies NEXT winter! . . . This week we saw Munday's new Amalfi sandals for spring and summer . . . Seven brand new styles, along with many of the older favorites . . . "Ternano" is a very popular stripping sandal with the new higher heel (what we used to call "illusion") . . . Comes in white, pink, apple green, and yellow calf, and black patent . . . Has a comfort-making padded insole, as do all the new Amalfis . . . "Truillo", with the same heel, has a wide crossed bands across the front, and gold trim with elastic on the back strap, making for a wonderful fit . . . Bone, white and navy in this . . . A sporty little sandal in suede with a lower stack heel comes in beige, yellow, lime and rust . . . "Soltano" is a dressy T-strap in white, red or Mexico (dark tan) . . . Genuine cane wrapping is used in the smart high wedge sandal called "Zagarol" . . . styled with a wishbone strap, with natural stitching and comes in bone, navy and Mexico . . . "Crociato . . . also very popular . . . is a low semi-wedge with woven cover . . . White beige, Mexico and navy . . . You'll find beautiful Amalfi sandals at Munday's in widths 4A to C . . . priced from $36 to $45 . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas St., 383-2211.

The clothes you'll want to invest in . . . . . .

Nowadays when you're buying clothes, you feel you're making something of an investment . . . and naturally enough you want to see something of a dividend for your cash outlay . . . meaning your clothes should work for you in more than just one way . . . That's one of the things that strikes us about the things we're shown at Gibson's . . . they're not only beautiful "as is" but they're versatile as all getout! . . . This week we saw a very interesting suit by Damon Sport . . . 100% cotton in a blurred floral print . . . so fine in texture we had to feel it to assure ourself it wasn't silk . . . This suit has a wrapped skirt . . . (just about the most flattering style of skirt a woman can wear!) . . . a shirt blouse with separate tie and a tailored blazer . . . Wear it all together for a blythe, pretty look . . . Tuck the shirt into the skirt top and tie the scarf around your head for a casual morning outfit . . . Buy the separate/plain polyester blouse in the same dusty pink as the blazer lining and wear it with skirt and blazer for a truly elegant "civilized suit" for town . . . (All of this hand-washable, by the way!) . . . Another outfit by the same maker is a navy petitpoint print with white and the merest touch of dark pink . . . Shirt top with either long or short front pleated skirt . . . and a wrap pajama pant still to come . . . Elegant and versatile . . . Gibson's, 706 View St., 384-5913.

It's the season for interesting blouses . . . . . .

First shirt blouses with a really new look caught our eye at Roy Imports the other day . . . They have a low mandarin neckline . . . so even if you haven't got a long neck they look great . . . breast pocket and little triangular scarf you can drape all sorts of ways . . . or tie on your head if it gets windy! . . . These come in a blue, rusty rose or pewter and white shadow check . . . Also in a lemon and black or rose and navy banded pattern . . . $28.50 . . . Still on the subject of blouses . . . which is something most of us can never get enough of . . . there are a lot of shirt and shell sets in a variety of pretty prints . . . in colors which would pick out almost any pant shade you can name . . . Liberty lawn blouses by Kildare of Ireland . . . mostly paisleys and florals . . . Hooper blouses in solid colors of yellow, pale blue, pink etc. to match the new Bleyle polyester pants for Spring . . . Cut straight across the bottom, they can be worn as a jacket with shell underneath . . . As far as real pantsuits are concerned, Roy's have some beautiful Bleyles in pale blue, navy, and of course white . . . for spring . . . Roy Imports, 817 Government St., 384-4737 and James Bay Square, 384-4932.

Intriguing imported sportswear . . . . . .

Don't know whether Europeans are actually "sportier" than we are . . . but there's no question about their sports clothes having a "cachet" . . . a chic-ness which is usually lacking from the domestic variety! . . . it's an intriguing bit of difference which prompts one to "vive la difference! . . . In Eaton's Townhouse this week we admired some truly admirable imported sports co-ordinates . . . Italian T-shirts of the finest cotton knit with square neck and short cuffed sleeves in a variety of colors plus black and white . . . Another long-sleeved collared T-shirt with placket front, in white only . . . Then there are really different co-ordinates from Sufer of Paris . . . Skirts in white and navy acetate and nylon knit . . . sweaters with drawstring waist . . . Sleeveless T-shirts . . . Tops with three-quarter sleeves . . . little pullovers with drawstring waists . . . stripes or patterns in some of these . . . and everything ties in beautifully with everything else . . . The white cotton twill French pants are knockouts . . . worn with short sleeved pullovers in brown, navy, or red and white . . . for the more mature figure, you can't equal the sportswear from Wahls of Sweden . . . The pants fit beautifully, . . . as any woman who's ever worn them will tell you . . . and there are sweaters, shells, pullovers and the best looking long-sleeved nylon top we've seen in many a moon! . . . Eaton's Townhouse, 383-7141, loc. 367.

Bathrooms can be glamorous! . . . . . .

Not so long ago, most bathrooms tended to be the most neglected rooms in the house . . . Strickly utilitarian . . . and just a bit of luck if most towels happened to match! . . . A lot of us are smartening up though and realizing that their bathrooms should be places to relax in and enjoy . . . to please the senses and show off with pride! . . . How to get this magic touch into a plebian bathroom? . . . Visit the new Bath Boutique and let your imagination take hold! They've got things you simply can't find elsewhere . . . like the Guzzini line of accessories from Italy . . . There are plate mirrors like you wouldn't believe . . . in acrylic frames modern as tomorrow . . . clear, smoky amber and blue . . . square or round . . . even swizel . . . and in different sizes to fit your particular spot . . . Same acrylic used for shelves, soap dishes, soap and glass holders, tissue boxes and toilet paper holders . . . Believe us, they're a real excitement to look at . . . and we guarantee a few of these will transform the lowliest bathroom into a conversation piece . . . Another out-of-this-world line is the Rawling "Metallique" . . . A graceful styling of slim metal rods creates shelves, benches, towel racks and folding towel trees . . . We could go on and on telling you about all the exciting things you'll discover at the Bath Boutique . . . but go see for yourself . . . Lots of covered parking underneath the mall . . . the Bath Boutique, James Bay Square, Simcoe and Menzies St., 385-2523.

Baskets for every conceivable use! . . . . . .

Baskets is the subject of our Wooden Spoon discourse today . . . because you'll find so many of them . . . in every shape, size and for any purpose you can possibly imagine . . . plus some other uses you may want to dream up yourself! . . . These baskets are mostly wicker, and all come from Taiwan where they really know how to make such things . . . We fell hard for the picnic baskets, in several different sizes, ranging in price from just $4.95 up to $9.95 . . . There's a neat holder inside the lid for keeping napkins, table cloths and the like in place . . . (Incidentally, the Tivoli colored plastic cups and plates we've told you about before would be just perfect to fit up one of these!) . . . There are baskets small and large . . . round, oval, square, . . . oblong . . . Shopping baskets, flower pot baskets, French loaf baskets, "cash" baskets, and eucalyptus wood tubs for planting . . . We love the square baskets for holding a lot of little plants . . . and there are all sorts of baskets which would make great plant pot containers . . . Speaking of which, a lot of jute macrame hangers have just arrived . . . almost ridiculously low-priced ($2.95 to $4.95 for the big cage planter) . . . You couldn't even buy the jute rope for that! . . . Be sure to see the woven baskets with very attractive designs . . . and the big hamper basket which would be so nice for fruit or whatever . The Wooden Spoon, Midtown Mall, 726-A View St., 384-8623.

The Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: My little dog Splinter is fed a dog food that has a lot of eggs in it. So they say. She's also crazy about scrambled eggs from the table, even when they're boiled or fried. We don't autually eat too many eggs nowadays because of all we've read about them causing fat in blood vessels. She loves it so we hate to take her off, but if eggs would cause her that kind of trouble, we certainly wouldn't want to keep it up. What about cooked eggs for dogs?—N.I.

DEAR N.I.: Arteriosclerosis (fat-clogged blood vessels) are of virtually no concern to canines. Even for humans, cholesterol-laden egg yolks are not considered quite the villains they once were. Since this disease isn't something for dogs to fret about, there'd certainly be no need to deprive Splinter of her scrambled eggs even if, as you say, they're boiled or fried . . .

DEAR DR. MILLER: Old Tom, who's been indoors since he was a kitten, isn't tottering yet, but he has that old cat look about him. That kind of frowzy coat, the pinched-in face, the kind of pretty but foggy look in his eyes. He gets the best of care, as always, but I was just wondering about his exercise. Should we make some effort to keep him quieter?—L.N.

DEAR L.N.: If Tom had a specific heart condition which would make an exercise detrimental, then yes, his doctor would ask you to keep him as closely confined as possible. Otherwise, attemping to restrict his activity is unnecessary, even undesirable. Tom would resent it in the first place, and second, unless some other member of the family were pushing him, he would normally restrict his own activity to the amount he could safely handle.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Mr. Mustard, my canary, gets constipated occasionally. You don't give enemas to canaries, do you? I can't imagine such a thing. — G.F.

DEAR G.F.: No, fourtunately, you don't. Constipated canaries can be relived more easily by providing green food, if they'll eat it. If not, a laxative like mineral oil can be used, though not directly, for it could choke the bird. Instead, roll a few seeds in a drop of oil in the palm of the hand, then place the oil-coated seed on top of the (only) seed cup. Cod liver oil can also be used, but it's slightly less effective. A small pinch of Epsom salts in the drinking water is occasionally recommended. It's easier to use, but less desirable.

DEAR DR. MILLER: For a long time now, a terribly long time it seems, I've been struggling with rheumatoid arthritis. Just in the last few weeks, I've noticed Pinkym my little poodle, is moving slow and stiff like I do. I don't think I'm imagining it. Could she just by sympathizing with me? We're pretty close, Pinky and I. Dogs don't get rheumatoid arthritis, do they? If they ever did, could they ever get it from people? If dogs ever had to be treated for it, are there better drugs than there are for humans? — D.K.

DEAR D.K.: Whether Pinky's problem is psychological or not (it's possible, but not probable) should be determined by her doctor. However there are many conditions in the canine which can cause stiffness in the joints and-or elsewhere. Dogs do develop a true rheumatoid arthritis, though proportionately less often than people. Many mysteries regarding its cause remain. It's unlikely that even if Pinky did have this disease that she picked it up from you. Still, because viruses and other infective agents can, apparently, transmit the condition under some circumstances, there would be a possibility (not a probability) that R.A. transmission could occur from man to dog. Treatment of the condition in the canine is the same — and no more satisfactory — than it is in the human. Aspirin-type products remain the basis of most therapy. There is no cure.

COSY CHAT — or more likely competition for the same scrap of food — results in engaging photo of a couple of Maine seagulls. Gulls, once an endangered species as hunters sought them for food and feathers, have proliferated to the point where some now regard them as pests.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Lately you have had letters in your column about fathers sexually molesting their growing daughters. This is a tragic problem, and I agree that by reading about it in your column, some children may be alerted to this danger and encouraged to report it to their mothers or some other responsible adult.

However, such articles may also give girls from normal homes erroneous ideas when an affectionate father gives them a fatherly hug or kiss.

In our home, there has always been a warm and affectionate relationship between parents and children, and I would hate to have my daughters become suspicious or fearful everytime their father caresses them.

Abby, please write something to assure young girls that not every father who kisses and caresses his growing daughters is eeking to go beyond the limits of decency. —MOTHER OF GIRLS

DEAR MOTHER: You make a valid point. But no normal growing girl needs a compass to know if her father (or any other male) is going beyond the limits of decency. Unfortunately, too many sick fathers — as well as "funny uncles" and lecherous grandfathers — have molested children and have never been reported. Every child molester should be reported immediately to the Protective Service Division of Child Welfare in the community.

DEAR ABBY: I have been corresponding for over a year with a man who was a Catholic priest for nearly 20 years. We have met three times within the last year, and he has asked me to marry him.

I think I am in love with him, but I have some serious doubts about how such a marriage would work out. Wouldn't a man who has lived under strict discipline for 20 years have a difficult time adjusting to married life?

I am 34 and have never been married. Perhaps someone who has married a former Catholic priest could guide me.—DEBATING.

DEAR DEBATING: So much depends upon the individual that I doubt the experience of one (or 100) women would be helpful to you. The best advice I can give you is to bide your time and marry no man until your heart and your head confirm it.

DEAR ABBY: About a month ago a friend who is a kindergarten teacher asked me if I would assist her with her class. I was glad to help her without pay.

At the end of the day, I saw that my purse was open and all the money from my wallet was gone. (It amounted to about $10.)

I told my friend about it, and she kept trying to give me $10 to make up for it, but I wouldn't accept it.

Then she mailed me a check for $10, urging me to please cash it. I really want to, but I don't feel right about it. What should I do? — ON THE FENCE

DEAR ON: Consider HER feelings and cash the check. Otherwise she will continue to feel guilty about your loss.

Fatherly Affection Has Its Place

INDOOR GARDENS

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

Dear Lynn and Joel:

My question is short and sweet: How come outdoor plants are so much less expensive than indoor plants?—R.T.

Dear R.T.:

It's an excellent question, but unfortunately our answer won't match it for brevity. Basically, the reason is that old business bugaboo — overhead. Since all indoor plants have to be grown in a greenhouse, it takes a great deal more money and manpower to see to their picky needs: watering, spraying, feeding, and so on.

The outdoor plants, on the other hand, merely need a daily hosing and an occasion feeding. The bottom line, we suppose, would be time.

Most outdoor plants reach saleable maturity in a much shorter length of time than their outdoor brethren and sistren. And then, too, lots of outdoor things are strictly seasonal, whereas, theoretically, an indoor plant thrives all year long.

It's a good idea to be sure when you buy your indoor plant that it has, in fact, been grown indoors. It's much more likely to make it than one grown outdoors.

How can you tell? If you trust your nurseryman, obviously, that's easiest. But the single key factor is price. The outdoor plants will always be cheaper because they take so much less time and effort to grow. Remember these two cliches: You get what you pay for and there are no bargains in house plants.

He's Not Just Any Hairdresser

WASHINGTON (WP) — Without taking anything away from hairdressers, one doesn't expect to find one quoting Plato on a Monday afternoon in a Washington hotel room.

Not that Vidal Sassoon is just any hairdresser. But after an hour or so with the man whose stark, geometric, almost masculine — or what used to be masculine — haircut was part of the fashion-sexual revolution a decade or so ago, it becoomes hard to remember that scissors made him famous, that he has some 30 men's and women's salons in the United States, England, Germany, Italy and Canada, schools in London and San Francisco, and that a "Sassoon cut" is now almost a generic term for any short-back, long-sides haircut.

Those who pay attention to such things will remember that Sassoon's haircut got international attention from London in 1963. The Beatles (and long hair for men) were emerging. Mary Quant's once-titillating mini-skirt was to show up on Carnaby Street and King's Road. There was talk of a "peacock revolution" for men.

Also originating in the "Swinging London" of the middle '60s was what some observers saw as a disturbing trend toward men and women looking alike. People started mumbling that because of their hair and clothes, you couldn't tell one sex from the other.

It was the time of French designers like Andre Courreges putting women in boots. California designer Rudi Gernreich shocked the world — when it still could be shocked — with a topless bathing suit.

"It was all part of a great need for simplification," said Sassoon, or as "Mies van der Rohe once said, 'Less is more.' There was too much going on and it took too long."

Sassoon became known for despising curls and bouffant hair, and even today reporters are apt to keep their hats on while interviewing him. He chuckles about that. In person he's no tough and glossy arbiter of women's hairstyles; his cuts may be linear, but his demeanor is rounded.

Called one of the prophets of the unisex phenomenon, Sassoon denies that a blurring of the sexes was his aim. "It was never my intention to make men and women look alike. I don't believe in that. Actually, we thought the geometric cut looked ridiculous on men. It's a very feminine look, carved to a woman's body and facial bones. Sculpture."

Whatever. To get your hair cut in a Sassoon salon today costs $19 to $33 for a woman, $17 to $19 for a man, depending on who does it.

Sassoon says he is trying to develop a kind of "United Nations of hairdressing" and is proud of the fact that some 2,500 hairdressers from 19 countries attended his recent conference in London's staid old Albert Hall, usually relegated to poetry and music. About 50 people in five countries have what he calls "a piece of the (Sassoon) action."

Sassoon, who somehow looks almost casual in an Yves Saint Laurent velvet blazer and tapered trousers, has undoubtedly helped impart a kind of intelligence, dignity and flair to hairdressing, once a sterile field of clinical white, strange smells and endless pincurls. It has always been considered more of an art form — and more respectable — in Europe than in the United States.

But Sassoon, who has spent 32 years of his 43 in hair — 25 years actually cutting — would plainly rather talk about other things:

"The question is no longer what women will be doing with their hair next year, but what are they doing with their bodies and their minds? It all works together."

Sassoon's and his actress wife Beverly's visit to Washington recently was part of a tour of the United States and Europe to promote their partially autobiographical book, A Year of Beauty and Health. Again Sassoon is in the right sphere at the right time, with all of the current interest in natural food and cosmetics, vitamins, exercise.

Still another beauty boom could bring on still another yawn, if the Sassoons didn't look so damn good. Some of their many prescriptions besides yoga and meditation: apple cider vinegar baths, a hot water and lemon juice tonic, the ubiquitous wheat germ, a "Vitality Drink" with soy lecithin. One of their messages seems to be that with a blender anyone can be beautiful.

Sassoon, who learned to meditate in a barren London hotel room with the Maharashi Mahesh Yogi in 1960 before meditation became chic and commercialized, admits he has a hard time not preaching its values. "Through meditation you achieve self-awareness and get at your own unique energy," he pronounces, looking you straight in the eye. Meditation while fasting, which he does once a month, produces he says, "a tremendous high."

Beverly — "I won't tell you my age, but he's 48 and I'm 18 years younger" — is a woman who well, glows in blue jeans. She has a long stretched-out pelvis-forward walk, in which her feet enter a room considerably ahead of the rest of her. She can get by with saying things like, "We all have to make things happen for ourselves. I'm the daughter of a factory worker. I've worked; Vidal has worked to get where we are."

She was making "a bad horror film" ("The Torture Garden") in London when they met in Sassoon's London salon in 1967. She was getting her hair cut by someone else. An alert receptionist with good eyesight pressed a button, there for just such a reason, and notified Sassoon that there was someone in his salon he would probably like to meet. She was informed that he wanted "to check her haircut."

"I proposed at an English health farm," said Sassoon. "She was wearing my white crew sox. We were married two weeks later."

"I'd never heard of him. My parents in Burbank had never heard of him. They were terribly upset. I'm sure they thought that because he was a hairdresser he had to be a homosexual, you know, that American idea, and of course there was the age difference.,

"What kind of a life can you possibly have?" they kept asking.

A Deep Bow to Mugsy For Spaghetti Sauce

By MARY MOORE

Three dollars and eighty-six cents paid for the ingredients (except the spices on hand) in this fourteen-cup batch of spaghetti meat sauce.

It belongs to Mugsy and was forwarded to me by her mother, Wanda, who knows a good dish when she tastes it.

Six people hungrily tastetested this and I think we all owe Mugsy a deep bow.

MUGSY'S SPAGHETTI SAUCE

(14 cups)

- 2 lbs. ground chuck beef
- 2 cooking onions, chopped (1 c.)
- one 7-½ oz. can tomato sauce
- one 10-oz. can tomato soup, undiluted
- one 13-oz. can tomato paste
- one 28-oz. can tomatoes (3½ c. peeled, raw when in season)
- 3 c. water
- 3 tbsp. sugar
- 2 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tsp. Tabasco sauce
- 3 tsp. salt
- 1½ tsp. oregano
- 1 tsp. garlic salt
- 1 tsp. basil
- 1 tsp. celery seed
- ½ tsp. pepper

In large pot saute meat and onions until all redness disappears from meat and onions are soft but not brown. Constantly chop to break it up as it cooks. Add all remaining ingredients and combine thoroughly. Simmer uncovered about 2½ to 3 hours, stirring often.

The color is rosy. The flavor is extra good. Surplus sauce may be frozen in plastic cartons with freezer tape sealing on the lids. Altogether an extra convenient recipe because it has so many virtues.

Thanks Mugsy.

Welch Medical Report

By DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

L. S. had called several days before I saw him in my office complaining bitterly of pain in the chest and down his left arm.

Such a complaint arises serious suspicion of an oncoming heart attack. His electrocardiogram was sufficiently abnormal to prompt his admission to the coronary care unit for observation.

Shingles is an acute viral infection of the central nervous system, which involves sensory nerve roots of the spinal column and manifests, after several days of excruciating pain, as a shower of blisters in the segment of skin innervated by those sensory nerve roots.

Shingles, as it is developing, may present a confusing picture because severe pain usually precedes the appearance of the telltale blisters by several days and, depending on the segment of the nerve roots involved, may suggest a variety of problems such as pleurisy, an acute abdominal catastrophe, kidney-stone colic, or, as in the case of L. S., it may mimic the pain of a heart attack.

Shingles may appear at any age but is most common after the age of 50. Curiously, for reasons that are not clear, it is statistically most likely to apper in early summer and late autumn.

Commonly it occurs on the chest, and only involves one side of the body, rarely if every crossing the midline of the trunk.

On about the fifth day after their appearance, the blisters begin to dry up and crusting scabs form at the site of the vesicles. One attack usually means that you will never suffer from herpes zoster again.

The virus that causes herpes zoster is closely related to, or identical with, the virus that causes chicken-pox (varicella), a fact that often seems to account for susceptible grandparents who turn up with shingles after they have visited grandchildren in the throes of chicken pox.

Sometimes shingles involves the nerve that supplies the ear, the soft palate and the jaw, giving rise to transient paralysis of the muscles of one side of the face.

Even more disturbing is shingles of the nerve root supplying the eye, which may result in ulceration and subsequent scarring of the cornea.

Most people recover without any residual evidence of their attack except for scarring at the site of the blisters. However, in some, pain at the site of blisters persists for months or years and is extremely resistant to treatment.

Treatment of herpes zoster is unsatisfactory. Many local and systemic measures have been tried with varying degrees of success.

In most cases, doctors will insist on a careful search in patients who have recovered from herpes zoster for some unsuspected, underlying, systemic abnormality, which may have triggered the attack.

UNDER THE COUNTER

Diphtheria used to be a "killer" disease. A cruel killer because of the formation of a type of membrane on areas of the respiratory tract which forced it's victims to literally fight for air.

We no longer need to watch helplessly as a doctor battles to save a child weakened by diphtheria. Outbreaks rarely occur because for years we have enjoyed a free immunization programme. And, your doctor has modern chemotherapy with which to fight diphtheria, but immunization protects through prevention. Babies can be immunized as early as three months of age. Adults too can take advantage of these programmes which protect against diseases like polio, small pox, tetanus and diphtheria. Please see your Public Health Nurse for information.

Onion Family Has Many Branches

The onion has been domesticated for such a long time its original form is not easily determined. It was featured in writings and decorations by the early Egyptians and believed to have reached that area from Asiatic regions. Through hybridizing and selection the bulbs have been completely changed in both size and shape.

Seeds are slow to germinate, needing a very fine loose soil. The plants are surface feeders, therefore the soil must contain a high percentage of humus to hold moisture within reach of the shallow root systems. Late sowing of seed, or drought conditions during early growth causes the plants to perish or fail to make the desired bulbs for storage.

Scullions, often wrongly called scallions, are plants with poor bulbs and extremely thick necks, caused by using stock that has deteriorated, or from too wet a soil which has forced excessive leaf growth.

To obtain seed the bulbs are harvested, ripened, stored over winter, and replanted the following spring for flowering and seed production.

Onions are also grown from bulbs for early crops in the home garden. Known as Onion Sets, the bulbs are produced by sowing seed thickly in very poor soil so the young bulbs quickly reach the limit of possible growth and mature while quite small.

This crop is harvested, stored over winter, and when planted in spring the bulbs grow rapidly and are used while small. If allowed to remain too long, flowers and seed are produced.

Listed in Hortus Second are 114 species of edible and ornamental onions known to exist on the North American continent, many being native to British Columbia and the west coast of U.S.A. In 1899 seedsmen listed 78 varieties of edible onions and 20 kinds of multipliers and sets.

To the average home gardener the onion is symbolized by the bulbs seen in markets. When seeking assistance for difficulties experienced in growing a crop they are unable to differentiate between the many types, some of which grow below ground, others on the surface. The gardener who "knows his onions" is better able to grow them successfully.

Some of the most common types are shown in the illustration as a guide for beginners.

Onions are propagated in four ways: from bulblets or top-onions, which appear at the top of stems in place of, or mixed with, flowers; bulbels, or separate parts of the bulb such as multipliers; by ordinary bulbs arrested in growth as explained above, known as onion sets; and by sowing seed.

At the top left-hand corner of the drawing is the Multiplier or Potato-onion, Allium cepa var. solaninum (syn. multiplicans). When cut in half horizontally it reveals two to five separate units or cores, each of which develops into a small bulb as the old bulb separates into its component parts.

These new bulbs are pulled and eaten at any stage of growth. If allowed to remain in the soil each will form a compound bulb like the original. Flower stems quickly form if growth is arrested at any stage. Two or three kinds are grown, the chief variation being color.

Next is Garlic, Allium sativum, with bulbs composed of several bulblets or cloves. Separate cloves are planted to produce a new bulb containing seven to ten cloves.

The Shallot, Allium ascalonicum, is a small plant with awl-shaped leaves. The pointed bulbs are almost three-cornered through being crowded together on a common basal plate. Planted separately each bulblet makes a new group on a common base.

As early as 1860 it was doubtful if the true species still existed. Growers were warned that the majority of bulbs sold as shallots were small strains of common onions or bulbs of Allium pulchellum, a plant growing two feet high. The true three-cornered bulbs are not seen today.

The Chive (as pronounced) or Cive (as originally spelled), Allium shoenoprasm, is scarcely bulbous and grows in clumps, the leaves being used for flavoring or in salads. Propagated by division of the clumps, the plants are often used around ornamental beds where the round purplish flower heads are quite attractive.

The centre drawing is the Tree-onion, Top-onion, or Egyptian Onion, Allium cepa var. vivparum (syn. bulbellifera). Planted in spring, a young bulb is quickly produced and may be pulled and eaten as a green onion. Allowed to remain it makes a tall heavy stem, in the first or second year, bearing a cluster of bulbels and a few flowers. Bulbels may be white or red.

The Welsh Onion or Ciboule (wrongly pronounced chibbel), Allium festulosum, has no bulb, only a slight enlargement at the base. Native to Siberia, it is grown mainly for its leaves which are used in seasoning. Produces seed but is usually propagated by division of clumps. The name "Welsh" is a corruption of Old High German "walsch" meaning foreign or imported.

The Leek, Allijm porrum, has a bulb no thicker than the neck, and broad flat leaves. To obtain the long blanched neck for eating, the seedlings are dropped into a hole eight inches deep, watered to wash in a little soil, and left to develop.

The above list covers the species found in local vegetable gardens. Seven other species (plus an occasional addition) are grown locally in the flower garden, some for their prolific flower heads in spring, and one species in particular for the large globular flower heads on two-foot stems carrying 150 to 175 narrow petalled blooms which are dried and used in flower arrangements.

Seed of the large bulb types, shown on the right side of the drawing, is sown locally in a carefully prepared seed bed about 12 inches square in late October to early November. The soil is well pulverized and mixed with plenty of finely screened compost, which raises it about 2 inches above the surrounding level. This is done in late September while the soil is still dry.

The seed is sown thickly so that no bulbs can develop. When lifted for transplanting in April, only seedlings with straight sides and about the thickness of a lead pencil are put into the main onion bed. Seedlings on the outer edges will have formed small bulbs and are lanted in a separate bed to be used as green onions before they go to seed.

Finely pulverized soil with lots of compost is essential in the main beds for a successful crop. After the bulbs have become full size for the variety being grown (it is necessary to know whether it is 2, 3 or 5 inches) no more water must reach the roots or second growth will start, large necks develop and storage life will be reduced to about two months.

WORK FOR WEEK

By JACK BEASTALL

New rock banks can be made attractive by planting rock plants out of containers now by cutting well down to to flower.

Tuberous begonias laid in damp peat moss will root indoors. As growth buds swell, cooler temperature and strong light is needed.

In gardens near salt water, pruning of Buddleia davidi can be done; reduce long branches by cutting to just above strong shoots showing near base of plant.

Hydrangea arborescens and H. paniculata are both pruned now by cutting well donw to where new buds are visible on old wood.

If small patch suitable soil is workable, plant half dozen sprouted potatoes for earlies. Or use large can with holes; set in warm corner.

Sow seeds of fall broccoli and brussels sprouts in coldframe. Use lime in seeding mixture to prevent the disease of clubroot.

Keep off wet soil but cultivate patches each day where possible to reach from paths.

Terminal Cancer Victims Still Have Sex Drive

NEW YORK (AP) — Sex often continues to be a prime interest of men and women who have been told they are dying of cancer or other disease, says Lois Jaffee, a social scientist who has cancer herself.

They want sexual relations and talk about it to other hospital patients who are in the same fix, she adds.

But neither doctors, nurses nor family members will recognize or discuss this need, she continues. Sexual problems thus arouse anxiety which is added to the anxiety about dying, says Mrs. Jaffee, who has acute leukemia, the blood cancer.

"This is the double whammy. For people over 65 who are not supposed to have sexual feelings anyhow, it becomes a triple whammy," she told a recent symposium here of the Foundation of Thanatology. Thanatology is the scientific study of death.

Mrs. Jaffee, in her late 40s, is associate professor at the graduate school of social work, University of Pittsburgh. She was diagnosed as having leukemia in April, 1973. Treated intermittently with drugs, she has been in and out of hospitals, and now the disease is in remission. While there always is hope the disease may not return, she regards herself as having a terminal illness.

In terminal illness, "this focus on death, paradoxically, has turned many people into life, and to thinking how they wish to live whatever time is left," Mrs. Jaffee said.

"It is a myth that once you become terminally ill, you no longer have any sex desire. The drive and capability can still be there," and its absence may be more due to psychological than physical reasons.

"In the terminally ill, sex desire may actually increase to counter the anxiety" over dying.

"Sexuality and terminality represent the beginning and ending of life," Mrs. Jaffee says, explaining that the preparation for death includes an accommodation for an ending, a deadline, whereas sexuality means moving forward, the quintessence of the life force. Both share a sense of letting go.

For the spouse of a cancer patient, "there can be the fear that you can catch cancer, that it is contagious," Mrs. Jaffee says.

Besides having an unreal fear of "catching" cancer, the patient's mate may stop thinking of the marriage as having any future, and may seek sex relations outside the marriage. There can be a tendency "to move away from sex and emotionality with the dying one."

Mrs. Jaffee said that she and her husband have no problem with their sexual relationship because they have discussed it frankly.

In hospitals, "there is lots of isolation, but no privacy, no place for a couple to go for emotional sharing. The spouse is not encouraged to bathe or touch the patient, even to rub a back. The message is given: 'Don't touch.' On leaving that environment, you become afraid to go home. You can develop a fear of reinvesting in life and love again. And so can the spouse."

Self-help groups sometimes spring up in hospitals, with terminally ill patients talking frankly about their concerns and possible solutions to problems, "letting their hair down." "You hear of someone ewse in the same boat, that it is not just you with these concerns. You share ways of handling problems."

No Blame

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A coroner's jury has placed no blame in the January 29 death of four-year-old Robert Roseberry, of Prince George, who was killed when he tried to cross the Hart Highway.

Libel Decision Reserved

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Mr. Justice G. G. Raw has reserved decision in a British Columbia Supreme Court libel action against Surrey Mayor Ed McKitka and Ed Murphy, a Vancouver radio open-line host.

Herbert Fritz of Surrey, a professional engineer, his son Daniel Fritz and two companies, Pacific Rim Equities Corp. and Realescope Realty Ltd. are seeking general, punitive and exemplary damages for statements made on a CJOR open-line program July 17, 1974 during which McKitka was a guest of Murphy.

The libel is alleged to have occurred while Murphy was interviewing McKitka, then a Surrey alderman, about real estate development in South Surrey.

In summations at the conclusion of the three-day hearing, Thomas Dohm, counsel for McKitka, and Charles MacLean, Counsel for Murphy, said there was no malice on their clients' part when statements were made during the radio show.

McLean said Murphy was mislead by McKitka and had repeated misinformation given him by McKitka.

On the rim of the Pacific, March wind still chills wet sand, leaving Long Beach for slow-poking people and galloping dogs

Solitude of Sand, Sea, Sky

Some people believe that a beach — to be truly a beach — should be a lonely and a tranquil place, a solitude of sand to complement the flat reach of sea and vault of sky.

One of the best in the west is Long Beach on this island's western shore. Trouble is, all summer it's badly cluttered with other people, their antics, their babble, their paraphernalia.

So, there's Long Beach in March.

You pay a price for solitude then. The sun hides, the sky is leaden and low, the wind bites and the rain is regular.

But for the moment it's yours alone.

For a winter now the big tides have scrubbed it clean, dumped kelp in occasional untidy piles, stranded a few boney logs on the plains of sand, trowelled the beach to almost the hardiness of slate.

There are signs of life, but precious few. The gulls wheel in clouds, pock the sand and leave their curious triangular tracks. The crows strut the beachwood, hollering for the tourist trade.

Photos, Story By Don Vipond

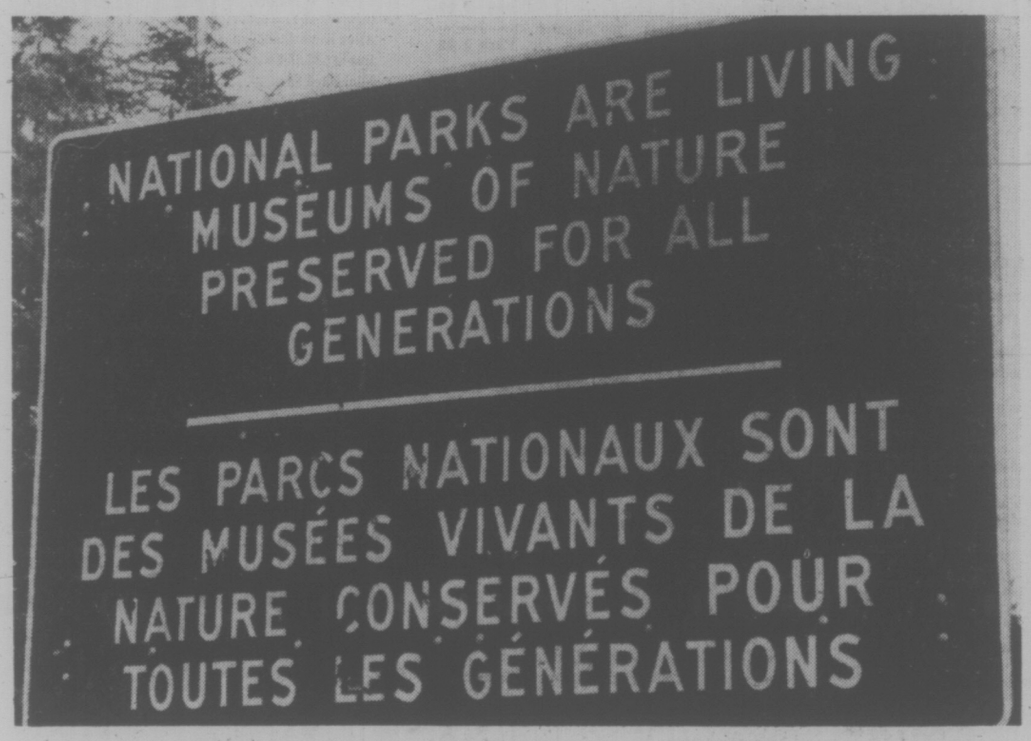
Atop a huge domed rock which thrusts out into the surf, right in the teeth of the onshore draft, two campers with their pup tents challenge the elements. They are out to prove something but nature is kind to them this day. Only barnacles could cling to that rock in a storm.

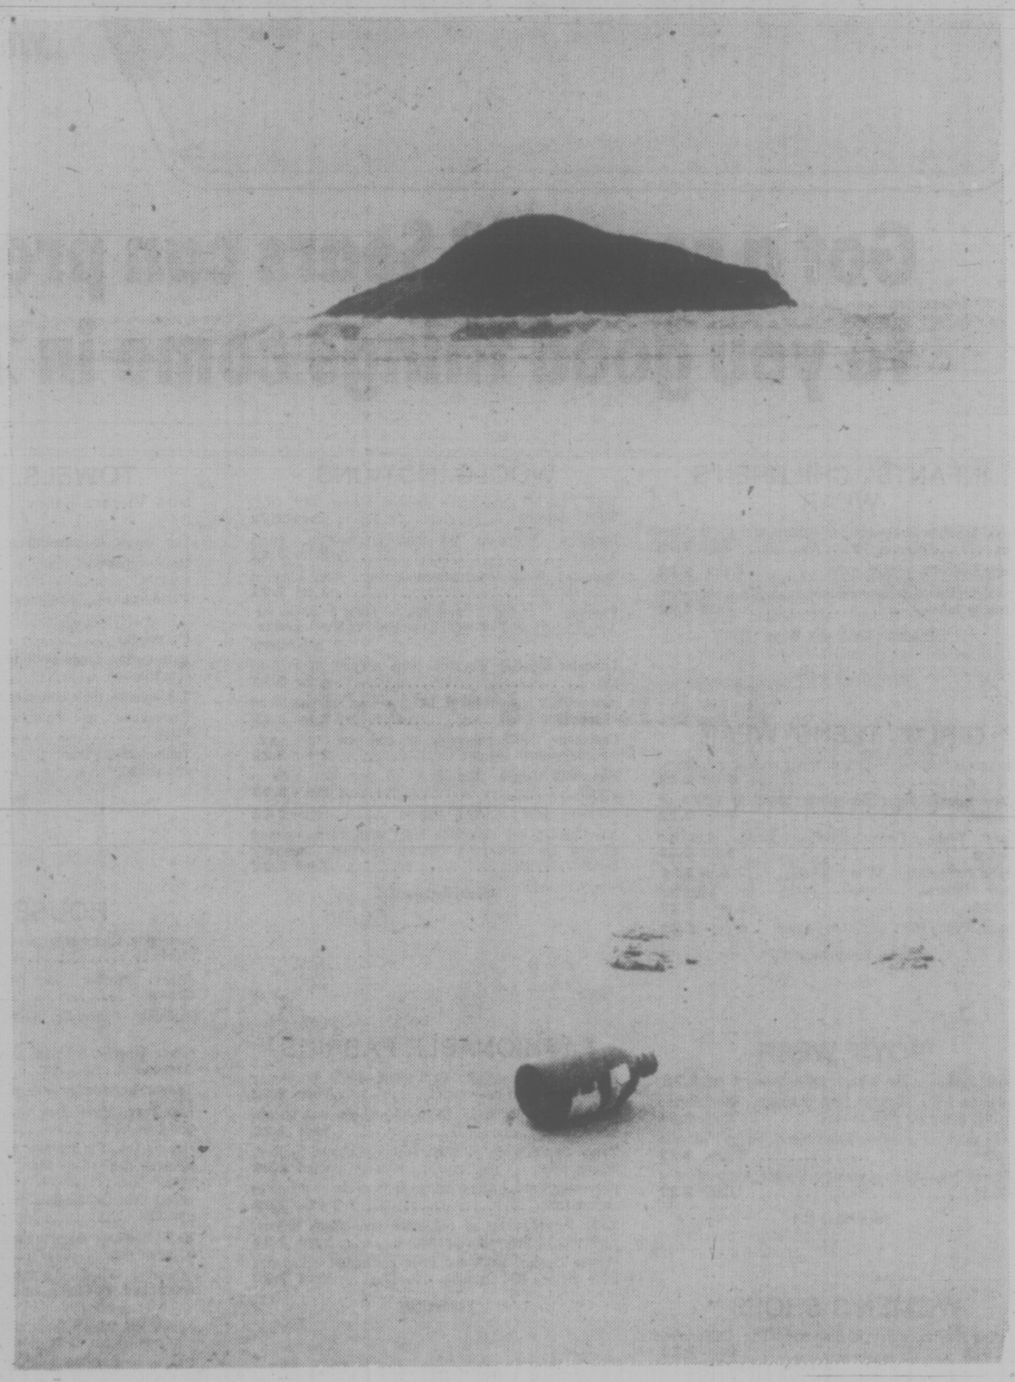
The sign back on the highway says parks like this beach are living museums preserved for all generations.

Pedantic thought with a touch of irony. For even after a winter of scouring there are indeed some artifacts in this museum from the now generation.

The beer bottle is slowly sinking with the tide's ebb and flow. So is a crumpled wax carton which once contained yogurt, of all things. But that doughnut swirl in the sand, where some easy rider spun his machine round and round, will be gone on the next flood.

The sea rolls in relentlessly, sliding its foam up the beach, promising to outlast everyone and everything. That's a comforting thought.





If national parks are living museums, how come this dead soldier? Sea promises to bury even beer bottles, creating midden for future generations to ponder

Astrological Forecast for Sunday, March 21

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Long-distance communications are featured. What was a secret might be openly discussed. Correspondence, travel, philosophical concepts are emphasized. Find ways of expressing, articulating—take nothing for granted. Someone near may try to take credit for your efforts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Details might hold you back—but if you study fine print you could make some points rebound in your favor. A friend with "money tip" might be on right track. Know it and follow through—you could be on unorthodox trail to profit.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your curiosity "takes over." You learn more on your own than you might "through channels." Know it; act accordingly. Legal affairs should be quietly reviewed. Bucking authority might not be wisest course.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Light touch brings best results. Key is to be diplomatic. Trying to force issues will alienate those who would be your allies. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio could be involved. Family member has unusual request—but it is reasonable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Friend with money questions may be hinting—be receptive but know when to draw the line. Be specific in answers and with your own queries. Leave speculation for another time. Don't try to mix love and business. You'll comprehend!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis on prestige, vindication of views. You're given more of a free hand. You can exercise authority. Don't abuse privilege. You'll be dealing with Capricorn, Aquarius individuals. The "boss" calls you in for strategy meeting.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good Moon aspect coincides now with chance to communicate, correspond, add to knowledge. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Ask questions, put together puzzle pieces. Individual at a distance will "get in touch."

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Dig deep for information; reject superficial answers. Investigate on your own. Get ideas, thoughts on paper. Key now is ability to communicate. Feelings, impulses, emotions tend to dominate, especially where loved one is concerned.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on legal agreement, co-operative effort and relationship that could be "permanent." This is no time to play games. Chips are down and stakes are high — if you are not serious, let "other party" go.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Basic issues count more than in recent past. Key is dedication, organization, intensity of purpose. Cancer, Capricorn could be involved. Your work, associates, special services are spotlighted. Study Cancer message.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your "creative urge" manifests. You feel, perceive and imprint. Your style is recognized. Your uniqueness is appreciated, rewarded. On personal level, you overcome obstacle and make known desires to one who "wants to know." A productive day!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Highlight qualities of originality, independence. Refuse to be intimidated. Make your own views loud and clear. Leo, Aquarius could figure prominently. Build on solid base and insist on getting premium price for plans, abilities, products. You can do it!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emphasis on short trips, an understanding of relative who seems pulled in two directions at one and the same time. You won't get all answers, but you will gain insights. Aquarian figures prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on money, valuables, personal possessions. Active, alert, restless persons play key roles. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius figure prominently. Communications from afar make impact. You could also be recipient of a "spiritual revelation."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lunar cycle high — trust yourself. Invest in your own talents, abilities. Your judgment, intuition is likely to be on target. You get accolades from those who, in recent past, stubbornly refused to concede. Be gracious, but stick to "hard line."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are on brink of discovery. Know it and be persistent. Gemini, Virgo could be in picture. One in hospital may want you to "run errand." Comply with request. Much that occurs could be of clandestine nature.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spotlight on friends, hopes, wishes. Home environment improves — if you are reasonable. Taurus, Libra and Scorpio persons figure prominently. You could receive surprise gift. One with melodious voice is in picture.

IF MARCH 22 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are independent, somewhat of a maverick, on your own in thought, action at an early age. Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. You travel more this year and May will be your most significant month. You are headstrong, stubborn, loyal and dedicated. Emotional weight has been lifted. Be happy!

Anglicans told about Phase 2

Rev. Barry Jenks, chairman of last November's British Columbia Conference on the Family, told the recent annual meeting of Anglican Church Women about Phase 2 of the conference.

The conference, which is supported by government, church and community, will in its second phase deal with discussions of family life at the neighborhood and street level.

Key topics for discussion all over the province include: The two parent family and other relationships; values and morality; the family and law; housing, health and finances; professional and voluntary community support; leisure, work and the family; and related topics and issues.

More than 3,000 work kits have been distributed in the province and questionnaires are being prepared to tabulate results of group meetings and consultations which are about to take place.

In Esquimalt this week about 35 people from schools, churches, day-care centres, sports and other groups met to discuss the program. A videotape of last November's conference was shown and family life kits were distributed. The meeting was held in Esquimalt United Church.

The Anglican Church Women's annual meeting, in St. Mary's Oak Bay, drew an average of 200 for the two-day session.

Reports were given on the Primate's World Relief and Development Fund, Camp Columbia Association and other matters.

Out-of-town visitors included Mrs. Evelyn Monk of Toronto, Mrs. Carol Lowe of New Westminster and two officers of the Episcopal Church Women of the diocese of Olympia Wash., Mrs. Roberta Montgomery and Mrs. Dotti Enslow.

St. John's hears rabbi

Rabbi Daniel Siegel of Victoria's Temple Emanuel Synagogue is giving four devotional talks on aspects of spirituality in the Old Testament and Judaism at St. John's Anglican Church at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The series began last Tuesday and will continue for the next three. The public is invited to attend.

"It's very important for Christians to have an understanding of the Hebrew background of Christianity," Canon Grahame Baker, rector of St. John's, said this week.

"The whole of Christ's teachings were in the context of what had gone before. The more we know of that context the better."

Baker said he felt it was important for Christians and Jews to develop a better understanding of one another "because we worship the same God.

"One tends to forget that Christ was a Jew and so were all the apostles. St. Paul was also a Jew."

Said Siegel: "I think the problems and purposes of most religions are commonly held and, therefore, we all can learn from others. I find a responsive chord is struck that generates common understanding."

Lutheran treat for deaf

A musical concert which will have special significance for the deaf will be given by the Concordia College choir of Portland, Ore., at 8 p.m. Thursday in Hope Lutheran Church.

Following a long tradition of the choir, about half the songs will be done in sign-language by choir members for the benefit of the deaf people in the audience.

The addition of this visual language to the choral concert format has been one of the most popular and well-received elements contributing to the reputation of this collegiate group.

The choir will sing works bearing on the theme of the bicentenary now being celebrated in the U.S. There will also be selections by Schutz and Hassler, the seventh Bach motet and Singet dem Herrn by the innovative 20th-century German church composer, Hugo Distler.

Concordia College is one of 16 schools of higher learning in Canada and the U.S. supported by the Missouri Synod of the Lutheran Church.

The school offers fully accredited programs in liberal arts, secretarial science, nursing transfer, recreation and youth work and professional church work vocations.

A donation of $1 for students and $1.50 for adults will be asked to help defray expenses.

Christians form B.C. group

The Association of Christian Councils in British Columbia was formed last weekend at a conference on church cooperation at the Vancouver School of Theology.

The conference, arranged by a task force representing Greater Victoria and Vancouver Councils of Churches, drew about 50 people.

"For the first time British Columbia now has an organization that relates Christian ecumenical groups for consultation," Canon Hilary Butler, chairman of the organizing committee, said this week.

"In time the organization can achieve the status and respect to enable governments and provincial organizations generally to hear what Christian people are saying."

"It's important for Christians to find out whether they are agreed on certain social issues," said Butler, "such as Indian land claims, guaranteed minimum income, poverty and human rights."

The new association will enable them to confer with each other on these issues, he said.

Elected chairman of the new body was Rev. Dr. A. E. King of Metropolitan United Church. Msgr. Ed Brown of Vancouver is vice-chairman and Miss Margaret Thompson of Esquimalt is secretary. Treasurer is Professor Don Gordon of the Vancouver School of Theology.

Slavic work goes on

An Alberta-born evangelist of Ukrainian extraction was in Victoria this week to tell about his work among Slavic Christians in Europe.

Bill Kapitaniuk, who was born near Athabasca, Alta., in 1928, has been carrying out his ministry in Europe since 1952.

It was not an easy one, he said in an interview, because of closed doors and antagonistic governments. But the work went on by radio and by personal contact when this is possible.

The evangelist is on a two-month trip visiting churches in Canada and the U.S. who support his mission.

In Victoria he spoke at Central Baptist Church and the Evangelical Free Church.

Kapitaniuk now lives in Northern France where he has a church with a congregation composed 90 per cent of Poles and 10 per cent of French people.

He told about his Summer Youth Training program for students. Participants agree to help in any way they can, from cooking to auto mechanics. They also take part in evangelistic outreach and distribution of literature.

Spring times two

Members of Victoria's Age of Enlightenment Centre will celebrate their first spring festival at two events on Sunday.

At 8 p.m. Sunday they will gather at the centre, 1270 Pandora, for an evening of symbolic celebrations and awards. Earlier in the day, at 11:30 a.m., a family-style picnic will be held near the playground in Beacon Hill Park.

Occasion for the festival is the establishment of the World Government for the Age of Enlightenment, an outgrowth of the Transcendental Meditation program of Maharishi Mahesh Yogi.

A spokesman for the Victoria centre said this week that the quality of life is being raised here and in other parts of the world due to the fact that more and more people are meditating.

The goal of this new world government is to accelerate the global momentum of achievement and raise world consciousness to the level of enlightenment. There now are centres in 140 countries of the world. These centres have been designated capitals.

According to the Maharishi, the sovereignty of the world government is the domain of consciousness.

"The purpose of the capitals of the Age of Enlightenment is to administer and maintain the growth of higher consciousness in a sufficient number of individuals (approximately one per cent) in every country to create an ideal society and perpetuate the Age of Enlightenment," the Maharishi has explained.

On Sunday evening there will be a symbolic lighting of candles and the sharing of a cake. Awards are to be made to Victoria Mayor Michael Young, provincial Judge William Ostler, MLA Sam Bawlf, flutist Paul Horn, UVic scientist Dr. Jeremy Tatum and Mrs. Anne Dixon. The awards are for contributions to the community.

At Sunday's picnic there will be music and games for children as well as a production by the Kaleidscope Theatre.

Jamaica: Troubled island

When Rev. Norman Archer of Emmanuel Baptist Church and his family spent six weeks in Jamaica in the West Indies earlier this year they lived, not as tourists, but among the people.

They travelled about the whole island, Archer said this week.

"This gave us insights which the average visitor to Jamaica is never able to get," he said. "We learned to feel with these people in their struggles. We saw what dire poverty really meant in the midst of affluence. We were able to understand the violence that was provoked by anger and frustration.

"We saw how closely the country is trembling on the brink of communism under the influence of Cuba, its nearest neighbor.

"We saw the congestion of large families living in tiny hovels, the inadequacy of educational facilities. We encountered an illiteracy rate among the adult population of 50 per cent."

A brighter side of the visit was the beauty of the Caribbean island, Archer said.

"We were welcomed with warmth and kindness, courtesy and generosity. We were accepted and loved and left behind us some wonderful friends. We saw a vital spiritual upsurge in that country of contrasts. We saw unparallelled opportunities for the Christian gospel and an awakening on the part of an increasing number of committed believers."

Archer will tell about his visit to Jamaica, which is half the size of Vancouver Island but has a population of 2 million people, in an hour-long sight and sound presentation to the congregation in his church at 7 p.m. Sunday, using color slides and on-the-spot tape recordings.

Bahai's fast to boost soul

Vancouver Island Baha'is, along with their brethren all over the world, have been fasting since the first week of this month.

The fast consists of total abstinence from food and drink between sunrise and sunset. The 19-day period of fasting and prayer was ordained as obligatory for every Baha'i who is 15 years or over and in good health.

Anyone who is ill or elderly, pregnant, nursing a child or travelling, is exempt.

Janice Lineham of the Victoria Baha'i community said this week that people of her faith believe that fasting, together with prayer, act as stimulants to the soul, ensuring its steady development, strengthening, reviving and purifying it. "Essentially spiritual in nature, it is a time of spiritual recuperation," she said.

"Fasting is symbolic," she added, "a reminder of abstinence from selfish and carnal desires and is a total surrender to the will of God."

The spring equinox marks the end of the fast and is also the day Baha'is celebrate as the start of a new year.

Victoria members of the faith will celebrate the first day of the year 133 of the Baha'i era, with a festive family gathering from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday in Langford community hall. Children and guests will be specjally welcomed.

Just before the fasting period began, Victoria Baha'is had a visit from Dr. Rahmatu'llah Muhajir of Indonesia, one of the remaining Hands of the Cause of the faith.

The doctor, on a tour of Baha'i communities in Canada and the U.S., spoke to an audience of more than 100 people at the University of Victoria last month.

He stressed the necessity for vision and faith, explaining that if Baha'is wish eventual unification of the human race and the revitalization of society, they must believe whole-heartedly in what they are doing.

Baha'is must become universally minded, he said, and must be careful not to exclude anyone.

Over the past 16 years, Muhajir has travelled extensively throughout Pacific Rim countries including Latin America. He left his medical practice in Iran in the early 1950s and moved to Indonesia where he took it up again and also helped spread the Baha'i faith.

The last Hands of the Cause, of which he is one, were appointed by Shoghi Effendi, guardian of the faith, in 1957, the year he died.

The first Hands of the Cause were appointed during the lifetime of Baha'u'llah, prophet-founder of the faith, in the last century.

Since then the faith has spread around the world from its birthplace in Iran.

The last Hands of the Cause administered the affairs of the faith from 1957 until 1963 when the supreme Baha'i body, the Universal House of Justice, was elected and took over that responsibility.

Gospel concert by brothers

A Nashville style gospel concert will be given at 11 a.m. Sunday in the Esquimalt Church of the Nazarene, 886 Craigflower, by the Harter Brothers of Abbotsford.

Formerly known as the Gospel Strings, the group is composed of Leo, Dale, Don and Gerald Harter and Leo's son Glen.

It's time for rejoicing

Victoria's Jewish community this week has been observing the holiday of Purim.

A whole book in the Bible — the Book of Esther — is devoted to Purim. In the entire book the name of God is not mentioned and God does not command the Jews to observe the holiday but it has been celebrated for more than 2,000 years.

It is a time for rejoicing because Queen Esther, a Jewess, was able to foil a plot by Haman, minister-in-chief to her husband, King Ahasuerus of Persia, to kill all the Jews in the country.

St. Philip's greets six special visitors

Rev. Richard Mugford, rector of St. John's Church, Ladysmith, will conduct the Sunday morning service at St. Philip's Anglican Church, Oak Bay.

He is the second of six clergymen, all formerly associated with the church, who will visit it in the coming weeks.

Last Sunday the sermon was preached by Rev. James Davenport of St. Edmund's Church, Parksville.

This special series of visitors is a prologue to the official consecration of the church which will take place May 1. All assisted in the development of the parish since its beginnings 23 years ago.

Mugford was rector from May, 1957, to August, 1960. Davenport, then on loan from the diocese of New Westminster, took charge of services during the last half of 1967.

He stayed on for a few months to assist Rev. John Vickers who was appointed rector in November of that year.

Other visiting clergy will include Rev. Will Dobson of Brentwood Memorial Chapel, Rev. R. O. Wilkes who has retired as an armed forces chaplain, Bishop John Snowdon of Cariboo and Vickers, who now is in charge of the Anglican Renewal Centre at St. Saviour's Church in Victoria West.

Joseph pilgrims greeted

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI Friday greeted a crowd of more than 10,000 persons who made a St. Joseph's day pilgrimage to St. Peter's Square.

The Pope spoke briefly from his study window overlooking the sun-bathed square where ice cream vendors did brisk business.

Recalling that Pope Pius IX had conferred the title of patron of the Roman Catholic Church on St. Joseph in 1870, the Pontiff invoked him as protector of all Christian families and of the world's work "guided by justice and by liberty."

Shops, offices and factories were closed throughout Italy as the country celebrated the feast day as a national religious holiday.

Perspectives and Prejudices

New concern for faith

By REV. J. A. DAVIDSON

In a book I read recently I came across these observations on the state of the churches:

"Everybody says there is something wrong with the churches . . . The churches are in a bad way. In most of them only a small percent of the membership ever thinks of attending religious services regularly. It is quite customary for a church to be unable to secure the attendance of more than one-fourth of the number of people who might be accommodated in its auditorium. Young people are losing interest. Preachers are becoming discouraged . . . Every denomination is shouting that unless the ministry is speedily recruited with young men, a few more years will bring disaster."

Another instance of the ecclesiastical hand-wringing which has become so fashionable in recent years? No. Those observations are from a book published in 1920, a book reflecting the plight of North American Protestantism more than half-a-centruy ago. The writer, Lloyd Douglas, pastor of congregations in the U.S.A. and Canada and later a popular novelist, was writing out of his experience as a parish minister.

The churches somehow survived the religious decline of the twenties and the economic depression of the 30's — and they managed to get through the religious boom of fifteen or so years following the Second World War without losing their souls and to enter the sixties with strength and vigor. But suddenly the boom abated, and since the early 60's they have shown signs of loss of nerve and gone in for much morbid introspection and wasted much energy in gimmicky, panicky enterprises to try to bring the boom back. And now, in the mid-70's Douglas's pessimistic observations seem terribly up-to-date.

But a new mood seems to be emerging. As a parish minister I sense a new openness to the deeper realities of faith. Many of my fellow ministers report a new concern among their people for the resources in faith which can help them to personal fulfilment. We who teach and preach in the churches find that there is not a good market now for our analyses of the international situation and the current crises of society: perhaps we have damaged our credibility by assuming that intense concern over social and political problems compensates for deficiencies in information and understanding.

But we are learning that there is a big and open market for instruction in the resources in faith and in the disciplines of faith — resources and disciplines which can help people come to terms with the fears and anxieties which are engendered by the great issues of our time. This new concern for faith is not simply a matter of inward-looking pietism — although that can be a danger. Rather, it is an awarensess that faith can help a person deal with the deep matters of his or her existence and to develop insights and perspectives which help him or her deal with social and political issues. Herein is a very serious challenge to the churches and their leaders — and herein is their greatest opportunity today.

Church council gets secretary

TORONTO (CP) — Rev Donald Whimbey Anderson of Toronto will take over as general secretary of the Canadian Council of Churches on April 1. Anderson, an Anglican priest, has been the council's interim associate secretary since last September.

Canada to aid Colombia work

BOGOTA (AP) — Paul Gerin-Lajoie, president of the Canadian Development Agency, has signed a $3-million loan agreement with Colombia, for development programs to be undertaken by Colombian government agencies.

Choir program Monday

A varied and unusual concert will be given by students of Willamette University, Salem, Ore., at 8 p.m. Monday in St. Aidan's United Church.

The program will be repeated at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Duncan United Church in Duncan.

Performers are the 50-voice Willamette University choir, the 13-voice Willamette Singers and a Renaissance consort of instrumentalists dressed in period costumes.

Under the direction of Walter Farrier the choir will feature such works as Orlando Gibbons' Hosanna to the Son of David, Hugo Distler's stirring and highly varied Singet dem Herrn and the rhythmic spiritual I Got a Key to the Kingdom.

The choir will also sing selections by Gretchaninoff, desPres and Samuel Barber. The Willamette Singers will present compositions by Vacchi, Vaughan Williams, contemporary French composer Desenclos and Jester Hairston.

S. AFRICA WINES RETURN

South African wines will return to liquor store shelves in British Columbia next week after an absence of almost a year and a half, Attorney-general Garde Gardom announced Friday.

The wines were banned in October, 1974, by the previous New Democratic Party administration as a protest against South African racial policies.

Gardom said that prior to the Dec. 11 election, which saw the Social Credit party defeat the NDP, his party and promised to study returning South African wines.

Nick Clark, liquor branch stocks director, said 700 cases of wine will be available to the public some time next week because the branch had a container delivered in error a month and a half ago.

McGeer Says NDP Hid ICBC Plan Z

The former NDP government had full knowledge of the Insurannce Corporation of B.C.'s financial state as early as June, 1974, and had a confidential plan on how it would pay off the deficit, Education Minister Pat McGeer said in the Legislature Friday.

McGeer said the scheme, labelled Plan Z called for levying an eight-cent a gallon tax on gas and transferring revenue from motor vehicle licence fees to make up the losses which totalled then $35 million.

The revenue so generated was estimated at $110 million in 1975-76 increasing at the rate of about four per cent a year.

However, McGeer, who is minister in charge of ICBC said the government chose to ignore the warning signals. He attacked the former administration for not making public details of the plan which was prepared by senior ICBC staff members.

He said in its 1975-76 budget the government made no mention of the $110 million that would have to be transferred to ICBC.

"It was a false prospectus," he charged.

When the Socreds took over after the Dec. 11 election they discovered the $110 million had been spent for other purposes, he said, and that the ICBC deficit had been allowed to build to its current level of $181 million.

He was harshly critical of Dennis Cocke (NDP—New Westminster) for not advising the Legislature of the situation at the time. Cocke was then a member of the ICIBC board of directors.

At a press conference later McGeer said "I wonder if it is proper for him (Cocke) to continue sitting in the house?"

While he said he wasn't calling for Cocke's resignation, he felt the former health minister "should do some explaining."

McGeer's comments in the house were made in reply to a motion of non-confidence in the government introduced by NDP house leader Bill King.

The motion, in the form of an amendment to the motion to accept the throne speech read by Lt.-Gov. Walter Owen on Wednesday, criticized the government for its failure to "relieve the motoring public from oppressive auto insurance rates."

It also bereated the government for failing to offer fair treatment for northern and interior drivers and failing to end discrimination against drivers under 25.

King said the new insurance rates set by the government were punitive, and were motivated by an attempt to discredit the former NDP administration.

King, in his hour-long speech attacked the government on several other fronts.

He said it was insulting to MLAs to be faced with salary cuts while the government insists on paying inflated salaries to cabinet members' staff. He cited Art Weeks, special adviser to Economic Development Minister Don Phillips, as an example. While Weeks receives $29,000 a year, MLAs currently get $24,000.

He drew a noisy response from the government benches when he said the throne speech contained falsehood and lies in its reference to the Clarkson Gordon report on the province's finances.

Premier Bill Bennett leaped to his feet and demanded a retraction. King withdrew his remark but then said the speech contained statements that were "patently untrue."

He referred to a statement in the speech which said Clarkson Gordon had told the government what the province's financial requirements would be.

Yet King said it was the government who told Clarkson Gordon what the transfer payments should be to B.C. Hydro and B.C. Rail and not the other way round.

"I regret the lieutenant-governor was placed in the position of having to read a statement that contained an absolute falsehood."

Both Liberal leader Gordon Gibson and Conservative leader Scott Wallace levelled criticism on the government for its handling of ICBC.

Gibson said a better solution would have been to put a 15 per cent surcharge on gas tax and increase premiums by 30 per cent.

He said the heavy payments and short notice given by the government in announcing the new rate structure imposed an unusual hardship on the average B.C. family.

As a result, he said, retail sales in the province have dropped.

In an interview later he said he didn't know the size of the drop but had been assured it was so by several major retailers in Vancouver.

Wallace said that although he supported a plan whereby ICBC would be operated on a pay-as-you-go basis, he decried the "abrupt, premature and heartless" way the Socreds had tackled the problem.

He said it was possible the government believed that any increase in the cost of driving would encourage the use of public transit but noted public transit isn't available in all parts of the province.

Levi Attacks SC Plan For Mincome

VICTORIA (CP) — Norm e w HHMRFRDFWDWDWDo rard) accused the British Columbia government Friday of decimating the provincial mincome program by setting different benefit rates for different age groups.

Levi, human resources minister in the former New Democratic Party administration, produced a letter in the legislature from the deputy minister saying an increase in the federal old age security supplement will be passed on to people on mincome over 65 years of age.

The letter said there will be no mincome increase to people between 60 and 65.

The mincome program, established by the former administration, pays a guaranteed monthly income, currently $265 a person, to people 60 years of age and older and to the handicapped.

The letter indicated the federal benefits would increase on April 1 to $269.30 a month for people over 65 but would remain at $265 for people between 60 and 65.

Levi said it was the policy of the former government to automatically match benefit increases allowed by the federal government.

Don't Get Sick Cocke Advises

Don't get sick is the advice former health minister Dennis Cocke gave in the Legislature Friday.

Cocke attacked the direction the government was taking in the field of health and although he reserved his harshest comments for the decision to abandon the B.C. Medical Centre he had something grim to say about the situation here.

"Take a look at the health services available in Victoria," he told the legislative members. "I'd suggest you don't get sick in this town."

Cocke called the decision to discontinue the B.C. Medical Centre plan in Vancouver a "slap in the face" to the many people who had volunteered their time to work on developing it.

He said the government was displaying an attitude of "down the drain with everything without so much as a by your leave."

However, Cocke said, the government has replaced the medical centre concept with a 10-year-old plan which he felt was both obsolete and doomed to failure.

"It's a shocking situation."

Cocke wondered who was in charge of making health decisions in the province — Education Minister Pat McGeer or Health Minister Bob McClelland.

He noted it was McGeer who announced recently the proposal to expand the UBC medical school and concentrate medical training on the university campus. he felt the statements should have come from McClelland.

"The people ask for assurance . . . want to be assured of life-saving facilities.

"But the assurance should not come from some elitist academic serving his cronies." (Referring to McGeer who was involved in brain research at UBC prior to entering politics.)

It's Tongue-Twisting Work Translating for the UN

By SERGE SCHMEMANN

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — "In the garden there's a mulberry tree, but my uncle's in Kiev," the Soviet representative solemnly pronounced in Russian before the Parliament of the world.

The English interpreter had never heard the Russian word for mulberry tree; he hadn't the foggiest notion what the proverb meant, and the speaker was already on his next sentence.

So he gambled, and people at the United Nations whose earpieces were tuned to the English translation heard: "Something is rotten in the state of Denmark."

This brought the Danish ambassador to his feet. In mock indignation, he objected to the slur on his country.

The incident illustrated the occupational hazards of the UN's excellent interpretation services.

Many words and phrases in one language have no exact equivalent in another. But the small army of interpreters have only a split second to change what they hear from one to another of the UN's official languages: English, French, Spanish, Russian and Chinese—and Arabic during meetings of the General Assembly.

How tricky this can be was shown again in February in a Security Council exchange between U.S. Ambassador Daniel Moynihan, who has since retired, and his Soviet counterpart, Jacob Malik.

Malik was responding to U.S. attacks on the Soviet involvement in Angola. Referring indirectly to Moynihan and U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger, he said:

"Take care, gentlemen, that you do not place yourselves in a ridiculous position by your anti Soviet fabrications."

That, at least, is what those listening to the English version heard.

Several long speeches later, Moynihan, referring to the phrase "take care," replied to Malik:

"Do not presume to speak of my secretary of state in such terms. . . . We are not afraid. We will not 'take care.' We do not give a damn."

To this Malik later responded:

"You impute to me the words 'take care,' 'beware.' I never said that, sir. This is your fabrication. . . . Even with my faulty knowledge of English, I should like to assert that the Russian word 'opomnites' cannot be interpreted as "take care" or "beware." It means 'take heed'."

Later, Malik asked that the phrase be made to read "think it over, gentlemen." Actually, "opomnites, gospoda" is a common Russian expression that is best translated "come to your senses, gentlemen." But however it's translated, it has no implied threat.

Klebnikov, an urbane, pipesmoking veteran of 30 years' service at the UN and equally at home in English, Russian and French, said the translation was "perfectly correct" if "take care" is read in the context of the whole sentence. "Take care, gentlemen, that you do not place yourselves in a ridiculous position. . . ."

By plucking it out of context, he said Moynihan had made it into a threat.

But this kind of problem is rare, Klebnikov said. And neither he nor UN veterans queried could recall any serious incident ever arising from mistranslation.

The most common trouble, Klebnikov said, is with proverbs. If the interpreter translates one literally, he may lose the point. But if he picks a substitute, he might run into trouble.

Klebnikov recalled one time an interpreter substituted a proverb starring a dog for the original, which had a cat. The speaker decided to elaborate on the cat image and before long the dog was climbing trees.

Klebnikov said he is advertising the world over for 20 more interpreters, but real pros are hard to come by.

Each interpreter is required to work with only three of the UN's official languages. That's child's play for linguists. Many of the UN's 368 translators, who differ from interpreters in that they work with printed documents, not live speeches, handle up to 20.

But Klebnikov says the interpreters' talent is far more refined than knowing several languages.

Laboring under extreme pressure, they have to understand a bewildering array of accents— an African speaking French sounds far different from a Parisian—and languages with totally different grammatical structures.

In Russian, for example, the subject and verb often come at the end of a sentence. In English they come at the beginning, but the interpreter can't wait for the Russian to finish his sentence before beginning to translate. So quite often he has to anticipate what the speaker is getting at and start the sentence on his own.

Because the pressure is so intense—especially if a debate is being broadcast—interpreters work in pairs and take turns at the microphone. But the one who's resting must listen intently just in case a word pops up that his partner doesn't know.

The translators, of course, work under far less pressure but the accuracy expected of them is correspondingly higher and their workload is staggering.

Last fall's General Assembly session alone generated 27,569 documents—that's nine million words, and it's only a fraction of the total the UN produces in its numerous committees and agencies.

In addition, the translators are responsible for the thousands of treaties, constitutions, news articles and letters that flow in to the UN in every conceivable language.

The talents required of interpreters and translators are rare, and the pay is correspondingly high—from $12,000 for trainees to more than $38,400.

MONTREAL SHOOTINGS MISTAKEN IDENTITY?

MONTREAL (CP) — Police believe two men killed Wednesday in an east-end bar may have been victims of mistaken identity.

Michel Thibaut, 27, and Daniel Assal, 28, both of Montreal, were shot dead by two hooded men.

Police found a 9-mm machine-gun and .357-calibre magnum revolver near the bar.

Both men worked as waiters in a nearby bar and neither had any police record, a police spokesman said Friday.

"We're still checking, but for now, the only logical explanation is that they were shot by mistake," he said. "Perhaps they sat down at the bar just after two other persons left."

HOW STAND THE CHESS MASTERS?

Who are the best players abroad and at home and what effect has their play in recent years had on their standings? Dr. Arpad Elo of Wisconsin has built up a rating list for all chess masters and active tournament players. It is officially recognized by the International Chess Federation (FIDE). Let's look at the list and see what's happening.

Robert J. Fischer still is No. 1, despite his not having participated in any serious chess for over three years. His rating is 2760, as it was in 1971. (Fischer wants to play Anatoly Karpov for the world title, and most chess masters are convinced that Bobby would beat him easily, but Fischer wants to play on his own conditions, one of which, that if the title match went to 18 games tied nine all, Fischer would keep his crown, was not acceptable to FIDE.)

Karpov, the world champion from Russia, has 2705 points. In 1971, his rating was only 2540 — and the gain of 165 points in five years is tremendous. He won first place in 1975 in Portoroz, Yugoslavia, and Milan, Italy.

Then Viktor Korchnoi, USSR, 2665 (in 1971, 2670); Tigran Petrosian, USSR, 2645 (2640 in '71); Bent Larsen, Denmark, 2625 (2660); L. Ljubojevic, Yugoslavia, 2615 (2510). He was first in Las Palmas, Amsterdam and Manila, and was the most successful player in 1975.

Now let's look at the contemporary FIDE ratings of our outstanding American Grandmasters: Robert Byrne, 2540 (2510); U.S. Champion Walter Browne, 2550 (2500); Lubomir Kavakel, 2555 (2550); Pal Benko, 2515 (2525); W. Lombardy, 2515 (2520); Sammy Reshevsky, 2530 (2550).

There are so many other special features included in this fine home that really it is difficult to list them all (though perhaps special mention should be made of the wall to wall carpeting in the living room, dining room, staircase, bedrooms and upper hallway) also, the fact that it has 3 heat zone controls and the pool is heated by a separate system.

All in all this is an outstanding country property with useful acreage and it is well worth your inspection. For your appointment to view please call Harold Groos 385-9765.

Mercantile Bank In AIB Squeeze

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal anti-inflation guidelines are more injurious to the Mercantile Bank of Canada than to most other Canadian banks, John Murphy, bank president, said Thursday.

Murphy, speaking to the Vancouver Society of Financial Analysts, said that under the foreign ownership requirements of the Bank Act, First National City Bank of New York reduced its 100 per cent ownership of Mercantile to 24.2 per cent (the legal requirement is 25 per cent) within five years.

During this period, Mercantile was limited to expanding its assets to no more than 20 times authorized capitalization. Other Canadian banks operative with an asset-capitalization ratio of between 25 to 1 and 30 to 1.

Murphy said this limitation on asset growth had the effect of holding Mercantile's profitability and return on assets below industry norms. He said that while the bank no longer is subject to this growth restriction, the anti-inflation guidelines limit the bank's return on assets to no more than 95 per cent of its average return during the five fiscal years which ended in 1974.

"As thing stand now, and assuming we can maintain first-quarter results through the balance of this fiscal year, our earnings and return on assets will be substantially in excess of the guidelines," said Murphy. "The implications are anything but cheery — we could face an absolute decline in profitability as a result of the anti-inflation guidelines."

Guilty —Again— In Slaying

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — David George, 27, Friday was found guilty of the contract killing of a Surrey fisherman four years ago, and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

A jury found him guilty after nearly nine hours of deliberation. It was his third trial on the charge.

He was charged with the murder of William Tupniak, 27, on March 27, 1972. Two others were also charged.

All three were tried and convicted after a nine-week trial in B.C. Supreme Court later that year.

Last May, the B.C. Court of Appeal granted George a new trial, but the other two convicted, Robert Charles Smith and Ronald Phillip Sauve, had their appeals dismissed.

When the retrial opened early this month, Mr. Justice R. P. Anderson called a mistrial and ordered another jury impanelled to hear the case.

At the original trial, the three men were convicted of the contract killing of Tupniak and the Crown said the killing was financed by a jealous husband. Tupniak and Marilyn Jean Cathers, 24, were found dead of shotgun and knife wounds.

Two Injured In Mishaps

Two Saanich residents were treated and released from Royal Jubilee Hospital Friday after separate accidents.

Patricia Ann Cunningham, 19, was identified by police as the driver of a car involved in a three-vehicle accident at Grange and the Trans-Canada Highway at 4:30 p.m.

Traffic was disrupted briefly, but damage to the vehicles was not extensive, Saanich police said.

In another accident, motorcycle driver Paul Patterson, 18, was taken to hospital after a collision with a car on Tudor at 4:20 p.m., police said.

ADVERTISERS DO YOU HAVE AN IMAGE?

• I DON'T KNOW. WHAT DO YOU MEAN — "DO I HAVE AN IMAGE?"

A good advertising image is a mental picture that reflects the kind of merchandise or service being offered for sale. For example: A quality furniture store should LOOK like a quality furniture store not a bargain hunter's paradise. And a budget priced store should always look like what it IS — so that it attracts the kind of people who are looking for the kind of merchandise it sells.

• HOW DO I GET AN IMAGE?

Well, first, you decide what kind of store you are — what sort of people you're appealing to, and then you design all your advertising to fit. You stick to the same style, so that people recognize your ad as YOURS as soon as they see it.

• WHAT'S THE ADVANTAGE?

Well, like we said — you attract the right kind of customer to begin with. You're not going to sell a $900 dining suite to someone who's looking for a 79.95 kitchen set anyway, so why waste your advertising dollars? And people who want elegant dining facilities are going to be disappointed if all you serve is chili-burgers for 1.69

• ANYTHING ELSE?

Yes. By seeing your company advertise in a consistent manner, the public learns to gain confidence in YOUR firm. It establishes YOU in the mind of the people as a reliable, ongoing firm that knows its business — one that is going to be there to stand behind what it sells for years to come.

• BUT I DON'T KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT DESIGNING ADS. THEN WHAT?

That's what your two daily newspapers can do for you. We have a team of sales people who've been in the business a long time. They are trained to advise you on your budget. And, backing them up, is a team of artists and copy-writers who are trained to design an advertising campaign that will reflect your image and up your profits by increasing your business at a sure, steady rate.

• WHAT IS AN ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN ANYWAY?

That's a planned series of advertisements designed to do a specific job. It's the only way to advertise effectively. You establish your goals; our account representative brings them to the creative people, who work out the best way to reach your target. They use their imagination and their knowhow to think up something especially for you.

• HOW DO I KNOW I'LL LIKE IT?

You're given an artist's rough of your ad campaign so you can discuss it with others in your firm, and with your account rep. before you start the series. And re-vamp if necessary. Then, you get proofs of your ads after they've been typeset and the art is in place.

• HOW DO I KNOW I CAN AFFORD IT?

Because your account rep. knows your business; he knows what your advertising budget should be, based on your volume and what your cost-to-sell figures should be. So, when the creative department designs your ads, these figures are borne in mind so that the amount of space you buy fits in with what you can afford.

• BUT ISN'T IT EXPENSIVE TO HAVE THIS SPECIAL TREATMENT?

It costs no more than just buying space. Our creative team has books and books of headings, borders, drawings, sketches, and many different type styles to utilize. They are creative people who can put these things to good use for your benefit at no extra charge. They'll make up a series of ads that reflect the image you want to create, so that your ads are YOURS and YOURS ALONE.

Margaret Goes Home to Mother

LONDON — Princess Margaret went home to her mother following the announcement that she was splitting up with her husband, Lord Snowdon, after nearly 16 years of marriage.

The younger sister of the Queen arrived at Windsor Royal Lodge, the Queen Mother's residence, Friday night with her children David Viscount Linley, 14, and Lady Sarah Armstrong Jones, 11. Princess Margaret, 45, will have custody of the children.

The two children were called home early from Bedales, an exclusive co-educational boarding school, to hear the news of their parents' separation.

Following Friday's announcement that the couple will live apart but not get a divorced, the Queen left Buckingham Palace to spend the weekend at Windsor Castle, and the royal sisters are expected to meet today.

PORTSMOUTH — Jannie Daley has received more than 200 proposals of marriage in response to an advertisement she made over the radio.

Daley, a Zambian-born student, was looking for a British husband in order to remain in the country. The 23-year-old student will have to leave Britain when her visa expires in June unless she becomes a British citizen through marriage.

In the advertisement, she offered her prospective husband $1,000 — provided no sex was involved and he agrees to a quick divorce.

ALTON, England — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, Britain's famous army commander in the Second World War, has fallen ill at his country home near here, a family spokesman said today.

"He is an old man and he's very tired," his son, David, said. "But there's no cause for immediate alarm. He's been ill for some time."

LONDON — Edward Gorman, who had his nose bitten off when he went to the aid of a policeman, was awarded $200 by a London court Friday.

Gorman went to the aid of a policeman who was grappling with Pual Onuma of Nigeria, but had his nose bitten off in the fray. An operation to stitch it back failed.

Judge Paul Layton said the award was not compensation, but a token of the public's appreciation.

Onuma, 38, was jailed for two years on a charge of causing grievous bodily harm.

OTTAWA — Three Ottawa city policemen have shaved their heads to protest the government's plan to abolish the death penalty. The three officers, Paul Tonon, Bill Stewart and Brian Allen, reported to work late Friday evening for their first shift without hair. The government bill to abolish the capital punishment was introduced recently in the Commons.

HOLLYWOOD — Mary Pickford, "America's Sweetheart" of the silent screen, may break 10 years of seclusion to attend the Academy Awards.

'ANTIQUE' WAS STILL ILLEGAL

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — Dave Barbour faces a joust in circuit court Tuesday with Florida's anti-moonshine law because he tried to sell a couple of antiques.

Barbour thought he had made a real find a year ago when he bought a pair of old moonshine stills at a flea market. He cleaned them up, polished the copper and brass and took one of them to his booth in a city park March 6 for an antique show.

"Copper and brass are very big this year with decorators," he said. "People buy these stills to use as decorator items or planters in their homes."

One of Barbour's "customers" turned out to be Richard Aldret, a state beverage agent who arrested the antiques shop operator on a charge of violating the state liquor laws by owning a still. The maximum penalty for conviction is five years in prison.

Sun Profit Holds

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sun Publishing Co. Ltd., publishers of Vancouver Sun, reports net profit of $3.8 million for the period ended Dec. 31, 1975, compared with net profit of $3.7 million for the same period in 1974.

Profit for a class A share was $5.10, compared with $5.04 in 1974. Profit for a Class B share was $5, compared with $4.94 in 1974.

Sun Publishing publishes Vancouver Sun for Pacific Press Ltd. (of which it owns 50 per cent). Pacific Press employs substantially all the personnel involved in the publication, pays all expenses and receives all revenues in respect to Vancouver Sun.

Sun Publishing's revenues, including 50 per cent of the net profit of Pacific Press Ltd. (of which it owns 50 per cent) totalled $4.3 million in 1975, compared with $4.2 million in 1974.

In a report to shareholders, Sun Chairman C. B. Delbridge said substantial increases in operating costs, principally wages, newsprint and distribution costs largely offset revenue gains and resulted in a small increase in net profits of about 1.25 per cent.

He said a gross revenue increase of 13.3 per cent at Pacific Press Ltd. was offset by a 16.1 per cent increase in operating expenses.

Delbridge said the technological change program begun in 1975 will continue through 1976.

Advertising lineage was 50,146,824 lines, an increase of 2.5 per cent from 1974.

Delbridge said that although circulation revenue increased, newspaper sales declined 4.8 per cent, due largely to the increase in the price of newsprint and the postal strike.

Profits from the company's investment portfolio increased by two per cent. The portfolio had a market value of $20.2 million as of Dec. 31, 1975, of which $2 million is designated long term.

On Jan. 2, the company received a regular and special dividend from Pacific Press totalling $1.5 million.

REHEARSALS as usual — Back from a successful tour of Vancouver Island centres, the University Chamber Singers return to the practice room to prepare, under director Bruce Moe (far right), for a concert Sunday, 2:30 p.m. at McPherson Playhouse. The singers will be assisted by the Island Wind Quintet and the concert is being presented as the last in its 1975-76 series, by Victoria Musical Art Society. Seated at the piano is the group's accompanist, Donna Nutini.

No Alberta Tax Hikes

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government called for spending restraints while stressing social improvements in a $2.961-billion budget presented Friday in the legislature by Provincial Treasurer Merv Leitch.

Leitch, pledging restraint on government spending while providing a level of service "second to none in Canada," unveiled a budget highlighting a 7.7-per-cent increase over forcast expenditures of $2.759 billion for the current fiscal year.

"I want to stress that this is a reduction in the rate of increase of spending and not a reduction in the amount of expenditure," he said, noting that expenditures have increased by an annual average of 23 per cent in the last five years.

Alberta embarked on a restraint program last September with the announcement of 11-per-cent limits on spending increases.

A major portion of the $211-million expenditure increase—or more than 92 per cent—will be earmarked for social programs, Leitch said. Spending in education, hospitals and social services and community health account for two-thirds of the total operating budget of $2.560 billion.

The Progressive Conservative government's budget, immediately termed "deceiving" by opposition leaders, contains no tax increases, thus maintaining the position of Albertans as the lowest-taxed citizens in Canada.

Witness Admits Lying To Protect Shisler

Larry Shisler's girl friend of a year ago told Victoria County Court Friday she lied to police to protect him.

Deanna Paine, also known as Deanna MacFarlane, was called by defence counsel Doug Christie in the 10th day of the trial of Shisler, accused of robbing the Royal Bank of Canada, 1006 Hillside, of $2,679 last April 24.

Ms. Paine, 17, said she was living in Shisler's rented house at 3390 Veteran with her foster sister, Kathy MacFarlane. She said Shisler went downtown around noon or 1 p.m. to go to the post office, and he got back about 6 p.m.

Cross-examined by Crown counsel Ted Pollard, she agreed she made a statement to police on the evening of April 24 saying she and Kathy and Shisler left the house about 3:30 p.m., had coffee at Hillside shopping centre and went downtown by bus.

She agreed the answers were not correct.

Asked by Christie in re-examination why she lied to police, she said because police told her Shisler, 31, would be charged, that he was on parole and any charge would revoke parole, "so I figured I had to protect him. I didn't know why."

In re-cross-examination by Pollard, who asked her if telling the truth wouldn't protect him, she said, "I knew he had gone out and I knew it didn't take all afternoon to go to the post office."

Kathy MacFarlane, 18, said she had a toothache that day and slept all day, getting up a few times. She said she was Harold Peggoraro's girlfriend and his car was kept at the Veteran Street house in April, and "as far as I know" it was there until April 24.

She was shown a statement she gave police in which she said Shisler was watching television at home and went out around 3:30 p.m. to get some groceries.

Questioned closely by Pollard, she frequently answered, "I think so" or, "I guess that's what happened," and added that she was confused that day because she was ill.

Court has been told the alleged robbery occurred between 2:20 and 2:30 p.m. April 24.

Both Deanna Paine and Kathy MacFarlane said they knew Jack Chamberlain, identified in court Thursday by Shisler as a man he talked to around the middle of the day while waiting for a bus to go downtown.

Shisler, who attempted to refuse to identify him and said he feared for his life for doing so, said Chamberlain told him "he was going to rob some place, he didn't say where." He said Chamberlain was driving Peggoraro's car.

Ms. MacFarlane said she was "not sure" if she saw Chamberlain in April, 1975.

The final defence witness, Brian Ewald, said he and his girl friend Sheila Evans went to visit MacFarlane at the Veteran Street house in the early evening of April 24 and Shisler asked to be driven downtown.

They got into the car and had just started it when police stopped them. After being questioned by police, he said, he was taken to an interview room at headquarters by a detective and saw Shisler briefly.

Cross-examined by Pollard, Ewald said he locked his car when he arrived at Shisler's house, that he had no knowledge of a bag of money found under the front passenger seat, and the first time he saw this was later in the evening when police searched his car.

He said he didn't know Jack Chamberlain or who he was.

Ewald said when he was at the doorway of the police station room where he saw Shisler, the man said, "I'm sorry about it all."

He could not identify either of two detectives brought into the courtroom as the policeman he said took him to Shisler's interview room.

Re-examined by Christie, on the exact words spoken by Shisler, Ewald said "to the best of my knowledge" he said "he was sorry for all the trouble he had caused me."

Pollard and Christie will address the jury Monday and Judge E. J. C. Stewart will deliver his charge, after which the jury will retire to consider its verdict.

Plane Lost On Flight Near Seattle

SEATTLE (AP)—Searchers have failed to spot a single-engine aircraft missing with two persons aboard since Wednesday night.

The missing persons were identified as Aaron Moscovitz, the pilot, from Vancouver, and Karl Pamperian, also from British Columbia.

The state aeronautics commission began the search Thursday after the plane disappeared Wednesday night on a flight to Vancouver from Troutdale, Ore.

A search spokesman said Friday there is "at least a 40-per-cent chance they're down in the water."

FAA officials said the pilot radioed Wednesday night that he was north of Seattle and needed help, but radio contact was lost soon after.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A Saanich police constable took the witness box Friday in Victoria provincial court to testify in behalf of a 35-year-old Victoria area woman charged in a case he helped to investigate.

Constable Alan Kangas said Mrs. Jean Hilda Carter, who pleaded guilty to two Saanich charges containing five counts of possession of known stolen property, "played a relatively minor role . . . she was perhaps taken unaware by the magnitude of the operation."

Mrs. Carter admitted possession Nov. 8 at her then residence in Saanich of a marine water pump, marine compass, portable radio, set of transceivers, bottle of cologne and body shirt.

Prosecutor Nicholas Lang said another person took the items to Mrs. Carter's home, "where they were stored pending resale." Kangas, called by defence lawyer David Lisson, said the items were catalogued, "prices were fixed on them" and they were resold from at least two places.

The investigator said another person "made the bulk of the arrangements and handled the bulk of the transactions."

"The only reward Mrs. Carter received for her part in this operation was clothing for her young daughter (aged 3) and some clothing for herself," he testified.

Lang said another person is charged in the case and faces trial soon. Judge William Ostler remanded Mrs. Carter to Wednesday for a pre-sentence report and sentence.

James Alfred Charlie, 23, of 820 Fisgard, was sentenced by Ostler to the minimum federal prison term of two years after pleading guilty Wednesday to a Victoria charge of break-in and theft.

Charlie took $28 in coins from a till following a break-in early March 10 at White's Diving Equipment, 832 Fisgard. At the time, he was on two terms of probation for robbery, break-in and theft and possession of known stolen property.

His record went back to late 1971 and included six convictions, four jail sentences, the two probation terms and two violations of mandatory-supervision release. Charlie said he had been at William Head once, liked the cooking course and wanted to take it again.

Douglas James Pruden, 23, and Michael Eric Still, 21, both of 3134 Alder, pleaded not guilty to a joint charge of possession of heroin March 12 at their residence and Pruden also pleaded not guilty to a charge of possession of marijuana at the same time. Ostler set the trial of the joint charge for May 10 and the single one for May 12.

Two men pleaded guilty Friday before Ostler to separate charges of impaired driving. They were William Kennedy Napier, 60, of Edmonton, stopped Monday in Colwood, fined $400 and banned from driving for four months, and Robert Ingemond Christensen, 22, of 622 Head, stopped Dec. 6, 1975, in Sidney and fined $350.

Sidney Pitch Monday

Developers proposing a 43-unit waterfront condominium in Sidney will present their case to council Monday.

Mayor Peter Malcolm said Sailview Estates of Victoria had a scheme to provide its own water for the townhouse-condominiums near Van Isle Marina that would sell for about $100,000 each.

The area is short of water andr esidences could not be provided with water from Sidney's system, he said.

Sailview is a subsidiary of Victoria's Dundurn Developments Ltd.

Malcolm said the project had been in the works for several months and no decision would be made for some time.

Air Canada Flights Cut

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada said today it will eliminate some flights and delay introduction of new services as part of a program to improve efficiency.

It said service between Quebec City and New York will be suspended in late April because of "very low load factors".

The transcontinental service operating through London, Ont. will operate from June to September instead of April through October.

Planned services being deferred include Ottawa to Calgary, Montreal to Portland Me and Montreal to Boston

"Because of a reduction in market growth the company now views traffic on the proposed Ottawa-Calgary service as being insufficient until 1977" President Claude Taylor said in a statement

"The airline believes services to Maine and Boston from Montreal cannot be economically justified at this time."

The airline said transatlantic services are also being reviewed. It will seek permission to suspend service to Munich.

Taylor said that in order to increase the efficiency of the airline and return it to a profitable footing "it is imperative that over-all capacity is related to the realistic demands of the market."

Air Canada has had total losses of more than $20 million in the last two years.

Protest, Bitter CLC Zero on Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — A defiant Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) has told the federal government it will never accept the anti-inflation program of selective wage and price controls.

The CLC is scheduled to present its fiery denunciation of the program to cabinet Monday, at the same time as thousands of workers from across the country are expected to converge on snow-covered Parliament Hill to demonstrate their support for the congress, which represents two million persons through its affiliated unions.

"This government . . . has placed itself on a collision course with the labor movement of this country," the CLC said in its brief, which was released in advance of delivery.

"We do not welcome this, but we do not intend to back down either."

While taking a pugilistic stance in the brief, CLC president Joe Morris said last week that the congress has taken extensive precautions to ensure that the mass labor rally does not explode into a violent demonstration.

The CLC has opposed the selective controls program since its introduction Oct. 13 because, labor leaders say, ceilings have effectively been clamped on wage increases while prices, for the most part, have been allowed to rise unchecked.

"Canadians were told that the same degree of sacrifice would be required from all sectors of the economy, but the legislation and regulations have made a mockery of this principle for we fail to find adequate controls on dividends, interest rates, professional fees and land speculators."

The congress, in its annual presentation to cabinet, said the government "has embarkedu pon an anti-inflation program which, in the history of Canada, is unparallelled in its callous and brutal treatment of all who must toil for a living."

Labor Minister John Munro said in an interview that the CLC submission "is a very strident brief and I frankly think its rhetoric is excessive."

"It seems to be completely destructive and I would hope that after elaborating a lot of criticisms, they might have gone on to make some constructive suggestions."

The congress normally deals with a range of issues in its annual submission to cabinet, but this year's 8000-word brief is devoted almost entirely to a bitter attack on the anti-inflation program and a reiteration of CLC demands for an alternative program.

The CLC has said since last May, when the federal government attempted to get business and labor to accept a program of voluntary restraint, that the congress cannot support a restraint program that does not meet a number of conditions.

The CLC brief mentions the need for curtailing land speculators and to establish land banking. It also questions climbing oil and gas prices and "the stated policy of the government that they shall continue on their merry climb."

The CLC also wants a guarantee that tax concessions to corporations will be used to create jobs rather than be paid out in higher dividends. The congress also rebuked the government for rejecting its proposal for a negative income tax or tax credit scheme.

It attacked the government program "for its decision to fight inflation at the expense of higher unemployment."

Killer Flu Feared

WASHINGTON (WP) — Dr. Albert Sabin, who 20 years ago developed the oral vaccine for polio, said late last year that it was possible to have a cheap, mass-produced influenza vaccine in time for the next major flu epidemic if the U.S. Congress would only come through with the funds for research.

Sabin was talking then about a known flu variety that makes its appearance about every 10 years, the estimated arrival time of the next being 1978.

But now, Sabin believes, there is a chance for an even more deadly outbreak, as early as this fall, of a rare flu strain for which there is no readily available vaccine. This is the virus which recently killed one soldier at Ft. Dix, N.J., and infected several others. It is judged to be like the virus which killed 20 million people around the world in 1918.

Sabin, 70, now associated with the Medical College of South Carolina at Charleston, says the government must decide now whether to go all out to develop a new vaccine rather than wait and risk a "forest fire" epidemic.

The reason for the success of Sabin's polio vaccine was its ability to be produced cheaply on a massive scale. That's what he says must be done with the flu.

"A decision must be made: Just how much are we prepared to spend if this forest fire type of epidemic starts next fall," he says. "We must intensify research on alternative methods of immunizing which have the potential for more effective mass vaccination.

"It may be necessary to go back to the drawing board altogether."

Grounded Packer Rescued

The Vancouver fish packer Great Northern 8 has emergency pumps loaded aboard at Central Saanich wharf today after grounding on Cooper's Reef off Sidney during the night.

Her five-man crew escaped without injury.

The 82-foot packer was badly holed in the mishap and barely kept afloat during morning tow to dock at foot of James Island Road by pumps from coast guard cutter Racer.

"Rescue was a successful race against time and chance because main pump is mounted on stern of Racer and cutter would have had to leave packer to her fate had she been called to another emergency.

Hollywood Weekend For Picking Oscars

Jaws has passed The Godfather and Gone With the Wind as the box-office champion of all time but may have a difficult chore winning the Academy Award as best movie of the year.

The saga of man against shark got only four nominations, compared with nine for One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest and seven for Barry Lyndon. Also in the race for best picture are Dog Day Afternoon with six nominations and Nashville with five.

Members of the Motion Picture Academy usually back a box office winner — Gone With the Wind and Godfather were both named best picture — but this may be the year the revenue totals will be ignored.

The uncertainty adds to the difficulty of predicting which movie will be named best film on Oscar night March 29.

For the second year the Victoria Times and radio station CJVI are giving Victorians a chance to predict the top Oscar winners and win a weekend for two in Hollywood, the home of the stars.

Winner of the contest will be drawn from among those who have correctly predicted the winner of best movie, best actor and best actress.

Oscar winners are announced Monday, March 29, and the drawing from among the correct entries will take place March 30.

Official entry forms will appear daily in the Victoria Times starting Monday.

The complete list of nominees:

Best actor — Jack Nicholson for One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, Walter Matthau for The Sunshine Boys, Al Pacino in Dog Day Afternoon, Maximillian Schell for The Man in the Glass Booth and James Whitmore in Give 'em Hell, Harry!

Best Actress — Ann-Margret in Tommy, Louise Fletcher for One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, Glenda Jackson as Hedda, Isabelle Adjani for The Story of Adele H. and Carol Kane in Hester Street.

Best Movie — Jaws, One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, Barry Lyndon, Dog Day Afternoon, Nashville.

Some wags have suggested that Brucie should have been nominated for his hard-hitting performance in Jaws. Brucie was the mechanical shark that terrorized millions of viewers with his life-like assault on swimmers near Martha's Vineyard, New England.

The site of the action was within miles of the place where Captain Ahab set out for the great white whale, Moby Dick, and critics have seen many parallels in the two stories of man against sea monster.

One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest earned nine nominations, including the two key awards of best actor and best actress. Solid acting performances by supporting players also was an indication of the power of director Milos Forman. The story of one man's fight against the system inside a mental institution is haunting but depressing.

Barry Lyndon is a beautiful tableau of a bygone age that some critics called sort of Tom Jones at half speed. It is slow moving but fairly impressive.

Nashville is an inside look at the fun, politics and heartbreak of the country movie industry in Tennessee while Dog Day Afternoon is the story of an offbeat holdup in Brooklyn.

The two leads from Cuckoo's Nest, Jack Nicholson and Louise Fletcher, are highly regarded for the top acting awards while Walter Matthau and Ann-Margret may be sentimental selections. Ann-Margret is making a comeback after severely injuring her jaw and things like that tend to influence Academy voters. Particularly if they are thinking Jaws as best movie.

Maximillian Schell and Al Pacino have both been to the winner's circle before and are strong contenders but the sleeper could be James Whitmore for his strong performance as Harry Truman.

Among the women, Glenda Jackson is a perennial nominee and is always difficult to beat. Isabelle Adjani and Carol Kane are newcomers.

The Times-CJVI contest is not open to employees of the two companies or their immediate families.

Argentina Reported Close To Coup by Armed Forces

By JOANNE OMANG

BUENOS AIRES (WP) — The Argentine armed forces are ready to take power. Detailed plans for a takeover have been drawn up, including the membership of a new government, a list of persons to be arrested and the text of the first announcement to the population.

"The people of Argentina want to know," the text begins, "and they shall know." The phrase, a time-honored one in the history of Argentine political oratory, would initiate the latest of half dozen coups here since 1930.

As with previous coups, plans have leaked in advance, and the broad outline has been published both here and abroad. As also with previous coups, the plans are subject to change without notice.

It is to be the formal end of the staggering government of President Isabel Peron, 45, who has presided for 21 months over a disintegrating economy and daily terrorist violence.

Although the precise date is unknown, it is expected to be soon and it is expected to be generally welcomed.

According to sources close to high military leaders, army commander Jorge Rafael Videla, 50, is slated to head the new government. As leader of the faction that has held out for months against other officers' pressure for an earlier coup, he is expected either to be titular chief or first among equals in a three-member junta.

If there is a junta, the other members are expected to be Navy Commander Emilio Massera, 51, and Air Force Commander Brig. Gen. Orlando Agosti, 49. They are close friends and regarded as moderate conservatives.

Among the first places to be padlocked by the army would be the Argentine Congress, where a disarray of squabbling minority parties and ruling Peronist party splinters have haggled for months over procedural details on bills intended to solve the country's economic and political problems.

The coup planners say they do not want to spill blood. Mrs. Peron, would be arrested and exiled to Spain.

If this occurs, she would follow the history of her late husband, Juan Peron, whom the army exiled to Spain in 1955.

Meanwhile, a one-hour gunfight between guerrillas and soldiers in downtown Buenos Aires early today ended a week of stepped-up terrorist killings and bombings throughout Argentina.

The shootout came hours after six bombs were found on Libertador Avenue, one of the capital's busiest thoroughfares and President Peron's habitual motor route from the presidential palace to her suburban Olivos residence.

On Friday evening, she went home by helicopter.

MINE TALKS

WESTERN EYEING $1M LOTTERY

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Western Canada Lottery Foundation announced Friday negotiations are under way for a million-dollar lottery to continue on a national basis after the Olympics.

The foundation said in a statement it would be similar to the Olympic lottery, which has a $10 ticket price, and revenue would go to the provinces on the basis of tickets sold.

"Nine provinces have agreed to this concept in principle and negotiations are being carried on with Quebec to ascertain their interest in the proposal," the statement said.

"Each province would determine its own spending priorities for the revenue. Under the proposed inter-provincial setup a board of directors representing the four regional lotteries would determine over-all policies."

Rollback Urged in Food Pact

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal Anti-Inflation Board Friday recommended a rollback of 1.4 per cent of the second year of the greater Vancouver area supermarket labor settlement.

The rollback would bring the settlement in the second year to about 10.5 per cent from 11.88 per cent.

The board did not touch the first year's percentage of 16.59 per cent.

Leaders of the meat cutters, retail clerks and Bakery workers unions said they would be taking the recommendation to their membership as soon as possible.

It is expected the meetings will take place a week from Sunday.

The anti-inflation board issued a statement on its recommendations after a two-hour meeting with supermarket employers and the union leaders in Vancouver.

The agreement between the B.C. Food industry Labor Relations Council, representing the supermarkets, and the three unions runs from April, 1975 to March, 1977 and covers about 4,500 employees of 11 retail food marketing companies in the province.

The board said the settlement was based on the report of Clive McKee, an industrial inquiry commissioner appointed in January by then labor minister Allan Williams.

The agreements provide for increases in total compensation that exceed the federal wage and price guidelines by 5.2 per cent in the first year and 1.6 per cent in the second year.

The board said the settlement was substantially less than previous proposals made in June and July, 1975, when the food unions turned down an offer or more than 30 per cent in a year.

UNION SHOP!

Barber Carries Card, Union Splits Hairs

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Local union leader John Schibli let himself in for a lot of ribbing at this week's Victoria Labor Council meeting — he turned up sporting a new non-union haircut.

Schibli rather sheepishly admitted to the meeting he feared his new trim was the work of non-union scissors, but he said he had an excuse — there was a union shop card hanging on the wall of the barber shop.

"I really thought it was a union shop," said Schibli, president of the labor council and of the carpenters' union.

The shop does indeed have a union card hung prominently on its wall, owner Paul Almeida of Modern Hairstyling in the Hillside mall admitted.

And, no, it's not a union shop.

The card was in the shop when he bought it two years ago and now he refused to give it up. He's become rather attached to it.

The barbers' union would be pleased if Almeida would give it up, union past president and recording secretary Len Stephenson said.

Stephenson made a trip to the shop a while ago in an unsuccessful attempt to get the card back.

"It's not worth getting your head bashed in about," he said.

The local has now turned the problem over to the international "and I expect if they want it they'll come and get it."

Stephenson himself ran into a similar problem when he sold his own barber shop in the Empress Hotel.

He forgot to turn the card back to the union and for a while it remained in the shop. It is now down, he said, and the problem was his fault.

Almeida said the union card in his shop is now "just a point of mind."

He has no intention of joining the union — it would raise his already high prices, $6 a cut, any cut.

Stephenson went about getting the card back in the wrong way, he said. "He tried to grab it off the wall."

"I was upset with the way he tried to get it back. He didn't ask me for it and now I just don't feel like giving it to them.

"I'm not stupid. I know it's not my card and I'll probably give it back if someone comes and asks me for it."

The Scapegoats Are Happy At Fernwood-Springridge

If you listen to City Hall and to some of the media men who report the goings-on there, you no doubt by now have come to the conclusion that a so-called group of young radicals in the Fernwood-Springridge area are a barbaric lot, indeed.

The young people, who formed the Springridge Housing Co-operative two years ago but also belong to several other community groups, have been accused of some fiendish things.

They are said to be involved in a power struggle for control over $1 million in Neighborhood Improvement Program (NIP) funds designated for the Springridge district near Victoria High School.

One reporter said the radical "Group of about 20 young people, few of them holding regular jobs, has succeeded in all but destroying the Fernwood Community Association, taking control of the committee responsible for drawing up guidelines on how to spend the $1 million jackpot, and generally intimidating the established community forces in that area."

"They have," said the same reporter, "disrupted meetings, forced adjournaments half an hour after they started: they have replaced (NIP) committee members with their own and have brought the situation to a point where all three levels of government should seriously consider scraping the whole NIP endeavor in Springridge."

"Other members of the Fernwood-Springridge community have called the co-op members everything from Hippies to Communists."

The "radicals" have even been accused of wanting more community input in the development of their area. Now there's a dangerous suggestion! Don't they realize the residents are used to City Hall having the monopoly on community bunglings?

The finger has been pointed at Paul Phillips, said to be the acknowledged leader of the co-op group. But Paul politely declined a chance to explain all in an interview because, he said, he isn't the acknowledged leader of anything. He does belong to four different district groups, though, and is very active in the community. And he lays the blame squarely on City Hall.

"City Hall has wanted to control the program from start to finish," Phillips said, "that's what it has wanted — and that's what it's out to get."

Joyce Heynsbroek agrees with him wholeheartedly.

Four times an aldermanic candidate and a much-involved resident of Fernwood for 10 years, Mrs. Heynsbroek now is acting chairperson of the Fernwood Community Association. And she says her association has had no trouble from the "radicals."

"The word radical means root," said Mrs. Heynsbroek "and these young people are certainly working hard at the grass roots of the community. Their lifestyle is different — they have long hair and wear jeans and don't work at regular jobs because they don't go into the office from 9 to 5, and this upsets some people. But I would say they've had a large measure of success."

The success refers to the co-op's much-criticized housing project involving the conversion of four old homes into duplexes.

Mrs. Heynsbroek described Paul Phillips as a very articulate Welshman.

"He's a go-getter, very forceful in his manner of speaking, and because of this he irritates a lot of people," she said.

"I have been acting chairperson for this year and have personally never had any trouble with the housing people. There is not one of them on the board and they do not control our meetings — I do.

"The Fernwood Community Association has had internal problems," Mrs. Heynsbroek admits. "There were frustrations with one or two of our own members — nothing to do with NIP or Paul Phillips — but somehow or other it appears to have been all turned round and blamed on the housing co-op people."

As Phillips says;

The Fernwood Community Association wants to be the official spokesman for the NIP project. City Hall hasn't agreed to this.

"Our only real trouble has been with City Hall and its refusal to recognize us in connection with the NIP project," said Mrs. Heynsbroek.

Citing inter-community group feuding as their reason, city aldermen this week warned residents they risked having no say in the matter. Ald. Murray Glazier even said he was very close to recommending the council step in and appoint its own NIP committee to run things.

"I'm very angry and upset with city council people over this," said Mrs. Heynsbroek. "They have allowed Fernwood to become a run down area and they are now trying to use this NIP money to fix up things like storm drains and potholes that they should have seen to years ago."

But Mrs. Heynsbroek thinks the council's threats are hollow.

"It's a federal government project ($500,000 comes from Ottawa, and $250,000 each from the provincial government and city council) and I don't think the federal government will go along with the things the city council are saying," she points out. "I'm certainly going to scream to Ottawa, anyway, if there is no community input allowed in Fernwood."

As far as those "radical" co-op people are concerned, they aren't too upset with what has been said about them. But they are worried about the community.

"The whole community is being negated," said Phillips emotionally.

Tod Family Friend Donates Historic Housewarming Gift

Times Staff

It's small, plain and unpretentious.

The bureau's natural wood lies hidden under coats of paint, swollen thick through many applications.

Seeing it stowed away in the Oak Bay municipal yard, it's difficult to believe the chest is an important reminder of Victoria's past.

It's the first donation toward furnishing Oak Bay's historic Tod House on Heron. Jointly bought for $65,000 last November by the municipality and the provincial government.

The house was built for Hudson Bay Company chief factor John Tod and Oak Bay council is trying to refurnish it as it looked in 1830.

The little chest was donated by Mrs. H. Lauder Ramsay of Somass Drive, who probably knew the Tod family better than anyone alive today.

Mrs. Ramsay estimates it was made around 1851. She recalls how, before they were hidden in paint, the wooden knobs on the chest showed signs of being fashioned with a penknife.

"They cleared the land and sold cordwood to buy food. They had to make everything," she explained.

Her mother was a close friend of Meleva Tod, wife of the factor's youngest grandson. She was brought up by the Tods, most people knowing her better as Dorothy Tod, than by her real name, Dorothy Poulton.

The little chest and another larger one which she earlier presented to the Provincial Museum were in her bedroom during her growing-up years.

She recalls how the Tod family was among the first to buy a car in Victoria, purchasing a Cadillac in 1912 and another one the next year, this one being the first in the area that was a self-starter.

"It was a huge car and they had to prop me up with half a dozen cushions,' she chuckled. "You didn't need a driver's licence in those days. If you had a car . . . you drove."

Mrs. Ramsay explained that most people walked to and from town in those days and anybody driving a car would stop and offer a walker a lift, even if he or she was a stranger.

She couldn't understand why few people accepted her offer.

"Then Aunty told me people were convinced when they saw a little kid trying to drive that great machine it had to be dangerous."

There is a possibility that the other chest in the museum may one day rejoin the small one, once it has been cleared of its paint and taken to Tod House.

Mrs. Ramsay . . . and chest made at James Tod's mill

A museum spokesman said if the municipality makes a request the Provincial Museum would consider letting the chest go to the house on permanent loan.

However, he added, the museum would have to be assured that conditions were ideal, including that of temperatures, to ensure protection of the wood.

Oak Bay expects the house to be open to the public by the end of the year and has installed temporary caretakers to protect the property.

But before even the little chest can move back with its memories on Tod grround, the house will have to have new wiring and electrical work, as well as structural work.

Ald. Doug McLelland hopes this project, too, will be jointly financed by the municipality and the government.

Funeral Wednesday For Irvine Dawson

Monterey elementary school principal Irvine Dawson died in hospital Friday after a long fight against leukemia. He was 64.

Funeral services for Dawson, the member of a pioneer Victoria family, will be held Wednesday at 3:45 p.m. in the McCall Brothers chapel on Vancouver Street.

The popular principal was born and raised in Victoria and spent all of his long teaching career, except for 10 years in Powell River, in local schools.

He was known for his involvement in the arts. He was a keen amateur photographer, a potter and involved in the symphony society. He encouraged arts and drama instruction at his schools.

Dawson's great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Irvine, came around Cape Horn from Scotland to Sooke in 1851. The family moved to the Cedar Hill area soon after.

Dawson attended Cedar Hill school, Victoria High and the Lansdowne normal school. His first teaching post in the three room school in Powell River, lasted for 10 years before he moved back to his home town to teach at Monterey.

He became vice-principal at Willows school and principal of Oak Bay elementary, Craigflower and View Royal schools.

While at View Royal he set up an innovative reading program which had Grade six students reading at the same rate as good Grade 11 students.

He took over the Monterey principal job in 1967 and was to have retired this year.

Lake Hill principal Leonard Lane will fill his post.

Drinking Drivers On Rise

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Drinking driver offences in Saanich and the peninsula are more than double in the two largest police jurisdictions compared with a year ago.

Saanich municipal police show a 142 per cent increase in charges for impaired driving and for operating a vehicle with blood alcohol of .08 per cent or more.

In the RCMP jurisdictions of Sidney and North Saanich the increase for these offences is exactly 100 per cent.

The periods compared are the first two months of each year.

A survey of the Greater Victoria area was taken after drinking driver statistics from Nanaimo and Prince George showed heavy increases for January and February.

Insp. E. L. Tedford, chief of the traffic section at RCMP "E" Division headquarters, was asked if there was a provincial trend toward alcohol-related driving offences.

He said province-wide figures were not yet assembled and there was no indication so far that such a trend may develop.

But in the Prince George district there had been a campaign to reduce the risk of motor vehicle accidents, he noted.

If there is any reflection in forthcoming figures that law enforcement has increased in other jurisdictions, he said, "It's not because of any particular direction from here, unless there is a flagrant showing of collisions" within a specific area.

Tedford said local jurisdictions are under normal instructions to gear enforcement to apparent accident causes.

In Saanich, the capital region's most heavily populated residential community, impaired driving offences rose to 21 in January and 25 in February, from 15 and four in the two months a year ago.

Sidney RCMP handled 36 such charges to mid-March this year and 18 in the period last year.

Colwood RCMP — covering a jurisdiction from Metchosin to View Royal and north to the Malahat—is one of three capital region jurisdictions which actually experienced a margin drop in the number of impaired charges for the period, going to 19 from 21.

The other two were Central Saanich which had two less at eight, and Oak Bay where the decline was more substantial — from 11 to five.

Esquimalt was up marginally at seven, an increase of one.

Victoria police records department was unable to furnish figures due to reoganization of the division, but an officer said there was nothing to indicate significant variation this year from last.

At Nanaimo the highway partlo reported 68 drivers were charged with drinking offences in the first two months, compared with only 30 in 1975, or a ratio of one offence in 134.7 of population.

Feng Bang Must Wait For Charges

The Taiwan fish boat Feng Bang, under arrest in Victoria's Inner Harbor, will be charged with a violation of the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act — but formalities may take several days.

Regional fisheries director Rod Hourston said he is not sure when the charge will be officially laid and a fisheries spokesman in Vancouver said it will have to await reports from officers involved and consideration by the justice department.

Maximum fine upon conviction under the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act is $25,000.

Meanwhile the 144-foot long liner, which has a crew of 27, is tied up at the fisheries dock at the foot of Broughton after being escorted to harbor by the fisheries patrol vessel Tanu Friday.

Alderman Won't Take $50 Raise

Victoria Ald. Ron McKenzie said Friday he will try to persuade his city council colleagues not to give themselves an eight per cent salary increase.

But even if he fails, he won't accept the extra money.

McKenzie, who was away on holiday when council first voted for the pay raise at a caucus meeting three weeks ago, said it was almost the first thing he heard when got off the airplane.

"I feel any raise should be tied strictly to productivity, but as it's virtually impossible to determine the productivity of an alderman the only fair basis to use is the productivity of the country as a whole. And Canada's last year was zero or less than zero."

He noted that if council gives itself an eight per cent boost every year for the next five years, aldermen will be earning more than $10,000 a year "and that isn't the name of the game at all."

The alderman said it's up to municipal councils to set an example in their respective communities, to underline the fact that Canadians can only earn as much as they produce.

"Quite frankly I was dismayed, surprised and a little shocked," he said.

"I don't think there is anyone on council who really needs another $50 a month."

The eight per cent increase, in keeping with the federal anti-inflation guidelines, would raise Mayor Mike Young's salary to $21,190 a year, and aldermen's remuneration to $7,954.

But McKenzie said he questions the rationale council has used in following the federal guidelines.

And he pointed out that a former city mayor, Hugh Stephen, set such an example in their respective communities, to underline the fact that Canadians can only earn as much as they produce.

And he pointed out that a former city mayor, Hugh Stephen, set such an example several years ago when council raised the mayor's salary from $10,000 to $15,000 but he declined the increase.

Only Ald. John Hayes, elected in last month's byelection, voted against the pay raise when the bylaw was introduced and given first readings last week.

Final reading is scheduled for next Thursday's regular council meeting, but McKenzie said before that he will try to lobby aldermen on his views in an effort to change their thinking.

With Ald. Bob Ellis away on holiday next week, only eight council members are expected to be present for the vote, As a simple majority is needed for the bylaw to pass, a split 4-4 vote would be enough to defeat it.

Which means that McKenzie has to win over only two more aldermen for the increase to be rejected.

Protest, Bitter CLC Zero on Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — A defiant Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) has told the federal government it will never accept the anti-inflation program of selective wage and price controls.

The CLC is scheduled to present its fiery denunciation of the program to cabinet Monday, at the same time as thousands of workers from across the country are expected to converge on snow-covered Parliament Hill to demonstrate their support for the congress, which represents two million persons through its affiliated unions.

"This government . . . has placed itself on a collision course with the labor movement of this country," the CLC said in its brief, which was released in advance of delivery.

"We do not welcome this, but we do not intend to back down either."

While taking a pugilistic stance in the brief, CLC president Joe Morris said last week that the congress has taken extensive precautions to ensure that the mass labor rally does not explode into a violent demonstration.

The CLC has opposed the selective controls program since its introduction Oct. 13 because, labor leaders say, ceilings have effectively been clamped on wage increases while prices, for the most part, have been allowed to rise unchecked.

"Canadians were told that the same degree of sacrifice would be required from all sectors of the economy, but the legislation and regulations have made a mockery of this principle for we fail to find adequate controls on dividends, interest rates, professional fees and land speculators."

The congress, in its annual presentation to cabinet, said the government "has embarked upon an anti-inflation program which, in the history of Canada, is unparallelled in its callous and brutal treatment of all who must toil for a living."

Labor Minister John Munro said in an interview that the CLC submission "is a very strident brief and I frankly think its rhetoric is excessive."

"It seems to be completely destructive and I would hope that after elaborating a lot of criticisms, they might have gone on to make some constructive suggestions."

The congress normally deals with a range of issues in its annual submission to cabinet, but this year's 8000-word brief is devoted almost entirely to a bitter attack on the anti-inflation program and a reiteration of CLC demands for an alternative program.

The CLC has said since last May, when the federal government attempted to get business and labor to accept a program of voluntary restraint, that the congress cannot support a restraint program that does not meet a number of conditions.

The CLC brief mentions the need for curtailing land speculators and to establish land banking. It also questions climbing oil and gas prices and "the stated policy of the government that they shall continue on their merry climb."

The CLC also wants a guarantee that tax concessions to corporations will be used to create jobs, rather than be paid out in higher dividends. The congress also rebuked the government for rejecting its proposal for a negative income tax or tax credit scheme.

It attacked the government program "for its decision to fight inflation at the expense of higher unemployment."

Grounded Packer Rescued

The Vancouver fish packer Great Northern 8 has emergency pumps loaded aboard at Central Saanich wharf today after grounding on Cooper's Reef off Sidney during the night.

Her five-man crew escaped without injury.

The 82-foot packer was badly holed in the mishap and barely kept afloat during morning tow to dock at foot of James Island Road by pumps from coast guard cutter Racer.

Rescue was a successful race against time and chance because main pump is mounted on stern of Racer and cutter would have had to leave packer to her fate had she been called to another emergency.

Killer Flu Feared

WASHINGTON (WP) — Dr. Albert Sabin, who 20 years ago developed the oral vaccine for polio, said late last year that it was possible to have a cheap, mass-produced influenza vaccine in time for the next major flu epidemic if the U.S. Congress would only come through with the funds for research.

Sabin was talking then about a known flu variety that makes its appearance about every 10 years, the estimated arrival time of the next being 1978.

But now, Sabin believes, there is a chance for an even more deadly outbreak, as early as this fall, of a rare flu strain for which there is no readily available vaccine. This is the virus which recently killed one soldier at Ft. Dix ,N.J., and infected several others. It is judged to be like the virus which killed 20 million people around the world in 1918.

Sabin, 70, now associated with the Medical College of South Carolina at Charleston, says the government must decide now whether to go all out to develop a new vaccine rather than wait and risk a "forest fire" epidemic.

The reason for the success of Sabin's polio vaccine was its ability to be produced cheaply on a massive scale. That's what he says must be done with the flu.

"A decision must be made: Just how much are we prepared to spend if this forest fire type of epidemic starts next fall," he says. "We must intensify research on alternative methods of immunizing which have the potential for more effective mass vaccination.

"It may be necessary to go back to the drawing board altogether."

Hollywood Weekend For Picking Oscars

Jaws has passed The Godfather and Gone With the Wind as the box-office champion of all time but may have a difficult chore winning the Academy Award as best movie of the year.

The saga of man against shark got only four nominations, compared with nine for One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest and seven for Barry Lyndon. Also in the race for best picture are Dog Day Afternoon with six nominations and Nashville with five.

Members of the Motion Picture Academy usually back a box office winner — Gone With the Wind and Godfather were both named best picture — but this may be the year the revenue totals will be ignored.

The uncertainty adds to the difficulty of predicting which movie will be named best film on Oscar night March 29.

For the second year the Victoria Times and radio station CJVI are giving Victorians a chance to predict the top Oscar winners and win a weekend for two in Hollywood, the home of the stars.

Winner of the contest will be drawn from among those who have correctly predicted the winner of best movie, best actor and best actress.

Oscar winners are announced Monday, March 29, and the drawing from among the correct entries will take place March 30.

Official entry forms will appear daily in the Victoria Times starting Monday.

The complete list of nominees:

Best actor — Jack Nicholson for One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, Walter Matthau for The Sunshine Boys, Al Pacino in Dog Day Afternoon, Maximillian Schell for The Man in the Glass Booth and James Whitmore in Give 'em Hell, Harry!

Best Actress — Ann-Margret in Tommy, Louise Fletcher for One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, Glenda Jackson as Hedda, Isabelle Adjani for The Story of Adele H. and Carol Kane in Hester Street.

Best Movie — Jaws, One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, Barry Lyndon, Dog Day Afternoon, Nashville.

Some wags have suggested that Brucie should have been nominated for his hard-hitting performance in Jaws. Brucie was the mechanical shark that terrorized millions of viewers with his life-like assault on swimmers near Martha's Vineyard, New England.

The site of the action was within miles of the place where Captain Ahab set out for the great white whale, Moby Dick, and critics have seen many parallels in the two stories of man against sea monster.

One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest earned nine nominations, including the two key awards of best actor and best actress. Solid acting performances by supporting players also was an indication of the power of director Milos Forman. The story of one man's fight against the system inside a mental institution is haunting but depressing.

Barry Lyndon is a beautiful tableau of a bygone age that some critics called sort of Tom Jones at half speed. It is slow moving but fairly impressive.

Nashville is an inside look at the fun, politics and heartbreak of the country movie industry in Tennessee while Dog Day Afternoon is the story of an offbeat holdup in Brooklyn.

The two leads from Cuckoo's Nest, Jack Nicholson and Louise Fletcher, are highly regarded for the top acting awards while Walter Matthau and Ann-Margret may be sentimental selections. Ann-Margret is making a comeback after severely injuring her jaw and things like that tend to influence Academy voters. Particularly if they are thinking Jaws as best movie.

Maximillian Schell and Al Pacino have both been to the winner's circle before and are strong contenders but the sleeper could be James Whitmore for his strong performance as Harry Truman.

Among the women, Glenda Jackson is a perennial nominee and is always difficult to beat. Isabelle Adjani and Carol Kane are newcomers.

The Times-CJVI contest is not open to employees of the two companies or their immediate families.

Argentina Reported Close To Coup by Armed Forces

By JOANNE OMANG

BUENOS AIRES (WP) — The Argentine armed forces are ready to take power. Detailed plans for a takeover have been drawn up, including the membership of a new government, a list of persons to be arrested and the text of the first announcement to the population.

"The people of Argentina want to know," the text begins, "and they shall know." The phrase, a time-honored one in the history of Argentine political oratory, would initiate the latest of half dozen coups here since 1930.

As with previous coups, plans have leaked in advance, and the broad outline has been published both here and abroad. As also with previous coups, the plans are subject to change without notice.

It is to be the formal end of the staggering government of President Isabel Peron, 45, who has presided for 21 months over a disintegrating economy and daily terrorist violence.

Although the precise date is unknown, it is expected to be soon and it is expected to be generally welcomed.

According to sources close to high military leaders, army commander Jorge Rafael Videla, 50, is slated to head the new government. As leader of the faction that has held out for months against other officers' pressure for an earlier coup, he is expected either to be titular chief or first among equals in a three-member junta.

If there is a junta, the other members are expected to be Navy Commander Emilio Massera, 51, and Air Force Commander Brig. Gen. Orlando Agosti, 49. They are close friends and regarded as moderate conservatives.

Among the first places to be padlocked by the army would be the Argentine Congress, where a disarray of squabbling minority parties and ruling Peronist party splinters have haggled for months over procedural details on bills intended to solve the country's economic and political problems.

The coup planners say they do not want to spill blood. Mrs. Peron would be arrested and exiled to Spain.

If this occurs, she would follow the history of her late husband, Juan Peron, whom the army exiled to Spain in 1955.

Meanwhile, a one-hour gunfight between guerrillas and soldiers in downtown Buenos Aires early today ended a week of stepped-up terrorist killings and bombings throughout Argentina.

The shootout came hours after six bombs were found on Libertador Avenue, one of the capital's busiest thoroughfares and President Peron's habitual motor route from the presidential palace to her suburban Olivos residence.

SUGAR PACT

The workers, members of Local 517 of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union, voted to accept a tentative settlement that was scaled down from an earlier settlement rejected by the federal anti-inflation board in late February.

WESTERN EYEING $1M LOTTERY

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Western Canada Lottery Foundation announced Friday negotiations are under way for a million-dollar lottery to continue on a national basis after the Olympics.

The foundation said in a statement it would be similar to the Olympic lottery, which has a $10 ticket price, and revenue would go to the provinces on the basis of tickets sold.

"Nine provinces have agreed to this concept in principle and negotiations are being carried on with Quebec to ascertain their interest in the proposal," the statement said.

"Each province would determine its own spending priorities for the revenue. Under the proposed inter-provincial setup a board of directors representing the four regional lotteries would determine over-all policies."

Rollback Urged in Food Pact

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal Anti-Inflation Board Friday recommended a rollback of 1.4 per cent of the second year of the greater Vancouver area supermarket labor settlement.

The rollback would bring the settlement in the second year to about 10.5 per cent from 11.88 per cent.

The board did not touch the first year's percentage of 16.59 per cent.

Leaders of the meat cutters, retail clerks and bakery workers unions said they would be taking the recommendation to their membership as soon as possible.

It is expected the meetings will take place a week from Sunday.

The anti-inflation board issued a statement on its recommendations after a two-hour meeting with supermarket employers and the union leaders in Vancouver.

The agreement between the B.C. Food Industry Labor Relations Council, representing the supermarkets, and the three unions runs from April, 1975 to March, 1977 and covers about 4,500 employees of 11 retail food marketing companies in the province.

The board said the settlement was based on the report of Clive McKee, an industrial inquiry commissioner appointed in January by then labor minister Allan Williams.

The agreements provide for increases in total compensation that exceed the federal wage and price guidelines by 5.2 per cent in the first year and 1.6 per cent in the second year.

The board said the settlement was substantially less than previous proposals made in June and July, 1975, when the food unions turned down an offer or more than 30 per cent in a year.

Softball: Vindication From The Man With Bates

The end of the week, and it should be noted that in the aftermath of the World Softball championships at Lower Hutt, New Zealand, and the crowning of Bates as world champions, and, then this week as "team of the year" (what else?) in local sport; a note arrived in the post defending the Canadians for the bad press they received in Kiwiland.

In a letter to one of the dailies in Wellington, a Mr. Neal Hogg of Lower Hutt, who was one of two liaison officers assigned to the Canadian party, jumped to the defence of the Canadians.

He says he was "shocked and disgusted" at statements made by tournament chairman Kevin Baldwin. It may be recalled that Baldwin called the Bates unco-operative and laid most of the blame on Bates for the non-completion of the tournament, among other sundry items, which were revealed here earlier.

But here's what Hogg has to say:

"Mr. Baldwin's statement that they were unco-operative and that the attitude to some of the party was insulting to officials throughout the whole series is, in itself, arrogant and insulting and most certainly untrue."

Hogg also accused Baldwin of making his statements with the knowledge they would be published AFTER the Canadians had left New Zealand and that they would not be in a position to reply.

Hogg continues: "The team and supporters were great ambassadors for their country. I am sure that everyone who attended the games enjoyed the vocal support they gave their side and this in turn inspired our own supporters to become more vocal.

"The Canadian coach, Mr. Joe Patterson, was most certainly annoyed and angry when he left the function on Sunday night and he had every right to be so.

"I live several hundred yards from the ball park and it had rained almost continuously all day. At 6 p.m. it was obvious that the rain had set in for the night and that any play would be impossible, dangerous and downright stupid. No decision as whether play would continue had been announced when supper was served at 8:30 p.m. . . . and it was after 9 p.m. when Mr. Baldwin rose to his feet and announced the end of the series

"The news that New Zealand and the United States would share the tournament honors (with Canada) was the 'straw that broke the camel's back' as far as Patterson was concerned. But he did not blame the tournament organizers . . . It was the complete lack of consideration shown to the players, particularly during the last hour, which angered Patterson, and all of his party, of which I felt I was one.

"And as a New Zealander, I felt embarrassed and ashamed."

And that is another side of the story and if Bates weren't vindicated before, they should be now. Thank you, Mr. Hogg.

Now, Bates' Harvey Stevenson says he is going to retire . . . but then he may stay on as a pinch hitter . . . that the U.S. national championship team may yet come here for a series this summer . . and that Andy Konopacki of Vancouver may reverse himself again and still come to Victoria to play for the champs . . . reports and rumors were flying thick and fast at the Sportsmen's Dinner, Monday, but nobody really wants to see Stevenson retire, and he was so advised . . . and I'm sure the Bate players will convince Harvey they still need the big bat . . .

It was interesting, too, listening to two-time Indianapolis winner, Rodger Ward, talking of his favorite sport. Concentration, simply and above all else, is the key, the car holding together, that is; and Ward was saying that driving as closely behind another car as race drivers do, is actually quite easy. "You drive off the other car, something like formation flying, and you do as he does. But you never take your eye off him. That's the concentration." And he admitted that when he realized he was going to win his first Indy he did get excited, especially on the last couple of laps—wondering if anything would go wrong, would the car hold up, the tires, would there be a pileup?—and then suddenly it's all over and you're a winner. Made it sound easy, he did.

In town this week too was Eckhard Krautzan, new coach of the Vancouver Whitecaps of the North American Soccer League. He was here to confirm the Whitecaps' appearance in the second annual Victoria Cup competition which will see the Whitecaps play the Vancouver Island Selects who a week ago knocked off Canada's national team. And he was saying "I was impressed with the Island team" and that he might steal one or two players. He was referring to Bob Bolitho and Brian Robinson who will sign for the Whitecaps as amateurs this year. Still, he would like them to play for the Island, but not at the expense of the Whitecaps looking bad, he suggested. He also said he may talk to former English pro, Bruce Twamley, about a job with the Whitecaps.

His goal, he said, is for the Whitecaps to first reach the playoffs and then the finals in the NASL, and he feels that the imports the Whitecaps have secured this season will improve the club. Actually the Victoria Cup series, sponsored by C-FAX and Chew Excavating, is a worthwhile endeavour as the proceeds will be split between the Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped children and the Lower Island Juvenile Soccer Association, on a 75-25 basis. And after last week's showing by the Selects, don't bet they won't give the Whitecaps a tussle. "They play very attractive soccer," was Krautzan's view. And oh, yes, he's heard about Ike MacKay as well, and may even have a chat with him; but not until after next week's game. And there go all our stars—for the summer, at least. G'Nite all.

MIKE MILLER

Bays in Full Control

VANCOUVER — It was ball-control time for Oak Bay Friday night and the Bays have reached the championship game in the British Columbia high school boys' basketball tournament for a record-equalling seventh time.

Apparentlyb ack in the form that carried them to the Vancouver Island title this season, the Bays were zealous guardians of the ball at Pacific Coliseum in the tournament's semi-final round.

The young men of coach Don Horwood gave the ball away only 10 times on turnovers as they rolled to a 64-55 triumph over last year's provincial champions, the North Delta Huskies.

Tonight, the second-ranked Oak Bay club goes for the title against the top-seeded North Surrey Spartans, who got a 23-point effort from Charlie Olson on the way to a 77-67 victory over Burnaby South Rebels.

Rebels and Huskies clash at 7 tonight for third place in the 16-team tourney and the Bays tangle with the Spartans at 8:45.

(The final game will be broadcast by radio CFAX (1070), starting at 8:45.)

Oak Bay is the lone Vancouver Island squad remaining in action. Belmont Braves were ousted from consolation play when they lost 67-53 to Vancouver College. Courtenay Towhees were eliminated Thursday.

Vancouver College, incidentally, set the record of playing in seven finals and still hold the record of five championships in the 31-year-old event.

Winners of the title in 1973 and 1974 and fourth-place finishers last year, the Bays are making their third appearance in the tourney final in six seasons.

Horwood expressed pleasure with Friday's performance by the Bays, who probably turned in their finest effort since winning the Island crown.

"The players were a little shaky in the first two games," said Horwood, "but they are now playing with confidence. They showed a lot of poise and controlled the game when it counted."

Again, one of the Bays with the greatest poise and slickest shooting touch was Ken Kirzinger, who connected for 22 points after notching 16 and 18 in the team's first two outings.

For the third time in as many games, Horwood did not start Kirzinger. But it was early in the first quarter that Ken got the nod, and after that he didn't depart, producing nothing but trouble for the Huskies.

Kirzinger, who grabbed 12 rebounds, and Dave Richmond, who snared 11, gave the Bays good control of the boards and the Victorians ended up with a 42-30 edge in rebounds.

Also turning in a solid effort for Oak Bay was Mike Miller, who was a determined defender as he held one of the North Delta scoring aces, Stu Fitzpatrick, to a mere five points. Miller, who picked up four points, also received credit for assists on six Oak Bay baskets.

Kirzinger hit on nine of 14 field goal attempts and the Bays wound up with a 43 per cent shooting percentage from the floor after hitting at 47 per cent in the opening half.

North Delta held a 34-32 lead at the intermission but the Bays scored the first six points of the second half and appeared to be in control the rest of the way although the Huskies did manage to pull even at 40-40.

The Bays were credited with 14 steals while the Huskies stole the ball 11 times, but were guilty of 22 turnovers.

Belmont started well against Vancouver College and fashioned a 28-25 lead in the first half, but the Braves managed only two points in a disastrous third quarter while the Fighting Irish ran up 23 points.

College plays today against Penticton Lakers in a game to decide fourth and seventh positions. The Lakers advanced with a 75-62 victory over Terrace Kermodes as Gord Herbert fired 20 points to boost his tournament total to 82 for three games.

In today's other game, Semiamoo Totems of White Rock clash with Kelowna Owls for fifth and eighth places. Totems topped the Titans 66-57 while the Owls dropped Cranbrook Trojans 66-48.

Hill Holds Lead

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Mike Hill, a one-time beer truck driver who joined the pro tour "just to see if I could make a living," scrambled to a four-under-par 68 and the second-round lead Friday in the $175,000 Greater Jacksonville Open golf tournament.

Hill, a self-contained man something of a loner among his fellow tourists, and younger brother of tour-veteran Dave Hill, put together a two-round total of 137, seven under par for two trips over the surprisingly-difficult Deerwood Club course, 7143 yards of lakes and pines meandering through a posh residential area.

With two rounds to go in the chase for a $35,000 first prize, the 37-year-old Hill enjoyed a one-stroke lead over skinny little Nate Starks, a career non-winner and one of the last men on the golf course, who men on the golf course, who came in with a 69-138.

Hubert Green headed a group of six players tied for third at 139. Also at that figure were Bob Murphy and veteran Miller Barber, with matching 67s in the second round' rookie Jerry Pate, 67, and Ray Floyd and Lanny Wadkins, who slipped from a tie for the first round lead with 71s.

Green, a winner last week in the Doral Open, moved up with a late-afternoon 67 that included a birdie on the final hole.

Arnold Palmer continued to have his difficulties, however. He scored an eagle-three on the front side but made a bogey-six on his last hole, a bogey that cost him the cut.

He finished with a round of par-72 and a 147 total, one over the cut-off figure. It was the third time in seven starts this season Palmer had failed to qualify for the final two rounds.

Mariners Up for Grabs

SANDIEGO (AP) — San Diego Mariners are up for grabs and so are their players.

The World Hockey Association announced Friday the franchise has been taken away from Baltimore businessman Joseph Schwartz and all Mariner players have been declared free agents.

Ben Hatskin, the WHA's board chairman, said two local groups are interested in taking over the club and a decision will be made next week.

"We'll have something decided by Monday or Tuesday morning at the latest," Matskin said. "We're looking for local control. I want to emphasize that."

Hatskin said Mariner players assured him they will continue playing until ownership is settled, despite the fact the twice-monthly payroll has been missed.

The Mariners moved to San Diego two years ago. Before that, they were known as Jersey Knights and New York Raiders.

The WHA team has another year left on its three-year lease with the San Diego Sports Arena.

The team's front-office problems didn't help the Mariners on the ice. They dropped an 8-3 decision to Houston Aeros at Houston with Mark Howe scoring three times.

Ralph Backstrom's third goal of the night, coming at 4:33 of overtime, provided New England Whalers with a 6-5 victory over Cincinnati Stingers.

Overtime also was served up in two other games. Richie Leduc connected at the 2:20 mark to give Cleveland Crusaders a 6-5 win over Phoenix Roadrunners while Rejean Houle waited until the 6:29 mark before scoring the winner in Quebec Nordiques' 4-3 win over Toronto Toros.

Cougar-Helping Pats Clinch Playoff Berth

Friday night the Cougars found some friends.

Tonight the Vicoria Cougars will be on their own as they continue their struggle to remain on their fifth-place perch in the over-all point standings of the Western Canada Hockey League.

The friends of the Cats were Regina Pats, who clinched the 10th and final playoff spot on home ice by bouncing the Brandon Wheat Kings 8-6.

That left the Cougars in a somewhat more comfortable position as they start a punishing home-stretch run tonight by meeting Edmonton Oil Kings in Memorial Arena at 8:30.

Brandon's defeat Friday left the Cats with a one-point lead over the sixth-place Manitoba crew, but they now have two games in hand. If the Cats can remain in the fifth spot they will clash with 10th-place Regina in the opening round of playoffs.

But if the Victorians slip back and wind up behind the Wheaties in the sixth berth, they will open their playoff chores against the powerful, league-leading New Wesminster Bruins.

Following tonight's contest, the Cougars go on the road for games in Saskatoon (Monday), Medicine Hat (Tuesday), and Lethbridge (Wednesday and Friday). They'll be back home Saturday to finish off their schedule against Medicine Hat.

Several Victoria players will be missing the action Monday, with Greg Tebbutt, Lorry Gloeckner and Al Hill sitting out suspensions resulting from a bench-clearing incident on Feb. 20 in Saskatoon.

Tebbutt, Archie Henderson and Tim Williams will not appear in the game Tuesday at Medicine Hat because of court cases arising out of hockey brawls.

Al Dumba connected for three goals and clubmates Jon Hammond and Drew Callander each added two tallies as the Pats tripped the Wheat Kings.

In other games Friday, Clay Pachal fired three goals to help the Bruins to a 7-4 win over the Oil Kings and two scoring shots by Neil Hawryliw paced Saskatoon Blades to a 7-4 triumph over Winnipeg Clubs.

Oak Bay, Saanich Click at Courtenay

COURTENAY — Saanich Braves and Oak Bay Henderson Realty were scheduled to clash at 4:45 this afternoon after chalking up victories Friday in the four-team Vancouver Island midget hockey tournament.

In Sunday's final round of the tournament, Oak Bay will meet Nanaimo at 11 a.m. and Saanich will tackle Comox at 2 p.m.

The Island Title will be decided on total points.

BOWLING MEETING

BOXERS DROP FIRST GAME

POWELL RIVER — London Boxing Club of Victoria dropped a 6-5 decision to Powell River Friday in the opening game of the best-of-three Vancouver Island zone intermediate hockey final.

Al McLaren and Ron Poole each scored twice and Rugs Pritchard counted once for the Boxers.

Squash Favorites Advance

Thom stroked his way to 3-0 victory over Bryce Hardin of Seattle in Friday's first-round matches and today he goes against the "A" class favorite — 19-year-old Pat Richardson of Vancouver.

Second-seed Rich Fleming of Vancouver also had a first-round bye and was slated to clash today with Richmond rival Roger Ovens, who eliminated Victoria's Julian Greenwood 3-2 Friday.

Another Victorian, Ken Waterfall, chalked up a 3-2 win over Vancouver's Lou Geddes in the "B" event and was scheduled to tangle today with second-seeded Doug Smith of Vancouver.

Two other Victoria players, Blair Kruger and Kevin Gillett, went down to defeat against Mainland opponents in "B" matches Friday.

Two players from the Jericho Club, in Vancouver, former national champion Jane Dixon and Sue Grimsdick, are seeded first and second for the women's event, in which Vancouverites Val Ellis and Gillian Thomas posted triumphs in first-round contests.

Ridley Proves a Point to Flames

Canadian Press

Despite the fact he was owned by Atlanta Flames, goaltender Curt Ridley never played a game for the National Hockey League club.

Friday night, Ridley, who was acquired by Vancouver Canucks from the Flames earlier this year, showed his former employers he was a capable NHL netminder.

Ridley kicked out 34 of 36 shots, including 16 in the third period to help Canucks hold Atlanta to a 2-2 tie in one of three games. In other action, Pittsburgh Penguins downed Washington Capitals 7-3 and Montreal Canadiens withstood af irst-period California barrage and defeated the young Golden Seals 4-1 in Oakland.

"I was pleased with Ridley's play," said Vancouver coach Phil Maloney. "He made some crucial plays for us late in the game."

Tom Lysiak scored his 30th goal of the year and assisted on another by Barry Gibbs to set a team single-season scoring record of 78 points. He held the old mark of 77 points.

The Flames led 2-0 midway throught he final period before Ron Sedlbauer and Dennis Kearns tied the game for Vancouver.

At Landover, Md., Jean Pronovost scored two goals, both in the final 10 minutes as Pittsburgh defeated Washington.

Pronovost's 47th goal of the season broke a 3-3 tie at 9:55 of the third period, Lowell MacDonald added another goal at 13:02 and Pronovost scored his second of the game at 18:08. Syl Apps had a goal and four assists for the Penguins.

The Canadiens survived a 24-shot outburst by the Seals in the first period and registered their 15th game without a loss by defeating California for the fifth time in as many games this year.

Bob Murdock scored the lone California goal in the opening session and an apparent goal by Rick Hampton later in the period was disallowed by referee Ron Wicks because Fred Ahern was in Ken Dryden's crease.

Power-play goals by Guy Lafleur and Yvan Cournoyer put Montreal ahead in the middle session with Steve Shutt and Murray Wilson scoring for Montreal against California netminder Gary Simmons in the final session.

S. AFRICA WINES RETURN

South African wines will return to liquor store shelves in British Columbia next week after an absence of almost a year and a half, Attorney-general Garde Gardom announced Friday.

The wines were banned in October, 1974, by the previous New Democratic Party administration as a protest against South African racial policies.

Gardom said that prior to the Dec. 11 election, which saw the Social Credit party defeat the NDP, his party and promised to study returning South African wines.

Nick Clark, liquor branch stocks director, said 700 cases of wine will be available to the public some time next week because the branch had a container delivered in error a month and a half ago.

McGeer Says NDP Hid ICBC Plan Z

The former NDP government had full knowledge of the Insurannce Corporation of B.C.'s financial state as early as June, 1974, and had a confidential plan on how it would pay off the deficit, Education Minister Pat McGeer said in the Legislature Friday.

McGeer said the scheme, labelled Plan Z called for levying an eight-cent a gallon tax on gas and transferring revenue from motor vehicle licence fees to make up the losses which totalled then $35 million.

The revenue so generated was estimated at $110 million in 1975-76 increasing at the rate of about four per cent a year.

However, McGeer, who is minister in charge of ICBC said the government chose to ignore the warning signals. He attacked the former administration for not making public details of the plan which was prepared by senior ICBC staff members.

He said in its 1975-76 budget the government made no mention of the $110 million that would have to be transferred to ICBC.

"It was a false prospectus," he charged.

When the Socreds took over after the Dec. 11 election they discovered the $110 million had been spent for other purposes, he said, and that the ICBC deficit had been allowed to build to its current level of $181 million.

He was harshly critical of Dennis Cocke (NDP—New Westminster) for not advising the Legislature of the situation at the time. Cocke was then a member of the ICIBC board of directors.

At a press conference later McGeer said "I wonder if it is proper for him (Cocke) to continue sitting in the house?"

While he said he wasn't calling for Cocke's resignation, he felt the former health minister "should do some explaining."

McGeer's comments in the house were made in reply to a motion of non-confidence in the government introduced by NDP house leader Bill King.

The motion, in the form of an amendment to the motion to accept the throne speech read by Lt.-Gov. Walter Owen on Wednesday, criticized the government for its failure to "relieve the motoring public from oppressive auto insurance rates."

It also bereated the government for failing to offer fair treatment for northern and interior drivers and failing to end discrimination against drivers under 25.

King said the new insurance rates set by the government were punitive, and were motivated by an attempt to discredit the former NDP administration.

King, in his hour-long speech attacked the government on several other fronts.

He said it was insulting to MLAs to be faced with salary cuts while the government insists on paying inflated salaries to cabinet members' staff. He cited Art Weeks, special adviser to Economic Development Minister Don Phillips, as an example. While Weeks receives $29,000 a year, MLAs currently get $24,000.

He drew a noisy response from the government benches when he said the throne speech contained falsehood and lies in its reference to the Clarkson Gordon report on the province's finances.

Premier Bill Bennett leaped to his feet and demanded a retraction. King withdrew his remark but then said the speech contained statements that were "patently untrue."

He referred to a statement in the speech which said Clarkson Gordon had told the government what the province's financial requirements would be.

Yet King said it was the government who told Clarkson Gordon what the transfer payments should be to B.C. Hydro and B.C. Rail and not the other way round.

"I regret the lieutenant-governor was placed in the position of having to read a statement that contained an absolute falsehood."

Both Liberal leader Gordon Gibson and Conservative leader Scott Wallace levelled criticism on the government for its handling of ICBC.

Gibson said a better solution would have been to put a 15 per cent surcharge on gas tax and increase premiums by 30 per cent.

He said the heavy payments and short notice given by the government in announcing the new rate structure imposed an unusual hardship on the average B.C. family.

As a result, he said, retail sales in the province have dropped.

In an interview later he said he didn't know the size of the drop but had been assured it was so by several major retailers in Vancouver.

Wallace said that although he supported a plan whereby ICBC would be operated on a pay-as-you-go basis, he decried the "abrupt, premature and heartless" way the Socreds had tackled the problem.

He said it was possible the government believed that any increase in the cost of driving would encourage the use of public transit but noted public transit isn't available in all parts of the province.

Levi Attacks SC Plan For Mincome

VICTORIA (CP) — Norm Levi (NDP — Vancouver-Burrard) accused the British Columbia government Friday of decimating the provincial mincome program by setting different benefit rates for different age groups.

Levi, human resources minister in the former New Democratic Party administration, produced a letter in the legislature from the deputy minister saying an increase in the federal old age security supplement will be passed on to people on mincome over 65 years of age.

The letter said there will be no mincome increase to people between 60 and 65.

The mincome program, established by the former administration, pays a guaranteed monthly income, currently $265 a person, to people 60 years of age and older and to the handicapped.

The letter indicated the federal benefits would increase on April 1 to $269.30 a month for people over 65 but would remain at $265 for people between 60 and 65.

Levi said it was the policy of the former government to automatically match benefit increases allowed by the federal government.

Don't Get Sick Cocke Advises

Don't get sick is the advice former health minister Dennis Cocke gave in the Legislature Friday.

Cocke attacked the direction the government was taking in the field of health and although he reserved his harshest comments for the decision to abandon the B.C. Medical Centre he had something grim to say about the situation here.

"Take a look at the health services available in Victoria," he told the legislative members. "I'd suggest you don't get sick in this town."

Cocke called the decision to discontinue the B.C. Medical Centre plan in Vancouver a "slap in the face" to the many people who had volunteered their time to work on developing it.

He said the government was displaying an attitude of "down the drain with everything without so much as a by your leave."

However, Cocke said, the government has replaced the medical centre concept with a 10-year-old plan which he felt was both obsolete and doomed to failure.

"It's a shocking situation."

Cocke wondered who was in charge of making health decisions in the province — Education Minister Pat McGeer or Health Minister Bob McClelland.

He noted it was McGeer who announced recently the proposal to expand the UBC medical school and concentrate medical training on the university campus. he felt the statements should have come from McClelland.

"The people ask for assurance ... want to be assured of life-saving facilities.

"But the assurance should not come from some elitist academic serving his cronies." (Referring to McGeer who was involved in brain research at UBC prior to entering politics.)

Mercantile Bank In AIB Squeeze

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal anti-inflation guidelines are more injurious to the Mercantile Bank of Canada than to most other Canadian banks, John Murphy, bank president, said Thursday.

Murphy, speaking to the Vancouver Society of Financial Analysts, said that under the foreign ownership requirements of the Bank Act, First National City Bank of New York reduced its 100 per cent ownership of Mercantile to 24.2 per cent (the legal requirement is 25 per cent) within five years.

During this period, Mercantile was limited to expanding its assets to no more than 20 times authorized capitalization. Other Canadian banks operative with an asset-capitalization ratio of between 25 to 1 and 30 to 1.

Murphy said this limitation on asset growth had the effect of holding Mercantile's profitability and return on assets below industry norms. He said that while the bank no longer is subject to this growth restriction, the anti-inflation guidelines limit the bank's return on assets to no more than 95 per cent of its average return during the five fiscal years which ended in 1974.

"As thing stand now, and assuming we can maintain first-quarter results through the balance of this fiscal year, our earnings and return on assets will be substantially in excess of the guidelines," said Murphy. "The implications are anything but cheery — we could face an absolute decline in profitability as a result of the anti-inflation guidelines."

Guilty —Again— In Slaying

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — David George, 27, Friday was found guilty of the contract killing of a Surrey fisherman four years ago, and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

A jury found him guilty after nearly nine hours of deliberation. It was his third trial on the charge.

He was charged with the murder of William Tupniak, 27, on March 27, 1972. Two others were also charged.

All three were tried and convicted after a nine-week trial in B.C. Supreme Court later that year.

Last May, the B.C. Court of Appeal granted George a new trial, but the other two convicted, Robert Charles Smith and Ronald Phillip Sauve, had their appeals dismissed.

When the retrial opened early this month, Mr. Justice R. P. Anderson called a mistrial and ordered another jury impanelled to hear the case.

At the original trial, the three men were convicted of the contract killing of Tupniak and the Crown said the killing was financed by a jealous husband. Tupniak and Marilyn Jean Cathers, 24, were found dead of shotgun and knife wounds.

Two Injured In Mishaps

Two Saanich residents were treated and released from Royal Jubilee Hospital Friday after separate accidents.

Patricia Ann Cunningham, 19, was identified by police as the driver of a car involved in a three-vehicle accident at Grange and the Trans-Canada Highway at 4:30 p.m.

Traffic was disrupted briefly, but damage to the vehicles was not extensive, Saanich police said.

Greenpeacers Block Sealer

Bodies blocking ship, two members of Greenpeace play a war of nerves with the captain of the Canadian sealer Arctic Endeavor 80 miles off the coast of Newfoundland.

Patrick Moore, one of the protesters, said they halted the ship for at least an hour Friday, preventing it from running down the seal at their feet. He said the ship backed up and came ahead three times, each time stopping within a few feet of them as they knelt with their backs to it.

Friday's trip may be the last chance for the group to get on to the ice, which is drifting beyond the range of its helicopters.

Municipal Aid Formula Wanted Soon by Phillips

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Art Phillips said Thursday the provincial government could devise a formula during the present session of the legislature for revenue-sharing with municipal governments.

Phillips expressed disappointment at the vagueness with which the issue was treated in Wednesday's throne speech at the opening of the provincial legislature.

"I see no reason why a formula should take longer than a few months to work out," Phillips said at a news conference.

The legislature was told in the throne speech, "my government feels when a sound economy is restored that local governments should be in partnership with the provincial government in sharing the revenues that a growing economy can provide. I am pleased to advise you that it is hoped to introduce legislation to reach this goal during the term of my government's mandate."

Phillips said he is not suggesting that the province make a huge increase in its financial aid to municipalities and noted he had earlier called for a modest 10-percent increase in the aid given last year.

He said what municipalities need is a formula that will give them an assured share of such growth taxes as personal income and sales taxes rather than continue with the catch-as-catch-can system of grants that are now in effect and which may vary from year to year, at the whim of the provincial government.

Phillips took issue with Muni Evers of New Westminster, president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, who implied in his comments on the throne speech that smaller municipaalities should be given more money on a per capita basis than large municipalities.

Phillips said it sounded as if Evers was speaking more as the mayor of New Westminster than as UBCM president.

Phillips said Evers' position is "totally illogical" and contrary to UBCM policy.

"I think the only fair system is to treat everyone equally whether they are a small municipality or a large one," Phillips said.
